PUBLIC HEARING ON FATAL COACH CRASH ORDERED

P. U. C. Makes Precedent in Wreck That Killed 2 and Hurt 11.

ACCIDENT OCCURRED AS SIGNALS CHANGED

Heavy Chevy Chase Vehicle Rammed at Seventeenth Street Crossing.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday afternoon notified both the Capital Traction Co. and the Washington Railway & Electric Co. of its intention to hold a public hearing to investigate the bus crash yesterday morning at Seventeenth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest in which two men were killed and eleven persons injured.

Accounts of the crash were given police by the drivers of the buses at the Third Precinct Station, where the two men are being held pending the coroner's inquest this morning.

Representatives of the commission began an investigation of the accident immediately upon receipt of the news. A stricter enforcement of traffic regulations as a result of the crash was indicated among police officials.

Lights Were Changing.

The collision, fatal to M. E. Williamson, 35, secretary to Representative Edward W. Pou, of North Carolina, and Benjamin B. Pettus, 43, prominent local attorney, occurred when an empty eastbound Washington Railway & Electric Co. coach crashed into a Capital Traction Co. de luxe bus. The lights controlling traffic at the intersection were changing color as the vehicles collided, according to witnesses.

Joseph Turner, driver of the Capital Traction bus, said that he, going south on Seventeenth street, entered the intersection at Rhode Island avenue under a green light, which changed to amber at the middle of the crossing. Louis H. Mealy, driver of the other bus, said that he had stopped for the red light at Seventeenth street, and started across the intersection when the amber light flashed on. He told police that he did not see the Capital Traction bus.

Mealey's Bandit Adventure.

Mealey, who has driven for the bus company for about three years, disappeared with a bus last August, and communicated with the bus company from Philadelphia by phone. He told police that he had been forced to drive to Philadelphia by two armed bandits, who entered the bus as passengers. The men, he told police, forced him to drive until the gas gave out near Philadelphia, and then left him taking $10 belonging to the company.

Judge Ralph Given, who suffered a head wound and an injury to the left leg, said as he limped from the hospital where he was treated, that he was sitting in the middle of the bus when the two vehicles collided. "We were crossing Rhode Island avenue," he said, "when at Seventeenth street a Rhode Island avenue bus hit the rear of the bus that I was on. The driver of the other bus was going at a terrific speed. I noticed the traffic light in front of us. It was green and amber."

First Action of Kind.

The letter which was dispatched by the Public Utility Commission to each company was as follows:

"The commission is on notice that a serious accident happened this morning, attended with the loss of human life and personal injury, in the vicinity of Rhode Island avenue and Seventeenth street.

"This notice is given in accordance with paragraphs 44, 45 and 89 of the act creating this commission, and ten days after this date the commission will set the time and place for a public hearing in order to determine what, if any, order should be issued in connection with the operation and the service rendered by your vehicles of this kind in the District of Columbia."

This is the first time that the utili-

Delegation to Chicago Is Not Instructed, but Favorable to New Yorker.

Little Rock, Ark., April 1 (A.P.).—A slate of national convention delegates largely favorable to the presidential candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, was chosen by the Democratic State central committee today but no voting instructions were given.

The eighteen votes which Arkansas has in the convention were distributed among 24 delegates—6 at large and 16 from the congressional districts.

The delegation includes Senators Robinson and Caraway, Gov. Harvey Parnell, Chairman Lamar Williamson, of the State committee; Vincent M. Miles, national committeeman for Arkansas, and Representatives Claude Fuller and W. J. Driver.

Various political factions combined to put through an all-Roosevelt slate, but an attempt to bind the delegation to vote as a unit failed.

Roosevelt supporters said, however, there was enough strength for the New York Governor in the committee to have instructed for him had any attempt been made to bind the delegation to another candidate.

The committee adopted a resolution, commending "the leadership in the Senate" of Senator Robinson and expressing "our appreciation for his services to the party."

As an outgrowth of the controversy a few months ago over the nomination of Mrs. Caraway to succeed her husband, the late Senator T. H. Caraway, a resolution was adopted by the committee providing that in the future when the governor calls for a special election to fill a vacancy for any State office or for Congress or for the United States Senate, the chairman of the State committee shall immediately call a special primary election to elect the Democratic nominee.

(Associated Press.)

The decision of Arkansas Democrats to send an uninstructed delegation of eighteen to the Democratic national convention started a round of speculation yesterday over the part Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader of the Senate, may play in the 1932 presidential campaign.

While supporters of Franklin D. Roosevelt were looking hopefully to the newly added eighteen in the Irish Ford Factory Employes on Strike

Cork, Ireland, April 1 (A.P.).—Employes of the Ford Motor assembling plant here went on strike today, and this afternoon only a handful of men remained at work.

Outside the gates of the Ford property thousands of strikers and unemployed listened to soap box speeches by the strike leaders.

POLICE SEARCH IN KIDNAP CASE SHIFTS ABROAD

SCHWARZKOPF'S AID ON SPECIFIC ORDERS

Norfolk Intervenors Tell of New Development, but Conceal Its Nature.

Hopewell, N. J., April 1 (A.P.).—The month-old police search for the kidnaped Lindbergh infant shifted swiftly across the Atlantic today as other intermediaries continued their work in the United States.

Maj. Charles H. Schoeffel, deputy superintendent of New Jersey State police, sailed Monday on the liner Mauretania for Plymouth on a mission "the nature of which we can not reveal at this time," Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf announced in his afternoon bulletin.

Speaking from the desolate home of the Charles A. Lindberghs, Col. Schwarzkopf, chief of the State police, refused to explain the significance of the trip other than to say that Maj. Schoeffel was under "specific instructions" and that when he returns "further information will be given out if it does not interfere with the progress of the case."

Speculation on Purpose.

Inquiry at the New York offices of the Cunard Line failed to confirm the major's presence aboard the Mauretania, but elicited the information that a man registered as Carl Scheffler was understood to be going to Scotland Yard in London for an unexplained purpose. The ship is due in Plymouth Monday.

Speculation as to the importance of the development ranged from the possibility that authorities hoped to discover Charles A. Lindbergh jr., himself, abducted from his home on the night of March 1, to the supposition that they had aroused new interest in the records of Betty Gow, Scottish nursemaid; Henry Johnson, her Norwegian friend, or Ollie Wheatley, English butler in the Lindbergh home.

New Norfolk Development.

Early in the investigation the theory was advanced that the curly-haired boy might have been placed on an outbound ship and sequestered somewhere in Europe. Subsequently, vessels flying many flags were searched in European ports for traces of the child but the hunches ended in failure.

Meanwhile, Norfolk, Va., intermediaries continued to express confidence in their ability ultimately to recover the child, and the search went forward unabated in Philadelphia and sections of New Jersey and New York.

Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, one of three interventors in the Southern city, announced there had been a new development in their operations since yesterday, but withheld

VETO HELD SURE AS DEMOCRATIC TARIFF IS VOTED

REVOKES PRESIDENT'S RATE-CHANGING RIGHT

(Associated Press.)

Headed for a veto, the Democratic tariff bill to revoke the President's authority to make changes in import duties was passed yesterday by the Senate.

With the old Democratic-Independent Republican coalition again in command, the bill was approved by a vote of 42 to 30 and sent back to the House, which had already passed it in different form.

Despite the certainty of a presidential veto, the Senate spent more than a week debating the measure with a view to making the tariff a campaign issue.

The bill passed by the Senate is known as the Harrison substitute for the House bill. Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, was instrumental in its drafting and led the battle for it on the floor.

Provides Congressional Action.

It provides that findings of the Tariff Commission shall be forwarded to Congress by the President with his recommendations, but shall not become effective until legislation has been enacted carrying it out.

Under the present law the President can make changes in rates recommended by the Tariff Commission within certain limitations.

The House bill provided that recommendations of the Tariff Commission would be effective automatically within 60 days unless Congress took action to prevent them.

The bill also calls for creation of a "consumers' counsel" to represent the public in cases before the Tariff Commission and requests the President to call an international conference to lower tariff and other trade barriers.

Adopts Noncompetitive Clause.

The Senate adopted an amendment offered by Senator Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, providing that when it is found that competition

French Parliament Adjourns to June

Approves Balanced Budget and Votes Confidence in Tardieu.

Paris, April 1 (A.P.).—Parliament adjourned today until June 1, after approving a balanced budget in an all-night session during which Premier Tardieu raised a question of confidence three times.

The points at issue were differences between the bills prepared by the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies. Each time he got a majority of about 50 votes.

The budget estimates receipts at 41,100,883,000 francs and expenditures at 41,097,501,000 francs. The Chamber's approval of the final draft was by a vote of 435 to 55. The opposition charged that the balance was only on paper and that there would be a deficit of from two to nine billion francs by the end of the fiscal year.

Surgeon Operator On Self Dies at 72

Dr. Evan Kane Succumbs to Pneumonia Attack in Pennsylvania.

Kane, Pa., April 1 (A.P.).—A surgeon who removed his own appendix a dozen years ago, and more recently performed his own hernial operation died today. He was Dr. Evan O'Neill Kane, 72, founder of the Kane Summit Hospital, and known in medical circles for his treatment of cancer. The public knew him, however, as the man who operated on himself.

Dr. Kane arranged mirrors about his person, anesthetized his midsection by using a "local" anesthetic and cut out his own appendix. That was in 1919. The feat was given wide publicity.

A few months ago the surgeon was suffering from hernia. He operated on himself a second time. He pronounced his operation a success. Since shortly after it he has been in ill health. He suffered a cold last Monday and pneumonia developed.

Dr. Kane was the father of Prof. Elisha Kent Kane, recently tried and acquitted at Hampton, Va., on a charge of drowning his wife.

HOUSE PASSES BILLION DOLLAR TAX BILL BY 327 TO 64 VOTE; HOOVER AGAIN URGES MERGING

PLUMMER'S PLACE TO BE LEFT VACANT

Group in Senate Decides to Give Right-of-Way to Consolidation Bill.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Again expressing confidence that Congress soon would act on the vital problem of governmental reorganization, President Hoover announced yesterday he would not fill the existing vacancy in the United States Shipping Board, pending unification of all merchant marine functions in the projected new division of marine affairs, which probably will be added to the Department of Commerce.

In repeating his suggestion that the now widely scattered aids to shipping be consolidated under single-headed authority, in the interest of economy, the President announced categorically that he favored complete abolition of the Shipping Board as now constituted.

"The present Shipping Board should be abolished," he said. "Its administrative functions should be transferred to the departments. This is not a criticism of the board, but a criticism of an impossible and expensive form of organization and divided responsibility."

Plummer's Post Vacant.

The vacancy on the board is that created by the recent death of Commissioner E. C. Plummer, of Maine, whose appointive term will not expire until June, 1936.

Coincident with the White House announcement, the Senate steering committee decided yesterday afternoon to give right of way to the bill presented two months ago by Senator Walter F. George (Democrat), of Georgia, which would clothe the President with blanket authority to effect consolidations wherever the needs of economy in the administrative branch dictate.

This action means that after weeks of delay in deference to the special economy committee of the House, the Senate soon will take the lead in the movement to bring about the sorely needed reorganization of the Federal departments.

2 Seized in Poison Death at Staunton

Wife of One Suspect Also Held Under Bond After Youth Expires.

Staunton, Va., April 1 (A.P.).—Following the death shortly before last midnight of Lacy R. Ashby, 22, county officers today arrested and jailed John Myers, 30, and William Smith, 26, charging both with giving Ashby poison March 21.

Lena Myers, wife of John Myers, surrendered this afternoon and after questioning by the police, was released under a bond of $2,500 as a material witness.

Ashby, a grocery store employe, became ill early on the morning of March 21. He remained at home several days, and was removed to a hospital a week ago. He is alleged to have first told his wife that he swallowed the poison, but authorities indicated three statements they obtained from him after entering the hospital, one an hour before he died, were the basis upon which they obtained warrants for the arrest of the two accused men.

Mellon on Majestic On Way to London

Praises Congress' Efforts for Balanced Budget on Sailing.

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Andrew W. Mellon, new American Ambassador to Great Britain, sailed for London on the steamer Majestic today to take up his duties. He declined to be interviewed on the ground that he could utter "only platitudes" if he said anything at all.

He did venture the opinion, however, that Congress seemed to be making great effort toward balancing the budget. Asked about the manner in which Congress was attempting to balance the budget and the merits of the various tax proposals, he replied: "I have no wisdom about such matters superior to other people."

The Ambassador was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. David E. Findley and a manservant. Mr. Findley is to be honorary secretary of the United States Embassy in London.

Statement by President On Shipping Board Stand

The President's statement yesterday on abolishment of the Shipping Board follows in full:

I do not propose to fill the vacancy on the Shipping Board, created by the death of Mr. Plummer, for the present. I am in hopes that Congress will pass the legislation necessary to reorganize the whole of our merchant marine activities in order that we may make drastic reductions of expenditures in this session. If so, the situation as to membership of the board might be greatly altered.

I have pointed out in messages and elsewhere on several occasions the importance of this matter in production of sound economy. We have merchant marine activities in many different departments and independent establishments. We now expend in aid and loans to the merchant marine service, directly and indirectly, about $100,000,000 per annum. We can not remedy the situation without legislation.

The present Shipping Board should be abolished. Its administrative functions should be transferred to the departments. This is not a criticism of the board, but a criticism of an impossible and expensive form of organization and divided responsibility.

The board was designed originally for regulatory purposes, and was set up by Congress independent of the executive. It has been subsequently given enormous administrative and financial functions. The President has no authority or control over its activities.

With regional and bipartisan bases of selection, together with independence from all control except the indirect pressures of Congress it has had extreme difficulty in functioning cohesively, and in any event no board or commission can successfully function in executive work.

Moreover, the board's authority in certain matters is divided with the Postmaster General. We are under the law giving ship subsidies as mail contracts. The Postmaster General necessarily looks at them as a matter of mail, the Shipping Board as a matter of trade routes and a matter of selling ships with a mail subsidy attachment. There can be no adequate check or coordinated direction of expenditure or commitments.

There is a function in regulations of shipping rates which should be extended to intercoastal rates and to inland water rates which is a much needed function for the development of shipping, and which could be administered at a comparatively small sum per annum by a new organism comprised of the present members of the Shipping Board, for their experience is most valuable.

As I have said, there are many other merchant marine activities in the Government and if we are to secure real economies we must have drastic consolidation and more definite responsibility.

SALARY SLASH BILL NEARS HOUSE FIGHT

Committee Expects to Act on Measure Monday; Foes Plan Attacks.

The legislative appropriations bill, around which the Federal pay slash battle is expected to center, may be reported to the House the first of next week, Representative Joseph W. Byrns (Democrat), Tennessee, chairman of the House appropriations committee, announced last night.

The full appropriations committee will meet on the bill Monday morning to determine its course of action, Chairman Byrns said. It may decide to report the measure Monday, according to the appropriations chairman.

Representative Henry T. Rainey, Illinois, Democratic House floor leader, announced from the floor the Philippine independence bill will come up Monday and independent office appropriations Tuesday.

He told The Post last night, however, that the appropriations committee is considering interposing the

COUZENS SUPPORTS I.C.C. ON RAIL LOANS

Commission Defers Action on B. & O. Plea for Aid on Bank Debts.

(Associated Press.)

Fresh support from the Senate was given the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday as it clung firmly to its position that railroads should not borrow Government money to repay bank loans until their private resources are exhausted.

The commission authorized the Baltimore & Ohio to borrow $7,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to meet various forms of indebtedness during the next month, but deferred action on $1,000,000 requested to meet bank loans due in April.

Meanwhile, Senator Couzens, who recently assailed a loan made by the finance corporation to the Missouri Pacific, introduced a bill to transfer jurisdiction over loans to carriers entirely to the Interstate Commerce Commission. At present it must pass upon loans received by the roads.

As chairman of the Senate interstate commerce committee, Couzens told the Senate Wednesday loans be-

REVENUE ESTIMATES ISSUE IN NEW FIGHT

Levy on Stock Dividends Is Added to Fill Gap Seen in Mills' Report.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

The heaviest peace-time tax burden in history was placed on the American taxpayer yesterday when a House of Representatives which had been whipped into a determination to balance, in the next fiscal year, the long unbalanced Federal budget, approved a $1,000,000,000 tax bill.

Whether the bill passed by the House will balance the budget in the next year remains to be seen. Several factors are involved and at the end of the day experts disagreed, but at the lowest estimate the House bill is a $1,000,000,000 levy. If the long-predicted upturn comes in business in the next fiscal year the bill will take much more than that from the taxpayers.

The bill was approved by a vote of 327 to 64 and sent to the Senate, which is expected to begin consideration of it early next week. How long it will take the Senate to work its will on it is problematical. Estimates run into the weeks, despite indications that the general outlines of the bill would meet with wide approval in the Senate.

Passage Follows Battle.

Final approval of the bill by the House came at the end of a day of battle by a tired body. The fight began when Democratic leaders denounced last-minute estimates of probable revenues submitted by Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills in response to a request from the ways and means committee.

Democratic leaders charged the Treasury with playing politics with its figures. The net result was that they jammed through the House a tax on stock dividends estimated to yield $88,000,000 to make up for the amounts by which Secretary Mills had decreased the estimates of revenue.

As finally approved the bill was estimated to produce $1,032,400,000. On the basis of the Treasury figures, allowing for the amendments, the bill will raise $997,400,000 in the next fiscal year.

Mills Cuts Savings Figure.

One of the differences between the committee and the Treasury estimates was in expected savings in Federal expenditures next year. The ways and means committee estimated $200,000,000 would be saved. Mr. Mills summarily cut that figure down to $125,000,000.

There were other differences between the committee figures and the last-minute figures submitted by Secretary Mills. These differences included:

Committee estimate of $15,000,000 from repeal of the net loss provisions, Treasury estimate of gain in revenue, $7,000,000; revision of depletion allowance, committee estimate, $3,000,000, Treasury estimate, $1,000,000; amended gift tax, committee estimate, $10,000,000, Treasury, $5,000,000; 1 cent a gallon tax on oil, committee estimate, $25,000,000, Treasury estimate, $5,000,000.

Both the Treasury and committee estimates toward budget balancing included $30,500,000 to be saved from

10,000 Flee Italian Town As It Sinks Into Caves

Seepage of River Water Blamed After Misfortune to Villa Santa Stefano, Between Rome and Naples; Mussolini Orders Relief for Refugees.

Naples, April 1 (A.P.).—Inhabitants of Villa Santa Stefano, midway between Naples and Rome, today saw their town disappearing into the ancient Roman caves over which it is built, and fled for safety.

Ten thousand persons abandoned the place as buildings slowly slid from view into a pit that opened along the entire length of Via Leonina, a street that extends the width of the city. It was feared the entire town would disappear.

The cave-in was thought to have been caused by river water seeping through the ground under the town, which broke down the roof supports of the caves. Villa Santa Stefano is an agricultural community in the province of Prosinone.

The cave-in began this afternoon. Immediately the wholesale exodus began. So slow was the movement of the earth that all the inhabitants had time to escape without casualties, streaming steadily in all directions.

They piled as much of their possessions as they could gather in a hurry on their backs or in donkey carts and hastened to a safe distance, where some pitched camp while others pressed on to neighboring towns, villages, and farmhouses.

As night fell, most of the people were out and the few who remained were ordered by the authorities to leave immediately.

Premier Mussolini, on learning in Rome of the cave-in and consequent flight of the people, ordered surrounding towns to accommodate the refugees.

'Playboy' Who Drove Here With Girl's Body Executed

William M. Frazer Electrocuted at Trenton for Shooting Sweetheart; Spent Night in Car With Corpse, Later Dumping It in Virginia Field.

Trenton, N. J., April 1 (U.P.).—William M. Frazer, Rahway, N. J., "playboy," who squandered $26,000 on his sweetheart before he shot her to death, was executed for the murder in the electric chair at the New Jersey State prison tonight.

Frazer, walking steadily, entered the death chamber at 8:06 and was pronounced dead nine minutes later.

Frazer was executed for the murder of Phoebe Quick Stader, 33, whom he killed on February 18, 1931, after the woman told him she was through with him.

The condemned man evinced no emotion as he entered the death chamber. With him were his spiritual adviser, Dr. Finley Keech, pastor of the First Baptist Church, at Rahway, and the prison chaplain, the Rev. John Moorley.

Col. William B. Stone, superintendent of the prison, greeted Frazer, "Hello, Bill."

Frazer replied, "Hello, Colonel," and walked straight to the chair, where Robert Elliott, the executioner, waited. The current was applied at 8:05 and turned off at 8:14, when the prison doctor, Dr. J. Wellington Crane, pronounced him dead.

Frazer's wife, Hilda, who had been loyal to him to the end, claimed the body. Funeral services will be held at Rahway. She last saw him on Wednesday, at which time Frazer made a will. Frazer's mother, Mrs. Edna S. Frazer, called during the afternoon to see him, but the prison rules prohibited a visit, and she sent him a farewell note.

STIMSON STUDYING WORLD COURT MAZE

Will Seek to End Confusion About Status at Senate Hearing Next Week.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Secretary Stimson is making an intensive study of the problems recently evoked in the Senate regarding American adherence to the World Court in anticipation of his appearance next Wednesday before the foreign relations committee, it became known yesterday. The Secretary's condition is so much improved that he is already able to walk around his home at Woodley and he expects to be back at the State Department early next week.

Col. Stimson has frequently invited several of the experts in the department to his home to review with him certain aspects of the problem. Assistant Secretary of State James Grafton Rogers confers frequently on this and other matters, and yesterday Pierre deL. Boal, chief of the division of western European affairs, was with him almost an hour.

Would Dissipate Confusion.

When the Secretary of State appears before the members of the foreign relations committee he will endeavor to dissipate the atmosphere of confusion and to unravel the snarled and tangled ideas existing regarding the court and the proposed American membership in it. The specific intentions of the Secretary are the following:

First, he wishes to emphasize the similarity of the Root interpretation and his own interpretation of the adequacy of the Root-Hurst formula for meeting the Senate's five reservations.

Second, he will endeavor to point out the superfluity of Senator Pittman's resolution regarding another canvassing of the World Court members for their acceptance of the Senate's reservations.

Third, he will endeavor to bring the discussion back to first principles and compare the text of the Senate's reservations with the text of the court's protocol of accession which has already been approved by the states member of the court.

May Not Be Rushed.

The Secretary will also go into greater detail with his letter of March 23 which he forwarded to Senator Borah after he was unable to appear personally.

The well-founded impression seems to prevail in senatorial circles that any discussion of such a moot subject as the World Court would only intensify the overburdened legislative program at this time on the floor of the Senate. Many proponents of the court believe that it would have its best chance of adoption by the upper house as long as it is carefully nursed along in the favorable hothouse atmosphere of the committee until the more immediate problems of internal legislation are out of the way. This would postpone a floor discussion of the measure until next June and perhaps beyond, if the members of the Congress decide to come back after the conventions.

Secretary Stimson has carefully prepared a list of the probable objections which will be made to his thesis by Senator Johnson and other opponents and he hopes to give a succinct analysis of the situation as it stands today.

Parallel Interpretations.

The Secretary will insist on the identity of his own and Elihu Root's interpretation of the safeguarding provision of the Root-Hurst formula of accession. Some contentions have been made that there was a discrepancy in the two interpretations based on the recorded opinions of the two eminent statesmen.

Senator Pittman had introduced a resolution in the committee requesting President Hoover to ask the signatories of the protocol for their interpretation of the authority of the United States to prevent the rendering of advisory opinions. However, the preamble to the protocol of American adherence specifies, it was pointed out here yesterday:

"The states signatories of the protocol of signature * * * have mutually agreed upon the following provisions regarding the adherence of the United States to the said protocol subject to the five reservations formulated by the United States * * *"

Furthermore, the language which was employed by the states was identic with that of the Senate's own reservations, it was stated.

Airport Manager Dies After Crash on Take-Off

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Capt. Harry Rogers, for many years the manager of the Curtiss-Wright Airport, at North Beach, in Queens, was fatally injured today when the motor of a plane in which he was flying with a passenger failed on the take-off.

The plane was 100 feet in the air, the motor cut off. It glided to the edge of the field, struck the ground and turned over. Rogers was rushed to Flushing Hospital, where he died a half hour later. The passenger, Edward Ortego, of Valley Stream, suffered fractures of the collar bone and ribs.

DEMOCRATIC TARIFF BILL PASSES SENATE

does not exist among domestic producers and distributors of a protected product the tariff protection shall be suspended.

An amendment offered by Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, to substitute for the Democratic bill a measure retaining the flexible tariff in its present form, but providing for changes in the free list, was rejected, 43 to 28.

On the final vote, six independent Republicans lined up with the solid Democratic ranks to pass the bill.

The Republicans were Senators Brookhart, of Iowa; Frazier and Nye, North Dakota; La Follette, of Wisconsin; Norbeck, of South Dakota, and Norris, of Nebraska.

During the final debate, Senator Hatfield (Republican), of West Virginia, charged the Democrats had used the tariff as the basis for a "Nation-wide campaign of misrepresentation" of the Hoover administration.

CONSOLIDATION OF BUREAUS AGAIN URGED BY PRESIDENT

opposition to economy which developed in the House was forecast for the Senate earlier in the day when Senator James Hamilton Lewis (Democrat), Illinois, presented his own plan for a special senatorial committee of inquiry on the whole problem of reorganization.

The Lewis resolution, it is expected, will form the rallying point of those who are determined to defeat the nonpartisan movement for drastic economies. That Senator Lewis' proposal is offered merely in the way of a filibustering move is suggested by the fact that the question of governmental reorganization has been investigated by no less than eight special committees of Congress during the last quarter century. Out of all this inquiry, however, not a single important economy has been actually realized.

Delayed In Committee.

Neither has anything promising of worth-while results yet come from the special House committee set up early in March as a countermove against President Hoover's recommendations for prompt consolidations in the interest of both economy and efficiency. Although this committee has held extensive hearings on a filibustering proposal to consolidate the Army and Navy, it has never indicated a serious disposition to tackle the real question presumably before it.

A number of bills have been tentatively prepared, most of them contemplating specific half-pint jobs of consolidation or reduction of force touching scattered bureaus, but even these have not been formally considered by the entire committee, and there is as yet no indication that any of them ever will be reported to the House.

Meanwhile, the House's regular standing committee on expenditures in the executive departments has reported a bill to create a Federal Department of Public Works, which lacks, however, the essential authorization that the rivers and harbors work be included under the general supervision of the Army engineers.

Minority Report Slated.

In an attempt to correct this vital defect, Representative Williamson (Republican), of South Dakota, will present a minority report early next week to authorize the temporary assignment of Army engineers to the proposed new department.

The expenditures committee also has reported a bill to consolidate all bureaus dealing with Federal personnel, but this is widely regarded among the House membership as a bill aimed at the Bureau of Efficiency, which was unable conscientiously to indorse any of the vast and irridescent projects of the committee for unsound reorganization measures.

In his statement yesterday, President Hoover pointed out that the Federal establishment now is spending approximately $100,000,000 annually in aids and subsidies to inland and transoceanic merchant ship corporations. But the existing maladministration of this vast sum can not be corrected without legislative authority.

Scores Board's Status.

"The (Shipping) Board," he said, "was designed originally for regulatory purposes, and was set up by Congress independent of the Executive. It has been subsequently given enormous administrative and financial functions. The President has no authority or control over its activities. With regional and bipartisan bases of selection, together with independence from all control except indirect pressures of Congress, it has had extreme difficulty in functioning cohesively, and in any event no board or commission can successfully function in executive work."

In thus emphasizing the essential guiding principle of effective consolidations, the President repeated a suggestion he made first before a congressional joint committee on reorganization in February, 1923. All purely administrative work, he said on that occasion, should be under single-headed authority, and all semi-judicial or advisory functions turned over to commissions, which would bring all of the many relevent points of view to focus upon decisions of policy.

Stresses Economies.

For the essential regulatory functions which yet would remain for a Shipping Board after the transfer of the administrative work to the departments, the President would establish a new and perhaps more compact and cohesive board.

And to this new agency would be extended additional authority to regulate intercoastal and inland waterway rates and traffic as well as the transoceanic agreement now controlled.

Aunt of Bebe Daniels, With Niece Here, Dies

Englewood, N. J., April 1 (A.P.).—Mrs. Loretta Bernard, aunt of Bebe Daniels, motion picture star, and a well-known actress herself half a century ago, died of pneumonia in Englewood Hospital today. She was 73 years old, and since 1920 had been living at the Actors' Home in Englewood.

Other nieces, in addition to Miss Daniels, who survive her are Mrs. J. F. Dugan, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. F. F. Sandurnette, of New York City.

Dr. Aitken Sails to Get Medal.

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Dr. Robert G. Aitken, director of the Lick Observatory at Mount Hamilton, Calif., sailed for England today to receive the gold medal awarded him by the Royal Astronomical Society of London. He said he and Mrs. Aitken, who accompanied him, would make a tour of foreign observatories and return to California about July 1.

BILLION-DOLLAR TAX BILL PASSES HOUSE

Vote on Measure Is 327-64; Senate Due to Begin Work on It First of Week.

administrative changes in the postal system. The revised estimate of the Postoffice Department was placed at $165,500,000 by both.

The Treasury's estimates, allowing $125,000,000 for general reductions in expenditures, totaled $1,081,900,000. The committee's figure was $1,191,900,000, allowing for $200,000,000 general reduction.

From both estimates should be deducted the sum of $17,000,000, due to elimination of the Swing amendment, and added $88,000,000 for the dividends tax amendment.

On the basis of the committee's figures, there will be more than enough in the Federal Treasury to balance the budget next year. On the basis of the Treasury figures there will be a shortage of more than $70,000,000.

The final day of consideration of the bill in the House began with receipt of Mr. Mills' revised estimate and comment on them by Speaker John N. Garner, the Texas Democrat, who has been mentioned as a possible nominee of his party. Secretary Mills, the Speaker said, was following the practice of Secretary Mellon to submit estimates to show what he wants to show.

Attack on Treasury Guesses.

"Any time the Treasury wants to have its way it can do it," the Speaker said. "Its estimates for many years have been low when it wanted them that way, and high when it wanted them that way. I think the country knows I have outguessed them in many instances. I believe the increased revenues on individual income taxes will bring in $20,000,000 more than the Treasury estimates, and the net loss repeal provision will net $100,000,000 instead of $70,000,000 as the Treasury estimated.

"They simply don't want the net loss change. When the Treasury and the administration don't want a thing they simply say that it won't bring in what other people say it will.

"I think it is quite unfair for the Treasury to reduce, by 30 or 40 per cent, the various estimates it gave to us a couple of months ago. They can't be doing that on any basis but that they believe the country is going to be much worse off. They ought to figure the country is going to hold its own."

Taking issue with the Treasury estimate of savings through reductions in Federal expenditures, the Speaker said that "if Mr. Hoover and Mr. Mills would cooperate we could reduce expenses $250,000,000." Instead of cooperating, Mr. Garner accused, every Cabinet member is "yowling" to the Senate against reductions proposed by the House. The reductions will be made despite the "yowling," the Speaker said.

The Speaker's criticism of the Treasury estimates was echoed by other Democratic leaders, and found reflection in the party vote of 180 to 105 by which the House adopted the amendment making dividends paid on stocks subject to the normal income tax rate of 7 per cent. It was estimated that this would raise $88,000,000.

Sales Tax Killed.

The big question of the day was settled when the House, on a roll call vote, sustained the amendment offered by Representative Robert L. Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, striking out the general sales tax. Mr. Crisp warned the House about their voting, saying that a vote of "no" would be to restore the general sales tax. The Doughton amendment was confirmed by a vote of 235 to 160.

The bill had been considered in the committee of the whole House. Under House rules the actions of the committee of the whole had to be approved by the House.

At the conclusion of consideration of the bill in committee of the whole Representative Crisp moved that the committee rise. Representative William B. Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, who presided through committee proceedings, left the chair and Speaker Garner took his place. When Mr. Bankhead had made his formal report to the Speaker he was given an ovation by the House membership which had been firing every possible question at him and employing every parliamentary maneuver they might to achieve an advantage in the bitter fight. Mr. Crisp walked down the aisle and grasped Mr. Bankhead's hands and the Alabaman's progress up the aisle was through a forest of congretulatory hands.

Separate Votes Demanded.

When Speaker Garner took the presiding chair their was a long string of demands for separate votes on various provisions of the bill. Representative Crisp said that he would demand a separate vote on every amendment if the Doughton amendment, which he fought, was defeated. His was a protective move. If the Doughton amendment had been defeated it would have meant that the general sales tax was back in the bill and the many other substitute taxes proposed by the ways and means committee were unnecessary. A possible jam was obviated, however, when it was agreed to vote first on the Doughton amendment. It was sustained on a roll call vote by 235 to 160.

Thereupon Mr. Crisp withdrew his proposal for a separate vote on every amendment except that of Representative Philip D. Swing (Republican), of California, raising the ways and means committee maximum rates on incomes from 40 to 65 per cent on incomes over $10,000,000. Mr. Crisp demanded a roll call vote on that.

The result was that the House reversed its previous action and voted, 178 in favor of the amendment to 111 against it, to eliminate the 65 per cent maximum tax from the bill.

There was another vote when the Ramseyer increased estate tax amendment was considered. Speaker Garner said it appeared the amendment was approved after hearing a vive voce vote, but Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), of New York, demanded a roll call. Sixty-one members arose. Seventy-eight were needed to force the roll call. That settled that, and there was no effort to question the approval given by shouts to the Ramseyer amendment to the gift tax section, designed to bring the tax on gifts in proportion to the increased estate taxes.

There was a strenuous battle over the question of allowing for depreciation of estate values in computing the tax. Various members arose and protested that under the provisions of the bill entire estates would be wiped out, and in some instances the heirs would be left owing the Government, because the tax would be based on a computation of their value during the boom period and collected in a period of deep business depression.

Representative William M. Whittington (Democrat), Mississippi, proposed to strike out the provision permitting estates to be valued as of eighteen months after death. His motion was beaten.

Representative Crisp said that the reason the committee had acceded to the requests was because it was understood that only a few would be affected. Inquiry of the Treasury had disclosed, he said, that 30,000 estates would be affected and the Government would lose $40,000,000 in revenue it already expected to get if the present plan were upset.

There were efforts to change the beginning of the eighteen months period. Finally Representative Heartsill Ragon (Democrat), Oklahoma, proposed and had adopted an amendment which provided that, in assessing the estate tax, not more than a 40 per cent reduction should be allowed because of depreciation subsequent to death.

The effort to revive the fight over the stock exchange tax was a dismal failure. The opposition was so evidently overwhelming on the vive voce vote that Speaker Garner's interpretation was not seriously disputed.

Two Break Out of Jail, Rob Cafe and Go Back

Lake George, N. Y., April 1 (A. P.).—Undersheriff Charles E. Brown revealed today that two prisoners sometime last week broke out of Warren County Jail, committed two burglaries, then returned with their loot through the hole they had made in the wall.

When the undersheriff discovered the patched-up hole in the wall yesterday, he said, he found that the prisoners, Charles Ervin Hunt, 19, and Edford E. Briggs, 16, had hidden part of the loot in their cell.

Brown said the youths admitted they chiseled several blocks loose, recahed the ground by sliding down a blanket, robbed a restaurant and the pergola of the Fort William Henry Hotel, then climbed back up the blanket and replaced the blocks. The snow was too deep to attempt escape, they told Brown.

Interior Department Bill Slashing Plans Offered

(Associated Press.)

Alternative methods of slashing the $57,000,000 Interior Department appropriation bill were put before a Senate subcommittee yesterday, but Chairman Smoot declined to disclose their nature.

The committee will meet Monday to begin its discussion of the two methods, one submitted by Secretary Wilbur in a letter and the other by Senator Jones (Republican), Washington, chairman of the appropriations committee.

The Senate has instructed the committee to reduce the bill 10 per cent from the $50,446,432 it carried as approved by the House.

Senate amendments added approximately $7,000,000 so the gross reduction must approximate $12,000,000.

Although Smoot would not comment on Wilbur's letter suggesting reductions that could be made, it was understood the Secretary presented a list of about 30 items, including the $3,500,000 for Indian schools, in which slashes could be ordered.

BROKERS PLAN FIGHT TO BALK TRADING TAX

Sharp Decrease in Market Activities Predicted if Measure Carries.

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Leading members of the New York Stock Exchange today took prompt action toward organizing all their forces against the transfer tax on securities, already approved by the House of Representatives.

Representatives of a number of leading brokerage houses, whose wire systems span the entire country and serve offices in cities and towns, met today to select the best fitted leaders for a determined war on the increase which would levy a charge of one-quarter of 1 per cent on all stock selling transactions.

Nearly all spokesmen of the larger houses said the tax increase as planned would cut down stock trading activity by 25 per cent or more. Some insisted the tax would lead many houses, already operating in or near red figures, to close shop entirely rather than to carry on under sharply curtailed stock and bond business.

Personnel Cut Planned.

One house doing a specialized business reported that its partners had applied a measuring rod to the effects that the house bill would have on its business and had decided in event the transfer tax were made law to cut down its forces immediately by at least half.

John W. Prentiss, a leading partner of Hornblower & Weeks, said the tax was not only a tax upon Wall street but "is really a tax upon some 60,000,000 of people in the United States who own securities."

The effect of the tax upon brokerage business, he said, would probably be to turn it back to prewar levels. "I should think that," he added, "all things considered, we might find that the stock brokerage business would contract to the level of 1912 and, if that turns out to be true, it will mean that probably 200,000 clerks will be dropped in stock brokers' offices in all the larger cities in the country where stock brokers have offices."

See Temporary Loss.

Some brokers, however, felt the tax would not cripple business permanently. "The tax would practically kill off the day to day trading business," said one of few brokers who looked upon the increased tax rate with equanimity, "but it would not seriously hurt the business of houses like ours.

"With times dull, like the present, it might stop customers temporarily from trading, but as soon as business gets rolling again we believe the customers would not let an increased tax even of the proportions proposed interfere with their placing of orders."

Most brokers said they would resist the proposed increase with all means at their disposal. It is expected that the New York Stock Exchange will publish figures showing the probable effect of the new imposts on its business, both in bonds and stocks.

Kidnaped Doctor Back; Two Suspects Confess

Peoria, Ill., April 1 (A.P.).—Dr. James H. Parker, physician, who was kidnaped March 14, returned to his home tonight unharmed, Alexander Jamie, head of the Chicago "Secret Six," announced. Jamie said no ransom had been paid.

Police disclosed that two suspected members of the gang which kidnaped the physician were in custody and had admitted their parts in the plot.

Motor Industry Launches Great Drive to End Slump

Last of New Models Are Ready for Huge Sales Campaign.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

The automobile industry today strikes its hardest blow to end the depression. The Nation's greatest manufacturing enterprise no longer will wait for conditions to improve of themselves. To the task of forcing quick and lasting improvement it has dedicated its vast resources of capital, brain power and man power.

Moving this week with dramatic swiftness, the industry has completed the long first step of getting the last of its 1932 models ready. Today it launches upon the most aggressive sales campaign in its history. With the Ford and Plymouth rounding out the list of new models, and Chevrolet's prices reduced to line up the popular-priced cars for the keenest competitive strife ever witnessed, the industry now is seeking a volume of business that first will enable it to give employment and, subsequently, to restore prosperity and profit.

"Our car and truck manufacturers decline to accept the slow recovery which is under way and believe enthusiastic intensive sellign effort will break the buying jam." In these words does Alfred Reeves, vice president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, sum up the purpose of the motor manufacturers' colossal prosperity drive.

But one dark cloud looms on the horizon as the campaign gets under way. It is the enactment by the House of Representatives of a 3 per cent excise tax on passenger cars, coming after the industry apparently had won its fight against any special and discriminatory tax. From a strictly local standpoint, the Washington automotive trade feels the menace of a 4-cent gasoline tax and the weight tax on automobiles as proposed in the Mapes bill.

The industry, however, is going ahead. To the millions spent in developing the 1932 models, it now confidently adds many additional millions to promote their sale. With the eleven largest producers swinging into an advertising and sales drive reminiscent of prosperity days, car manufacturers are hopeful of a volume of business in the second three months that will counterbalance one of the worst first quarters ever experienced.

The first three months of the year, however, were not as bad as the figures indicate. With Ford out of the market, others withheld their sales fire. His introduction was their "zero hour." Simultaneously came the new Plymouth, the Chevrolet price cut, the special display of General Motors products, which opens today in 55 cities, including Washington, and the release of spring advertising schedules by others within the industry.

That profits are not the immediate concern of the mammoth sales campaign is evident in the remarks of Henry Ford in connection with introduction of the new models and of R. H. Grant, General Motors vice president, relative to the reorganization in the motor car divisions of that corporation.

Said Mr. Ford:

"I'll say candidly we have quit figuring costs on the car. The more you figure costs the higher the price goes, and this is no time for high prices. Time and money have not entered into our calculations. We have believed it our duty to do everything necessary to start employment again. Now we are ready to go ahead."

Grant's statement relative to the consolidation of sales and manufacturing programs within the General Motors Corporation carried the same implication.

"Probably this consolidation of sales activities should have happened five years ago," said Mr. Grant. "If we are successful it means better times for everybody. In no way should this consolidation of sales activities of these three units be construed as an economical or deflation measure."

While the three immediate highlights of the industry's mighty drive are the Ford introduction and display, the General Motors special shows, and the elaborate radio and showroom debut of the Chrysler Corporation's Plymouth, there is universal participation in it. Coincidental with the trio of main events, Auburn, Graham, Hudson, Hupmobile, Nash, Packard, Reo and Studebaker are contributing heavily to the promotional undertaking with far-flung individual advertising campaigns. The young De Vaux passenger car, now backed by the $28,000,000 Continental Motors organization, is another participant in the drive.

The industry's advertising and sales drive will attack the fear complex which grips the buyer from many angles. In stressing the values it is offering, it will point out that these were developed at tremendous expense, but one which the industry undertook with genuine confidence in the country's future.

Car-Buying to Aid Idle Is Urged by President

(United Press.)

Buy a new car and relieve unemployment, President Hoover yesterday told the American people. He said:

"The motor manufacturing companies have all launched their spring models. There is nothing that provides widespread employment more than automobile construction. Every person contemplating buying a new car this year can make a real contribution to employment by putting in his order now, even though he does not take immediate delivery."

THREE REPUBLICANS SEEK TYDINGS' SEAT

Time Limit for Filing Shows Party Vote Will Split; Quenstedt Out.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 1.—A three-cornered primary fight for the Republican nomination for United States senator was indicated this midnight when the time limit for candidates to file certificates of their candidacy in the office of Secretary of State David C. Winebrenner, here, expired.

The primary election is to be held May 2; and under the law no certificates will be honored within 30 days prior thereto, although belated aspirants have recourse to petition.

The G. O. P. candidates seeking the post are former Representative Linwood L. Clark, Baltimore County; State Senator Wallace Williams, Cecil County, and Harry T. Phoebus, Somerset County. Millard E. Tydings, Harford County, Democratic incumbent, is unopposed.

Quenstedt Foregoes Race.

For some time today Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt of Annapolis loomed as a possible fourth candidate in the Republican ranks. The mayor, who is State commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said he had been assured strong backing from that organization, as well as support from certain State leaders, but finally decided to forego the fight. With the other three candidates admittedly "dry," friends of Mayor Quenstedt pointed out that his chances of landing the nomination would be greatly enhanced if he ran as a "wet," since the trend of sentiment among Maryland voters seems strong in that direction.

At any rate it would appear that Republicans are confronted by a perplexing situation unless there are withdrawals. Late developments brought Williams and Phoebus in the field. Only yesterday they decided to file. Clark entered the race some time ago.

While State leaders have made no formal declarations as to where they would throw their support, it became known today that Baltimore City Republicans who have followed the fortunes of former Mayor William F. Broening would line up behind Mr. Phoebus. The latter is also said to have the support of William P. Jackson, a power on the shore.

Williams Strongly Backed.

On the other hand Mr. Williams' candidacy is said to have the favor of United States Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough and Galen Tait, chairman of the State central committee of the party. Mr. Clark, who has championed the cause of the taxpayers league expects to gather support from various quarters.

Contests in both Democratic and Republican ranks for Congressional nominations from some of the districts also are indicated. Candidates for these posts have ten more days in which to file.

doubtful column, friends of the Arkansas senator, the party's vice presidential nominee in 1928, insisted he still was very much in the picture—if not as a presidential prospect, then as a vice presidential possibility and perhaps permanent convention chairman.

Senator Robinson has informed some of his friends that he is not a presidential candidate, but the action of the Arkansas Democrats was taken here to mean he could have their votes at Chicago if he wanted them or they would be thrown to his choice for the nomination.

Roosevelt Far in Front.

Six more delegates were added to the doubtful column yesterday when Democrats in the Philippines voted to send an unbound delegation to Chicago. This increases the unpledged group to 44, counting Louisiana's twenty and Arkansas' eighteen.

The Democrats have now chosen 198 of their 1,154 delegates. Roosevelt is far out in front with 95 and, counting Georgia's 28 to be named next Wednesday, he has 123. Former Senator Reed, of Missouri, has 36 and Gov. Murray of Oklahoma, 23.

Returning to New York yesterday from a trip in the West, James A. Farley, New York Democratic chairman and one of Roosevelt's preconvention captains, said he encountered enthusiastic Roosevelt sentiment in Iowa, Wisconsin and other Middle Western States.

Iowa already has instructed for Roosevelt. Wisconsin will name a delegation of 26 in next Tuesday's primary with lines drawn between a slate pledged to the New Yorker and an uninstructed group favorable to Alfred E. Smith.

RACKETEERING SEEN IN TRIAL OF RECTOR

London Underworld Active in Alarming Mothers During Immorality Hearing.

London, April 1 (U.P.).—An underworld scheme to "muscle in" on the consistory court trial of the Rev. Harold Francis Davidson, rector of Stiffkey, was cited today by the defense counsel. Dr. Davidson is charged with immorality in connection with social welfare work in London.

The "racketeering" in the trial, which has been sensationally exploited by London newspapers, was disclosed in a statement that an unidentified woman had been approached by a girl posing as a private detective for the consistory court.

The fake detective told the woman that her daughter had been named in a list of girls with whom Dr. Davidson was alleged to have had relations. The woman investigated and found the information to be false.

Angry Exchanges.

The fourth day of the trial was featured by angry exchanges between the defense and prosecuting attorneys, the defense counsel charging that private detectives investigating Dr. Davidson's activities had exceeded their rights.

Most of the testimony centered on Dr. Davidson's activities in a London restaurant, where it was said the waitresses knew him as "the Mormon."

Miss Violet Lowe, a dark-haired waitress at the Yeng Wah Restaurant, in Bloomsbury, said the 60-year-old rector visited the place three times a week and often was accompanied by Barbara Harris, the 17-year-old girl who first testified in support of the charges against him.

Violet said she saw the rector quarreling with Barbara at one time, but later they embraced and kissed.

"Dr. Davidson told me he would like to see me again," Violet said. "He showed me photographs of other girls he had been with and told me he had been on the stage as "Charlie's Aunt."

Mother Interrupts.

"Once he tapped me on the arm in the street and asked where I was going. I said I was off duty and don't speak to customers in the street."

A commotion was caused later when Miss Dorothy Burn, 21, was testifying. The defense asked if it were true that she now had a better position than before she knew the rector.

"She didn't get the job through him or with his help," shouted a woman from the rear of the court. "She had to leave her job because he made her ill."

The woman was identified as Miss Burn's mother.

The girl said the rector had embarrassed and pestered her and asked her to spend a week-end at his house in the country.

"He said I was too lovely to be working there," she testified. "He showed me photographs of actress friends and said he used to forgive them their sins."

Rail Bombing Victims Honored.

Budapest, Hungary, April 1 (A.P.). Victims of a railway bombing in Hungary have been honored through the choice of their names to designate locomotives.

VENEZUELA'S CHIEF NEAR DEATH, REPORT

President Gomez Fell Ill on Monday and Troops Rule Capital, Writer Says.

Barranquilla, Colombia, April 1 (A.P.).—Today's newspapers published letters from a writer in Caracas, Venezuela, reporting that President Juan Vicente Gomez was dangerously ill and that all outgoing communications were subjected to strict censorship.

The writer was identified only as a "respectable gentleman." His letters said that the president, who will be 75 next July, fell ill on March 28 and that immediately patrols of police and soldiers appeared in the streets of the capital to prevent disorder.

The writer also said that Dr. Adolfo Bueno, who performed an operation on Gen. Gomez in 1921, had been called from France, presumably for another emergency operation.

(Associated Press.)

Reports of the serious illness of President Juan Vicente Gomez were vigorously denied yesterday at that country's legation here. Pedro Rivero, attache, speaking for Minister M. Arcaya, said the legation has been constantly in cable communication with President Gomez, in Caracas, and that the executive was enjoying his usual good health.

Rivero branded as lies reports of disorder in Venezuela. They were, he said, originated by enemies of the Gomez regime living outside the country, and, as in previous similar cases, would promptly be proved fabrications of malcontents. State Department officials had received no word from Caracas.

Juan Vicente Gomez has been the real head of the Venezuelan government, either as president or commander in chief of the army, for a quarter of a century.

He completed a presidential term in 1929 and Congress voted him another, but he declined, and at his suggestion Dr. Juan Bautista Perez was chosen as president and Senor Gomez was formally appointed commander in chief, which was established as a separate post.

There was much dissatisfaction with the Perez administration and in 1931 he resigned and Senor Gomez resumed the presidency, at the same time retaining the authority of commander in chief.

During his long time in power Senor Gomez kept peace in Venezuela except for a few futile attempts at revolution. He built a fine highway system, organized the air service and established a communication system, an industrial school system and a system of agricultural experiment stations.

When he first took office in 1908 by a coup d'etat the foreign debt was nearly $40,000,000. By 1930 it was paid off and at the same time the internal debt was cut down to less than $1,000,000.

Simultaneously the general accumulated a fortune for himself, becoming the country's largest landowner with extensive coffee estates, large live stock ranches and holdings in light and power enterprises which rated him as a multimillionaire.

Pittsburgh Rivers Rise, Causing Boat Accidents

Pittsburgh, April 1 (A.P.).—Swollen by rain and melting snow in the upper valleys, the rivers are creeping steadily toward flood stage in Pittsburgh, causing harbor accidents.

The mark at "the point," where the Allegheny and Monongahela meet to form the Ohio, was 22.4 feet, and rising.

The top decks of the towboat A. B. Sheets, owned by the Hillman Transportation Co., were torn off when the craft swung around in the Allegheny River and was swept inshore beneath a bridge approach. On the Monongahela, two barges of steel and coke being towed by the steamer Edgar Thompson, of the Carnegie line, were swept over a dam by the current.

2,000 Railway Workers Called to Midwest Jobs

Omaha, April 1 (A.P.).—Spring maintenance work, including track, bridge, and other general repair work, called 2,000 railroad men back to work in Nebraska and neighboring States today.

At Union Pacific headquarters, it was announced that 1,200 maintenance of way workers were put to work today throughout the system. The Burlington reported employing 700 additional maintenance workers in territory west of the Missouri River. The Chicago & North Western hired 350 maintenance men in the Omaha territory, and other roads today reported varying numbers.

Suspect in Western Kidnaping Accused

Kansas City Policemen Say Depew Had Hand in Lindbergh Case.

Kansas City, April 1 (A.P.).—Two Kansas City officers brought back from the East today a reinforced belief that Martin Depew, wanted here on kidnaping charges, had a part in the abduction of the Lindbergh baby.

R. K. Cole, police city detective, and Joseph Brennan, railroad detective, said they learned definitely that Depew, a steam shovel operator, had contacted gangsters in a section of Brooklyn from which ransom letters were sent in the Lindbergh case. Depew is wanted here as the reputed leader of the kidnapers who abducted Mrs. Nell Q. Donnelly, millionaire garment manufacturer, here last December.

Cole and Brennan said that through failure of Jersey City police to recognize their credentials they were held in separate cells for four hours as "suspicious characters." Recognition of the credentials by a police inspector was followed by apologies, they related.

PUBLIC HEARING IS ORDERED IN BUS CRASH FATAL TO TWO

ties body has ever called a public hearing of a similar nature as the result of a traffic accident. While the control of the speed of buses rests with the joint board of the commission and the District Commissioners, the authority to demand safe operation of buses is held by the utilities body.

Chevy Chase Victims.

The investigation, it is said, will not interfere with any possible criminal procedure that may evolve from the accident.

Most of the passengers on the bus were residents of the Chevy Chase and Cleveland Park sections. The seriously injured are:

Clyde Culp, 53, 6407 Florida street, Chevy Chase, Md., possible fracture of the skull, ribs, and jaw, and chest injuries.

Harry Wolfe, 35, 4012 Leland street, Chevy Chase, possible fractured skull and pelvis, and broken left leg.

Mrs. Marie Tyler, 30, 3712 Connecticut avenue, wife of Edward S. Tyler, possible internal injuries.

Mrs. Miriam A. Sonnemann, 33, of 2629 Connecticut avenue, possible fractured skull and ribs.

Less Seriously Injured.

Others injured are:

Miss Kathleen Conlon, 24, 2331 Cathedral avenue, a clerk in the office of the Sheet Metal Workers International Association, in the Transportation Building, abrasions to the left leg.

John Enrietto, 33, 3558 Stuyvesant street, a member of the firm of Hamel, Park & Saunders, attorneys, lacerations of the scalp.

P. J. J. Nicolaides, 38, 3914 McKinley street, Chevy Chase, member of the firm of Kelly & Nicolaides, attorneys, lacerated foot and scalp.

Tree Trunk Pierces Bus.

Judge Ralph Given's injuries kept him from the bench of Police Court yesterday.

At the impact the large Capitol Traction bus was knocked sideways, the rear end striking a tree. The tree trunk was driven into the body of the bus, and more than half of the right side of the vehicle was torn open. The seats inside were smashed and the passengers sitting on this side were those killed and injured. About five of the passengers sitting in other parts of the bus escaped injury, but were shaken up by the force of impact.

Passing motorists extricated the injured from the wreckage and private cars and cabs carried them to the Emergency Hospital, where Dr. Barry M. Kaufman, chief of the hospital medical staff, took personal direction of their treatment. Several doctors assisted him.

Rescue Worker Collapses.

Miss Virginia Wingfield, who aided in the rescue work, unmindful of her own injuries, collapsed on arrival at the Y. W. C. A., where she is employed. A lacerated lip and torn ankle did not stop her from calling the fire rescue squad and helping the injured out of the wreckage.

Leaving the scene to go to her work, she fell at the entrance of the Seventeenth and K streets building and was removed to her home, where she was given medical aid.

Mr. Williamson died on the operating table as physicians attempted an emergency operation. He had been employed in the rules committee since last December, when Representative Pou became chairman of the committee. Mr. Williamson for several years worked with the North Carolina State Highway Commission. He lived at 3220 Connecticut avenue.

Mr. Pettus was a member of the law firm of Colladay, McGarraghy, Pettus & Wallace for the last twelve years. Mr. Colladay, Republican national committeeman, arrived at the hospital when informed of the accident, and informed Mrs. Pettus.

Career of Mr. Pettus.

Born in Atlanta, Ga., November 18, 1888, Mr. Pettus received his early education in the public schools there. He came to Washington to accept a stenographic position here in the Government. He studied law at National University and received the bachelor and master degrees from the university. He did not begin to practice immediately, but remained for some time in the Government.

In 1920 he entered the law offices of Edward F. Colliday, beginning an extensive practice of law. He was admitted to practice in the District Supreme Court and the District Court of Appeals in 1913 and in 1922 was admitted to the United States Court of Claims.

He was a well-known authority on various phases of law, collaborating with Eugene A. Jones in the preparation of Elements of Equity Pleading, published in 1916. He was a member of the Board of Trade and the District and American Bar Associations.

Mr. Pettus was a former president of the Michigan Park Citizens Association, and an active member of the Baptist Church.

Police Activity to Increase.

He is survived by his widow, formerly, Mary L. McCall, of this city; a daughter, Marjorie, 15, and a son, Donald, 13; two brothers, E. W. Pettus, of Washington, and Leland Pettus, of Atlanta, Ga. Three sisters also survive him.

Acting Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown indicated yesterday that the entire personnel of the department would be instructed to give considerably more attention to the enforcement of traffic regulations as the result of the crash.

He said that particular caution would be observed in the carrying out of provisions of the traffic law with regard to the non-observance by motorists of light signals. The police head said that heavier vehicles would not be the subject of a particular drive.

Director of Traffic William A. Van Duzer yesterday indicated that no special survey would be undertaken in regard to the bus crash and the resulting deaths and injuries. No direct opinion to the circumstances leading to the accident would be expressed by the traffic head until a complete police investigation has been made.

However, the traffic head pointed out that the intersection at which the fatal crash occurred is one of those soon to be equipped with the flexible progressive system of traffic lights now in force on Rhode Island avenue east of Thirteenth street northwest. He said that this system would tend greatly to obviate such disasters.

The traffic head also said that control lights all over the city are being "hooded" to prevent motorists moving across the intersection before the light has changed all the way to green. This will prove a great factor in preventing accidents, Van Duzer believes.

3 IN BOWER KIDNAP CASE ARE CONVICTED

Verdict at Denver Trial Is Reached After 23 Hours; Leniency Recommended.

Denver, April 1 (A.P.).—A weary jury late today convicted three men of the abduction of Benjamin P. Bower, Denver bakery manager, on the night of January 19.

The jury, after more than 23 hours of deliberation, recommended leniency for the three defendants, Arthur M. Taylor, Joseph Pannell and George W. Reed. The maximum penalty for kidnaping in Colorado is seven years' imprisonment.

Mr. Bower was abducted from his home and held in a shack on the outskirts of Denver for five days. He was released after midnight on the fifth day, without payment of the $50,000 ransom demanded. All three men presented alibis to show they were attending a party at the time of the kidnaping.

Shortly after Mr. Bower's release Joseph Clinton Riley, a former convict, shot himself to death when police surrounded a house in which he had a room. Police learned later that Riley had been Mr. Bower's jailer.

The State sought to show in the trial, through the testimony of Mrs. Jessie Larkin, that Riley had given her information incriminating Taylor, Pannell and Reed in the kidnaping.

The jurors were reluctant to discuss their deliberations, although it was indicated by several that they took between 30 and 35 ballots.

The three defendants had nothing to say concerning their conviction. Questioned as they were being led back to the county jail, they refused to talk until they had consulted their lawyers.

The defense was given ten days to file motion for a new trial.

Dead County Treasurer Was Short $318,996

Paducah, Ky., April 1 (A.P.).—An audit of the accounts of the late James C. Utterback as treasurer of McCracken County, indicating a shortage of $318,996.22, was filed in fiscal court here today. The report listed a shortage of $187,196.22 in addition to $131,800 which is shown in his records as having been paid but for which the auditors said they found no evidence of payment.

Mr. Utterback drowned himself last fall shortly after the closing of the bank of which he was president.

an explanation of its nature for the reason that publicity would "hinder negotiations."

A house whose location was kept secret was under constant vigil by detectives in Philadelphia on the bare chance that information relayed to them by two Brooklyn private detectives might produce a break in the case.

Col. Schwarzkopf in his night bulletin said all agents carrying on investigations in the "vicinity of Washington and Baltimore" had returned empty-handed. They had been investigating information "surrounding several persons and a baby," he said, "but had found the latter's actions were "actually legitimate."

Brig. Gen. Godfrey, Indian Fighter, Dies

Retired Officer, Survivor of Custer Massacre, Succumbs at 88.

Brig. Gen. Edward Settle Godfrey, a veteran of the battle against the Indians at Little Big Horn, escaped the fate of Gen. Custer and his troop in that massacre by temporarily ignoring orders of his superior officer.

Guarding an advanced position after Custer and his force had been wiped out, he received orders to retreat when other troops were thrown back on his position. As the Indians were being heavily reinforced, Gen. Godfrey sensed the danger of a repetition of the Custer massacre. Disregarding the command, he covered the troops that retreated to his position, halted the Indians, finally drove them to cover, and then with his own men fell back.

VESTAL, G. O. P. WHIP IN HOUSE, DIES AT 57

Heart Ailment Proves Fatal to Representative From Indiana.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Albert H. Vestal, of Indiana, Republican whip and former chairman of the House patents and copyrights committee, died yesterday of a heart ailment at 57 years of age.

He was stricken while at work on the floor Tuesday afternoon with an artery closure, usually the result of overwork and continued nerve strain. He was sent to the Naval Hospital Wednesday morning and died there.

The House yesterday honored him in a manner fitting to one whose days have been devoted to keeping the legislative mill grinding productively. It continued its arduous and important labors on the tax bill.

Tribute to Vestal.

"We believe that if Mr. Vestal could be communicated with, he would say the welfare of the country should come first," said Representative Hawley (Republican) Oregon, ranking member of the ways and means committee, in explaining that no adjournment would be asked yesterday out of respect to Vestal's memory because of the pressing urgency of completing the tax bill. He explained, however, that such action would be asked later.

Vestal was elected to Congress in 1914. He was made Republican whip in 1925. Aside from his party duty of swinging his fellow Republicans into line on legislation, he was best known for his efforts in behalf of improved copyright and patent legislation. He was author of many legislative measures on those subjects.

Chairman Sirovich, of the House patents and copyrights committee, said the committee had sustained a "tremendous loss in the death of Representative Vestal" and that it would be "hard not to have the value of his experiences."

Other Eulogies.

Among others who spoke in eulogy of Vestal were Senators Watson, the Republican leader, and Robinson, of Indiana. The former was so grieved he could not make the closing speech on the tariff debate that he had planned yesterday.

Vestal was born on a farm in Madison County, Ind., one of the counties in his district at the time of his death. He was educated in country schools, worked in steel mills and factories to further his schooling. He was admitted to the bar at 21, upon his graduation from the law department of Valparaiso University. He served six years as prosecuting attorney and was engaged in private practice at Anderson, Ind., prior to his election to Congress.

The funeral will be at his Indiana home tomorrow afternoon.

A committee from Congress will attend the obsequies.

Mr. Vestal is survived by Mrs. Vestal; a daughter, Vivian, and a son, Ralph.

Uncertainty on Successor.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 1 (A.P.).—Some State officials were uncertain today whether the vacancy in Congress occasioned by the death today of Albert H. Vestal, of Anderson, may be filled, or whether the post remains vacant until the next election.

At the office of Attorney General James M. Ogden, it was pointed out, the Federal Constitution provides the governor may issue a special writ of election, but that he has no appointive power.

Dr. Charles E. Kettleborough, director of the legislative reference bureau said, however, it was his understanding there is no Indiana statute empowering the governor to call an election. He said he believed it has been the custom in Indiana to allow vacancies to rest until the next election.

At the end of the day after passage of the tax bill, Representative Purnell (Republican), Indiana, offered a resolution of regret at Vestal's death and the House adjourned out of respect to his memory.

Members to Attend Rites.

Speaker Garner named the following committee to represent the House at the funeral:

Wood, Purnell, Hogg, Republicans; Greenwood, Canfield, Boehne, Ludlow, Crowe, Gillen, Larrabee, Griswold and Pettengill, Democrats, all of Indiana; Burtness, of North Dakota; Woodruff, of Michigan; Englebright, of California; Chindblom, of Illinois, and Reed, of New York, Republicans, and Sirovich, of New York, Democrat.

The Senate also adopted a resolution of sorrow offered by Senator Watson.

Vice President Curtis appointed a committee of ten, headed by Watson and Robinson, both of Indiana, to represent the Senate at the funeral to be held tomorrow.

The delegation is composed of former members of the House who served with Vestal. The group includes Fess, Ohio; Sheppard, Texas; Dill, Washington; Patterson, Missouri; Barkley, Kentucky; Dickinson, Iowa; Connally, Texas; White, Maine, and Byrnes, South Carolina.

Morris Frey Rites To Be Held Today

Standard Oil Co. Official, Native of Washington, Will Be Buried Here.

Morris J. Frey, 49 years old, an assistant treasurer of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, and a member of the District bar, who died in New Jersey on Wednesday, will be brought here for burial today in Oak Hill Cemetery.

He was born in Washington and was graduated from the University of Virginia Law School. From 1904 to 1916 he practiced in the District. He then went to New York, where he became affiliated with the Guaranty Trust Co., and in 1924 he joined the Standard Oil Co.

He was a member of the Sigma Chi and Phi Delta Chi fraternities and the National Press and University Clubs of Washington. Surviving him are his sister, Miss May Virginia Frey, of 1405 Thirty-first street, Georgetown; his widow, Mrs. Ruth Frey, and a daughter, Ellen Virginia Frey.

FRAZER IS EXECUTED FOR STADER SLAYING

World War buddies of Frazer had sought clemency for him, but Gov. A. Harry Moore and the court of pardons refused to interfere.

Frazer, 31, was convicted of shooting Mrs. Stader in the back of the head with a .22-caliber rifle and then carrying her body about for several days in his automobile before he deposited it, stripped of all clothing, in the woods near Doswell, Va.

Frazer, who had been married thirteen years and who had two little daughters, aged 8 and 11, met Mrs. Stader, the wife of Philip Stader, at Rahway, where both families lived. They carried on a clandestine affair for two years until Mrs. Stader's husband left her and moved to South Amboy, N. J., and Mrs. Stader threatened to obtain a divorce.

Finally the war veteran urged Mrs. Stader to elope with him, and on February 16 they drove in his automobile to Walden, and Newburgh, N. Y. During the trip Mrs. Stader told Frazer, who previously had spent all of his $25,000 inheritance on her, that she was through with him. He agreed to take her back home.

Somewhere on the way back, at a point south of Ramsey, N. J., Frazer pulled the car over to the side of the road, got out and shot Mrs. Frazer, who was sleeping in the front seat. Frazer drove aimlessly about, then drove home and told his cousin, Ira L. Jansen, and his wife, what he had done.

Frazer then drove to Philadelphia with the body in the back of his car. He stopped there and wrote a letter to Mrs. Stader's sister, saying they were eloping to California. Then he proceeded to Washington, D. C., where he slept that night in his car with his murdered mistress. The next day he drove south to Doswell, Va., where he left the body in a field and burned Mrs. Stader's clothing to remove all marks of identification.

He drove on to Raleigh, N. C., where he registered in a rooming house under the name of H. G. Devlin. Later Jansen went to Raleigh and gave Frazer $200. On February 22 the body of Mrs. Stader was discovered. Three days later Frazer was arrested in the postoffice at Raleigh as he called for a letter under the name of Devlin.

He readily confessed shooting Mrs. Stader, but claimed it was an accident. But George F. Evans, a Walden, N. Y., sports dealer, testified that Frazer bought shells for his rifle from him just before he left with Mrs. Stader.

Miss Kier Directs Play By St. Stephen's Players

Miss Angela Keir will direct the St. Stephen's Dramatic Club in its presentation of a post-Lenten farce comedy, "Leave It to Me," written by Miss Keir. The play will be presented in the auditorium of the church tomorrow at 3 o'clock and on Monday and Tuesday evenings at 8:15 o'clock.

Most of the members of the cast have appeared in previous productions of the club, but there are a few new members who have been affiliated with other play groups. The members of the cast are: Paul Murphy, Gladine Wade, Violet Wachter, John Flanigan, Frank E. Harrington, jr., Felice Loyd, Bernard Folliard, Grace Sprucebank, Joseph Stanton, Eddie Chaput and Charles Parrott.

DR. J. V. FULLER, 42, HISTORIAN, IS DEAD

State Department Worker Also Was an Author and Editor.

Dr. Joseph Vincent Fuller, senior historian of the State Department and a writer and editor, died yesterday at Garfield Hospital. He was 42 years old.

Born in Knoxville, Tenn., Dr. Fuller was educated at Harvard College and at the universities of Paris and Berlin.

At the time of his death he was editing the diplomatic papers relating to the World War for publication in "Foreign Relations."

Before coming to Washington in 1925, Dr. Fuller taught modern European history at Harvard and the Universities of California and Wisconsin.

A veteran of the World War in which he served with the Seventy-sixth Division Headquarters and with the general staff, he was discharged with the rank of sergeant interpreter.

Dr. Fuller was the author of "Bismark's Diplomacy at Its Zenith" and of "Hamilton Fish" in "American Secretaries of State and their Diplomacy." He was a contributor to historical publications.

A member of the American Historical Association, the Cosmos Club and Phi Beta Kappa, he resided with his wife and daughter, Mrs. Lois Compton Fuller and Miss Joan Louise Fuller, at 1417 Buchanan street.

Funeral services will be held in Sacred Heart Church, at 9 o'clock Monday morning. Burial will be at Newcastle, Ind.

SALARY SLASH BILL NEARS HOUSE FIGHT

legislative supply bill, and the matter had been left to its discretion. The independent office bill already has been reported.

It is as a rider to the legislative bill that the House economy committee has said it will offer any pay-cut bill agreed upon by the group. Members have allowed the pay issue to sleep while they passed on to Government reorganization, but the sole member of the committee opposed to cuts made known last night that the issue is by no means dead.

Representative Byrns made clear that the legislative bill will contain no pay-cut provisions and that whatever salary rider is offered will be contingent on the ability of the economy committee to obtain a special rule from the rules committee.

Members of the special economy committee have been irritated by claims of pay-cut opponents that the reductionists were "licked," and even considered reporting out a bill this week, it was learned.

A joint delegation from the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Federation of Labor opposed to pay slashing yesterday conferred in the office of Representative William P. Connery, jr. (Democrat), Massichusetts.

Afterward Charles B. Jennings, Eastern Department commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, laid formal protests before Speaker Garner, House Democratic Leader Rainey, House Republican Leader Snell, and Appropriations Chairman Byrns.

"Federal salary reductions," he said, "are wrong in principle, and diametrically opposite to the often repeated declaration that the standard American living should not be reduced."

He said Government employes have been denied the increases to which they are entitled by reason of their earned efficiency ratings, and further, Government salaries have not been increased in harmony with increases received by those employed outside.

Secretary Frank Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor; Edward McGrady, legislative representative, and L. S. Roy, vice chairman of the national legislative committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, issued statements protesting against the threatened reductions.

Thomas F. Flaherty, secretary-treasurer of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, at the same time called on the United States Chamber of Commerce to make clear whether its request for Congress to cut expenses had salary-cut implications.

"It should particularize as to just what it means and not precipitate a wage-cutting movement that harms its own members and supporters," he said.

State Allows Suspension Of Alexandria Trolleys

Richmond, Va., April 1.—The Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Arlington Railway Co. was today authorized by the State Corporation Commission to suspend the operation of its electric railway service in the City of Alexandria and between Alexandria and Arlington Junction, effective April 10. Hearing on the company's application for suspension of the service was held recently, there being no opposition to the proposal.

Hearings Open Today On District Line Bill

Hearings on a bill for appointment of a commission to determine the District-Virginia boundary line will open at 10 o'clock this morning before the House District streets, avenues and traffic subcommittee.

Representative Howard W. Smith (Democrat), Virginia, author of the bill, and Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of Public Buildings and Public Parks, will testify.

J. W. ECHOLS BURIAL WILL BE IN FAIRFAX

Masonic Rites Are Likely to Be Held at Funeral of Former Publisher.

Funeral arrangements for John Warnock Echols, former supreme president of the American Protective Association, who died at his home at Vienna, Va., Thursday, had not been completed last night. Mr. Echols, who was 83, was once publisher of the Washington Republic during the '90s.

During his career Mr. Echols practiced law in several States, including the District of Columbia and Virginia. He was connected with Masonry since 1876. A large delegation from King Solomon Lodge, of this city, in February, 1926, visited Mr. Echols' Vienna home and presented him gifts and felicitations.

Born in Clarksville, Pa., in 1849, Mr. Echols was educated at Westminster College and Lafayette University. He came to Washington in 1896. During the administration of President McKinley he secured the attendance of the latter at the convention of the Scotch-Irish Society of America in Pittsburgh.

During the World War Mr. Echols served as librarian at several Army cantonments. He also served as a teacher of law in several vocational schools after the war.

He is survived by his widow and a son by a former marriage. Interment will take place in Fairfax Cemetery and services will probably be held at the home under the auspices of King Solomon Lodge, with which he had long been affiliated.

Girl Kills Self in Fiance's Room.

San Francisco, April 1 (A.P.).—Miss Helen Chapman, 21, Stanford University Medical School graduate, shot and killed herself here today in the apartment of her fiance, James A. Cary, 25, a student at the Stanford University Hospital. Friends of the girl told police she had been nervous and had complained that marriage "seemed so far away."

ROBERT J. O'CONOR DIES.

Fatal Illness of Phone Company Employe Followed Leg Injury.

Robert J. O'Conor, member of the legal department of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., in Washington since July, 1930, died at the home of his mother in Baltimore, Thuraday, according to a message received by telephone officials yesterday. Death came after a brief illness due to an injury to his leg while playing squash tennis.

Mr. O'Conor, who was 31 years old, was a native of Baltimore. He was graduated from Loyola College in 1924 and the University of Maryland in 1929 receiving the LL. B. degree from the latter institution. He was a member of the Maryland bar. He entered the service of the telephone company in Baltimore in December, 1924, and subsequently was collection supervisor, assistant manager, assistant general supervisor, and commercial measurement supervisor.

Besides his mother he is survived by three brothers: James P., John and William, and three sisters, Mrs. Vincent Fitzpatrick, Mrs. William Gentry and Mrs. Edgar H. Hamman, all of Baltimore.

Rum Is Seized in Raid On Los Angeles Club

Los Angeles, April 1 (A.P.).—The Cabrillo Club, located in the downtown district, was raided today by Federal prohibition agents, who confiscated 100 gallons of liquor, club furniture valued at $10,000 and arrested three men.

Until a few weeks ago, Aimee McPherson Hutton, the evangelist, and her husband, David Hutton, occupied a suite of rooms at the club. They left when she suffered a nervous breakdown, after a short residence.

Byers' Death Starts Inquiry Into Radium Water Cures

Notation on Dead Sportsman's Certificate Discloses He Drank Liquid for Last Two Years; Mayor Walker Admits Taking Similar Remedy.

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—The machinery of the Federal Trade Commission was turned to an investigation of "radium cures" today as a finding of "accidental death," with the added notation that he "drank radium water for the past two years," was made in the case of Eben MacBurney Byers.

Meanwhile Mayor Walker disclosed that for six months he had been using a radium energy apparatus designed to infuse water with radium energy. The apparatus was recommended to him, the mayor said, by friends who said it gave relief for neuritis and rheumatism. He said he did not know if it had benefited him, adding that the water produced by his machine was "entirely different" from that which is blamed for Byers' death.

William J. Bailey, of East Orange, N. J., who manufactured "Radiathor" until the product was discontinued after Federal Trade Commission hearings, asserted he did not believe the death of Byers, wealthy Pittsburgh iron manufacturer and internationally known sportsman, was caused by that product.

"I have drunk more radium water than any man alive," Mr. Bailey said, "and I have never suffered any ill effects." He said he quit manufacturing "Radiathor" because people quit buying it, rather than because of the Federal Trade Commission investigation. He asserted Mr. Byers had taken the water by direction of a Pittsburgh physician.

The finding of accidental death was placed on the Byers death certificate after an autopsy. The first certificate, filed last night, was refused by the bureau of vital statistics on the ground that the cause of death was improperly explained. R. J. Foley, assistant director of the bureau, said the certificate must explain specifically the use of radium which had resulted in poisoning.

Dr. Norris, in his finding, said the radium poisoning had led to necrosis of both jaws, anemia, a brain abscess and finally bronchial pneumonia.

Funeral services for Mr. Byers will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the home of a brother, J. F. Byers, in Sewickley, a suburb of Pittsburgh. I. Denison Lyons, a brother-in-law of Mr. Byers, arranged to take the body there tonight.

Mr. Lyons disclosed that Mr. Byers' illness started with an injury of his arms suffered in a fall from a sleeping car berth while returning from a Yale-Harvard football game five years ago.

30,000 VIE IN WORLD BRIDGE TOURNAMENT

Players in 35 Countries Are Embroiled in "Olympic" Culbertson Staged.

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—While detectives snooped around corners to try to spot those with advance knowledge of the sixteen "secret" hands, some 30,000 contract bridge players pitted their wits tonight against an entirely new antagonist—old man par.

It was the first "world bridge Olympic," conceived and staged by Ely Culbertson, the expert whose adeptness with the pasteboards is exceeded only by his flair for the spectacular.

Robert Murray, secretary of the Culbertsonian National Bridge League, placed the number of players at "between 30,000 and 33,000" and possibly more. They are scattered, said Mr. Murray, in all parts of the civilized world that contain a table and four chairs.

35 Countries Embroiled.

Statistically speaking, 35 countries are embroiled. There is a game in Calcutta, another in Bombay, another in Cairo. The dignified officers of the Army War College play in Washington, while their cousins of the Navy shuffle up in far-off Samoa.

There were 60 tables for charity in Sewickley, Pa., and the largest game of all was in Los Angeles, with 200 tables at the Ambassador Hotel.

It was, Mr. Murray concluded, one whale of a bridge game, and the best part is that all the players are ladies and gentlemen. That's the reason he added, the Culbertson entourage isn't greatly worried about the "leaks" that have brought a lot of publicity.

They've engaged detectives, true, to find out what Meany divulged the hands to unauthorized persons, but they are positive nobody woud take advantage of advance information.

"Par" Kept Secret.

Then, too, said Culbertson, the sixteen hands are so "beautifully subtle" that the average expert might study them for a week without knowing the "par" of their play, which, until 6 p. m. tomorrow will be locked in the secretive brains of the tournament committee, Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson, Theodore A. Lightner and Baron Waldemar von Zedtwitz.

In other words, if players bid grand slams tonight, and made them, it won't count, maybe, unless the committee has decided in advance that a grand slam ought to have been bid. There'll be no shooting at the moon in this Olympic—play is against "par" and the committee has decided what "par" should be.

It is estimated that about two months will be necessary to sift all the 30,000 scores and determine the international winners. There will be two platinum cups for the champion North and South pairs, and 350 silver cups for State, sectional and other winners. They are all, said Mr. Murray, quite expensive cups.

Montgomery Files Show Increased Transactions

An increase in the number of instruments filed over the same month in 1931 is shown in the report for March of Clayton K. Watkins, clerk of the Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md., released yesterday.

The report shows a total of 596 papers filed in March of this year, classified as follows: 197 deeds, 129 releases and mortgages, 93 trusts and 177 bills of sale.

Volunteer Firemen Are Hurt in Crash

Cabin John Pair Were Responding to False Alarm at Club.

Two Cabin John vounteer firemen were injured last night on the way to a false alarm near the Kenwood Country Club. They were taken to Georgetown University Hospital in the fire truck by Chief Thomas Sullivan, of Cabin John, and later went home.

The injured firemen, were James Ricketts, 34, and Charles C. Sponge, 40, both of Cabin John. They were riding in the former's car when it collided with another machine, the identity of the operator of which was not obtained.

Ricketts was treated for a sprained leg and Sponge for lacerations about the head.

OHIO'S $25,000,000 RELIEF PLAN PASSED

Measures Await Signature of Gov. White; Approval in Few Days Seen.

Columbus, Ohio, April 1 (A.P.).—Ohio's $25,000,000 relief program, sponsored by Gov. George White, was on his desk tonight and only awaited his signature to make it effective and operative. He will sign the four bills comprising the program early next week.

Another measure, extending to April 20, the final date for filing personal tax returns, was made effective this evening when the chief executive approved it with his signature. It not only extends the time for filing returns, but also extends the effective date on all immunities and penalties in connection with the law.

The Assembly completed final passage of all the bills early this morning, but they were not enrolled and signed by the presiding officer until sessions of both houses this afternoon. The House, with only a few members, held a perfunctory session for putting the finishing touches on the bills, but the Senate had other business to transact and held a regular session with a quorum present.

Woman, 68, Hurt; Taxi Driver Held

Takoma Park Resident Is Seriously Injured in Front of Home.

Mrs. Maggie Toler, 68 years old, of 127 Carroll avenue, Takoma Park, Md., was injured seriously last night when she was struck and knocked down in front of her home by a taxicab driven by Paul Stewart, 20 years old, of Takoma Park.

Stewart took the woman to the Washington Sanitarium and Hospital at Takoma Park where she was found to be suffering from a broken left leg, several broken ribs and probably internal injuries. Her condition was said to be serious.

The taxi driver then went to his home and took his parents with him to the Takoma Park Police Station where he surrendered himself to Town Policeman Frank Lane. The policeman haled him before Justice of the Peace Charles Griffith, at Silver Spring, Md., who held young Stewart on charges of reckless driving for action of the county police court. Bond was fixed at $500.

3 HELD IN KIDNAPING OF MARYLAND MAN

John T. Pressgrove Driven Around in Own Car and Beaten by Trio.

Three Negroes are being held at the Bethesda Md., substation, Montgomery County police, in connection with the kidnaping of and brutal assault on John T. Pressgrove, real estate salesman, of 35 Williams Lane, Chevy Chase, Md. One of the men has been identified by Mr. Pressgrove as the man who drove him around for nearly four hours in his own car.

Clifford Simpson, colored, Ken-Gar, Md., is the man identified by Mr. Pressgrove. He is charged with assault. The other two, Robert Hall and George Keith, both also of Ken-Gar, are being held for investigation in connection with the case.

The kidnaping took place last Saturday night, according to Mr. Pressgrove and police. The real estate man took his cook to her home in Ken-Gar, a colored settlement near Kensington, Saturday night about 6 o'clock and forced open a window for her when she discovered that she had lost her key. He then returned to his car where the three men were waiting for him.

They forced him to get into the front seat of his car and one of the men, whom he identifies as Simpson, climbed into the driver's seat. The other two men got into the rumble seat. They then drove off to a colored roadhouse near Burnt Mills, Md., and later to another place on the Seventh street pike. The men then drove Mr. Pressgrove into Washington and warned him against making any outcry. Once when he attempted to jump out, he was struck in the jaw by one of the men in the rumble seat.

They then drove out Connecticut avenue to the outskirts of Kensington where they turned into Saul road and skirted Kensington. Here the captive again attempted to jump out and was pulled back into the car with cuffs and blows. The car continued to a store in Ken-Gar, where the three men left their prisoner alone for the first time. He locked the car and attempted to escape on foot, but was captured.

The three men then beat him into unconsciousness and left him on the side of the road near Garrett Park. When he recovered consciousness early Sunday he staggered to the home of Eugene Raney nearby, and police of the Bethesda substation were called.

Sergt. Leroy Rodgers took charge of the search and Mr. Pressgrove was taken to his home where he was treated by Dr. Thomas K. Conrad, of Chevy Chase, Md. His face was a mass of black and blue bruises and he was confined to his home for several days.

The three colored men were arrested Sunday morning but later were released, only to be rearrested Thursday night by Sergt. Rodgers and Policeman E. R. Jones. Simpson was identified yesterday as one of the assailants and police believe they have enough evidence to convict the other two. The trio is scheduled to be arraigned in county police court at Rockville today.

Mr. Pressgrove is a salesman for Eaton & Co., local real estate firm, and is married. He is well known in Washington.

Bicentennial Addresses Feature Oxon Hill Rites

J. K. Knudson, of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission speaking staff, was the principal speaker at the dedication of five small evergreens yesterday at the Oxon Hill, Md., Consolidated School. J. Albert Miller, assistant superintendent of schools for Prince Georges County, also spoke.

Mrs. Rudolph S. Allen, president of the Prince Georges County Federation of Women's Clubs, and W. T. Jobe, principal of the school, made a few remarks. The assembled pupils and residents of the neighborhood, numbering nearly 500, joined in singing patriotic songs. The trees were dedicated as part of the George Washington Bicentennial endeavors of the school and community.

Engineers Decide To Extend Paving

Dredging Work to Stop in Eastern Branch at Bladensburg.

The street car right of way along part of Rhode Island avenue beyond Mount Rainier will be paved, but no further dredging work will be done in the Eastern Branch at Bladensburg, members of the State roads commission have decided after a personal inspection of both projects.

The recent rains which flooded a part of Bladensburg and washed across the Defense highway are phenomenal and occur only "once in a lifetime," Maj. H. D. Williar, jr., chief engineer of the commission, said. Proof of the effectiveness of the recent dredging work lies in the fact that the road was flooded at only one point, instead of at three, as formerly, he said.

Paving of the street car right of way will extend from Barney street to Hill street and Bunker Hill road, in Brentwood. In time, according to Maj. E. Brooke Lee, a member of the commission, the section will be paved all the way into Hyattsville. The paving project will cause the abandonment of an earlier proposal to add shoulders to Rhode Island avenue. Ultimate widening of the whole length of the extension is necessary because Rhode Island avenue is a link between a 40-foot and a 60-foot road, it was pointed out.

Traffic Accidents Drop Sharply in Alexandria

A marked drop in the number of traffic accidents in Alexandria is shown in the report for March of Capt. John S. Arnold, chief of the Alexandria police, there having been but 24 accidents during the month, in which 7 persons were injured and none killed.

The report also shows that of $3,184 of property reported stolen during the month, the police recovered all but $292, and also recovered $4,200 of property, consisting principally of motor cars, stolen in previous months, making a grand total of $7,092 worth of property recovered in March. The police made 289 arrests, or three less than in February. The leading offense was drunkenness, for which 74 were arrested; traffic offenses came next with 43, and prohibition violations next with 34.

ARLINGTON SCHOOLS IN NEED OF $65,742

County Board May Require $10,000 at Once to Pay Teachers for March.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Complying with the request of the Arlington County Board, Thomas N. DeLashmutt, chairman of the county school board, announced yesterday that a statement showing needs of schools to continue until the end of the term in June has been placed in the hands of County Treasurer Roy S. Braden. The board will need a total of $65,742.

The statement details the following: Teachers' salaries, $61,800; janitors, $8,190; maintenance of payroll, $850; power, light, fuel, telephones and water, $3,573; school nurse and dentist, $1,000; text books, janitors' supplies, pupils' supplies, $1,200; transportation of pupils, $175; insurance, $330; interest, $1,200; salary of school board, superintendent and expenses, $1,324; miscellaneous cost of operation, $600, making a total of $80,243, with $14,500 on hand.

While the school board is not asking at this time for a loan covering the total amount, it is understood it will need an immediate loan of $10,000 to meet the payroll of teachers for the month of March.

Dry Law Fines Show Decline.

Prohibition fines collected in March by Elliott F. Hoffman, clerk of the Alexandria courts, amounted to $1,292, as against $1,722.25 in February. He also collected $489.84 for suits, deeds and marriage licenses. Four hunting licenses were issued from January 1 to March 31, including two county and two State. A total of 62 marriage licenses were issued, which is unusually low.

William Colgate Left $1,000,000 to Charity

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—William Colgate, who died March 7, at the age of 91, left more than $1,000,000 to charitable organizations, his will filed today disclosed.

Specific requests included $150,000 to the Connecticut Junior Republic of Litchfield. Thirty per cent of the residue goes to Colgate University.

Salt Lake City, April 1 (A.P.).—Miss Charlene Scowcroft, "queen" of the annual engineers' week celebration at the University of Utah, was kidnaped by three youths today and held captive for about an hour.

Apparently frightened when she became slightly hysterical, they returned her to the university.

ing made by the corporation were leading to large losses to the Treasury or Government ownership of the carriers.

Meanwhile, the finance corporation advised the Senate that since February 2 it had authorized loans totaling $238,739,939 and had actually advanced $192,360,308. Borrowers have repaid $7,471,894, leaving $184,874,413 in loans outstanding.

Commenting upon the Baltimore & Ohio loan, the Interstate Commerce Commission said that consideration of the $1,000,000 should be "deferred pending further negotiations on the part of the applicant looking to additional private financing."

The commission raised the bank loan question last week when it reluctantly approved a loan of $12,800,000 to the Missouri Pacific Railroad. Of this sum $5,850,000 was to pay half of a group of bank loans held by three New York banking houses.

Bankers Criticized.

Approval of this part of the loan was given, the commission indicated, because the board of directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had adopted a resolution granting the loan on condition that the commission also approve it.

The resolution was adopted by the corporation the same day President Hoover called into conference officials of the corporation; Chairman B. H. Meyer, of the commission finance division, and fifteen railroad heads.

The commission criticized bankers who refused to renew railroad loans after profiting from such business in more prosperous times. It gained its point to the extent that the banks continued to carry half of the total amount of loans.

Road's Requests.

The road had asked money to pay a $500,000 note held by the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co. of New York, $250,000 note by the National City Bank of New York, and one for $250,000 by the First National Bank of Baltimore. All three loans are due April 26.

At the same time the commission authorized the Florida East Coast Railway Co. to borrow $918,375 from the Reconstruction Corporation.

The Florida East Coast is in receivership, and the loan, which would be for three years, was asked in the name of William R. Kenan, jr., and Scott M. Loftin, the receivers. The money is to be used to meet equipment trust certificates and interest thereon maturing during the period from March 1 to October 31.

11 in U. S. Finance Body Paid More Than Dawes

(United Press.)

Charles G. Dawes, head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, is paid less in his new job than eleven of his employes.

The first quarterly report of the corporation sent to Congress yesterday showed that Dawes is paid $833.33 a month, while the highest paid worker is O. H. Wolfe, manager of the Philadelphia Agency, who receives $1,333.33 monthly.

Others who receive high pay are:

M. G. Bogue, special counsel; George C. Holmberg, assistant to the directors; George Roberts, special counsel; Charles A. Miller, New York office, and H. M. Sims, Chicago office, $1,250 a month.

G. A. Marr, general counsel, $1,125 monthly; Hugh Leach, $1,083.33, and George R. Cooksey, secretary, $1,000 a month; S. S. Hathaway, New York office, and E. H. Watson, New York office, $1,000 a month.

The Couzens bill would set up a revolving fund of $400,000,000 in the Treasury out of which the Interstate Commerce Commission could make loans to the roads at 6 per cent interest.

All sections of the reconstruction corporation act relating to loans to railroads would be repealed.

Saturday, April 2, 1932.

A CHEAP CAPITAL.

The Detroit News, discussing the increase in the cost of the Federal Government, comparing figures for 1931 with those for 1916, says, "The District of Columbia is costing the Government $47,000,000 instead of $13,000,000." This is an excellent sample of the misinformation distributed throughout the country respecting the relation between the District and the Federal Government.

The facts, as given by the Budget Bureau, are these: For the fiscal year 1931 the cost of government in the District of Columbia, including all the multiplicity of activities which government implies, was $48,368,647, of which sum the Federal Treasury paid $9,712,033. For 1932 the budget for the District is $46,690,000, of which the Federal Treasury will pay $9,500,000.

The taxpayers of the District pay approximately five times more for the maintenance of the Capital than is paid by the Federal Government. Actually, they pay even more than this, since the Government's share is drawn from the Federal Treasury, into which the inhabitants of the District pay income taxes, &c., to a total exceeding that of any one of 27 States.

It is the Nation's Capital, but it is the people of the District who foot the bills. The Government dictates the kind of city Washington shall be, demanding that it be on a National Capital scale, but the burden has to be carried by a mere fraction of the Nation's population.

Thousands of persons, like the well-intentioned editor of the Detroit News, knowing no better, assume that, of course, the national Government maintains the national city. The assumption is entirely erroneous. As matters stand, the people of the District are involuntarily endowing a phase of Federal operation over which they have not the slightest control. The Government is taking advantage of the residents of the District. It pays no taxes on its own land and buildings in the District; it has free water, automobile tags and fire and police protection; it enjoys all the facilities of a modern municipality which it forces the people to develop; it profits by all growth and expansion in the District. Through its exactions upon local taxpayers the United States has the least expensive seat of government in the world.

A rank inequity prevails. What would be the best solution? The answer is obvious: A return to the 50-50 ratio which Congress in 1878, after years of study of the problem, established. Under this arrangement the Government paid one-half of the costs of maintaining and developing the Capital; the people, recognizing certain advantages in their proximity to the Federal center, cheerfully paid the other half. This rule was satisfactory until 1924, when the 60-40 substitute was initiated, only to give place to the present scheme under which the Government pays a fixed and arbitrary sum of $9,500,000 or about one-fifth of the total.

The people of the District are not grasping or mean-spirited. They are proud of the beauty and grandeur of Washington and glad to contribute to it. But they do object to paying four-fifths of the cost of the National Capital.

BRITAIN'S WHEAT SUBSIDY.

The impossibility of making practical application of the experience of one nation, in most matters, to the needs of another is abundantly illustrated in the differences that exist between England and the United States. This country, with an oversupply of foodstuffs, but with a market capable of consuming all its other products, is the antithesis of England. There a staggering unfavorable balance of trade confronts a nation that has lost its monopoly of manufactured exports, which once sufficed to warrant the necessary heavy imports of food.

America is worried about heavy surpluses of grain; England is preparing to grant heavy bounties in an endeavor to bring the production of wheat up to 15 per cent of the national needs. A few generations ago England's bread was supplied by her own wheat fields, but the flood of cheap grain from the United States and Canada and the factory demand for labor turned the fields into permanent grass. But as pastures they have failed to provide the country's requirements for dairy products.

The cheap loaf is such a symbol in England that even the courageous administration now in power did not dare impose a duty on wheat, yet the new law providing a wheat bounty for farmers probably will result with even greater certainty in adding a boid penny to every purchase of bread. The project for an omnipotent wheat board to rule imports and prices was defeated. In its place a marketing act has been adopted which enables a majority of the farmers of a district to form a cooperative marketing association and force the minority to join.

A project to require the use of 15 per cent of English wheat in all flour was found impracticable, largely because the principal wheat-raising districts are on the eastern side of the island, while all the great flouring mills are near the western ports of entry for grain from America, and rail transportation for wheat across England is more costly than ocean shipment from Canada and the United States. The alternative is a subsidy to be paid to farmers for wheat, not exceeding 15 per cent of the nation's needs. This subsidy would amount to about two-thirds the present price of wheat. The fund for this bounty will be supplied by the millers, who will contribute to a levy on all imported wheat and flour.

Although this arrangement makes it appear that there is no "tax" on food, the effect will, of course, be the same, since the miller will pass on his burden to the baker, and the baker to the housewife. However, in the general rise of prices following cheap money and tariffs it is thought the increase may pass unnoticed. The wheat subsidy is, in fact, a mere dole to farmers. Sentiment has defied economics, but it may do something to arrest the decay of the English village and farm.

ASSAULTING THE DOLLAR.

Few citizens have taken the trouble to inquire into the details of the magic formula by which Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, and Representative Patman, of Texas, proposed to restore the country to prosperity. At the beginning of their fantastic campaign they talked merely of paying the soldiers' bonus in cash. But the plan has been steadily magnified until now it is passed out to the public as a solution for all the country's economic ills. Hence, the method becomes more important than the bonus itself.

In simple language, Senator Thomas proposes to raise $2,200,000,000 for veterans by debauching the dollar. He observes that the United States has $4,300,000,000 in gold. "We have enough gold in the Treasury and the Federal Reserve system," he told the Senate, "to stand behind $10,000,000,000 in currency." Why should the Treasury insist on maintaining one dollar in gold behind every dollar in gold certificates? Set the printing presses to working. Let the volume of currency be doubled so that the people will have twice as much money worth half its present value.

Senator Thomas would not let the printing presses run wild indefinitely. He would retain 40 cents in gold behind every paper dollar, allowing the balance to be "made up by veterans' bonus certificates." Thus the veterans would be paid—out of nothing—and the country would regain its prosperity by a debt to veterans. This type of reasoning naturally goes over the heads of ordinary citizens. But to the financial geniuses behind the soldiers' bonus it is simple arithmetic.

In reality the Thomas-Patman scheme is a raid on the dollar. They wish to pay an obligation that will not be due until 1945 and to reduce all other obligations by cheapening currency. Veterans would receive full payment of their bonus certificates in theory only. As a matter of fact, the money handed to them would be worth only about three-fifths of what the Government has promised to pay, because the value of the dollar would dwindle as soon as its backing in gold was withdrawn.

The public will not be deceived by this nonsense. It is everywhere recognized that the "prosperity" angle of the argument has been invented solely to cover up the infamy of such a Treasury raid at this critical time. Regardless of how it might be financed, payment of the bonus at present would be a staggering blow to the entire country. Politicians may cleverly invent $2,200,000,000 on paper, but the Treasury can obtain money only from the pockets of the people. No amount of sugar-coating can conceal from an apprehensive public the elements of disaster that are involved in this movement.

The idea of debauching the dollar to confer a special favor upon an organized group of voters just before the general election is so offensive to the people that Congress would be insane to pass it. Every vote for the bonus is a vote against the people, a vote for a Treasury deficit and further depression.

DEATH BUSES.

To provide Washington with an object lesson in the danger of reckless driving two men yesterday had to die. The accident at Rhode Island avenue and Seventeenth street was the fruit of utterly ruthless disregard for human life.

Buses and trucks tear through the streets of the Capital as though they were the only vehicles on the road. The operators are fatalists in a double sense. It is a waste of time to argue with them. They take advantage of the fact that their huge vehicles will usually smash anything that collides with them. But when bus meets bus, there is blood and death.

The severest punishment should be dealt out to bus and truck drivers who rush the lights. They are agents of destruction. A bus is at best a Juggernaut in the city streets. Not one thoroughfare in fifty was ever intended to accommodate such huge and ungainly vehicles. Their bulk calls for extra strict control and extra rigorous supervision.

MAKING FIGURES LIE.

Senator George inserted in the Congressional Record a lengthy article with a table of statistics purporting to show that the tariff has been of only meager benefit to agriculture. The fact that these data were prepared by the Fair Tariff League puts them in the propaganda class. Nevertheless, it is amusing to note the arguments used to discredit the agricultural tariff.

Duties on farm products are condemned because they saved the farmer only $365,600,000, according to the Tariff League's figures. Farmers who are struggling to make both ends meet during the depression may consider that a considerable sum, in spite of the league's sarcasm. It should be noted, however, that these figures are based on 1930 prices. The "Fair" Tariff League should be reminded that the Smoot-Hawley act was effective during only half of that year. Why does not the league use the figures for 1931?

A test of the accuracy of the league's calculation will be enlightening. The Smoot-Hawley act is given credit for saving $17,600,000 to American wheat growers. At present a representative grade of wheat is selling in Minneapolis at 67 cents per bushel. The same grade sells in Winnipeg for 46 cents, the difference of 21 cents per bushel representing tariff protection. Wheat prices remain consistently higher in the United States than in Canada. At the present prices the tariff will put about $190,000,000 into the pockets of wheat growers this year. If the "Fair" Tariff League is as inaccurate in calculating all of its items as in this case the total which it credits the tariff with having saved to the farmer should be multiplied by eleven.

As a matter of fact, the Smoot-Hawley act has given a larger degree of protection to agriculture than to any other industry. Its enactment brought about an immediate decline in the importation of farm products that compete with American crops. On the other hand, agricultural exports have not been seriously curtailed in volume. Cotton, America's foremost item of export, is now moving abroad in greater volume than during any comparable period since 1927. Prices of most agricultural commodities have been depressed, but the world market continues open. At the same time, unfair foreign competition in the American market has been virtually eliminated.

Presumably the Fair Tariff League expects agricultural duties to protect farmers from competition among themselves. In cases where vast surpluses are produced the tariff can not be of much service to growers. Farmers who run counter to the advice of the Farm Board and the Department of Agriculture to reduce their acreage of staple crops can not expect to reap the full advantages of tariff protection. Those who produce for the American market, keeping their output within reasonable balance with the domestic demand, will not be confused by any misleading propaganda on tariff protection, even though it is dignified by publication in the Congressional Record.

A BIG LAND GRAB

By CHARLES LATHROP PACK,
President American Tree Association.

Threatening to wipe out the Nation's work of the last 30 years in forestry and to loot the Government of millions of dollars' worth of national forest land, pending legislation in the shape of the Evans bill holds great possibilities for a gigantic land grab.

The Evans bill contemplates dictating the destiny of more than 300,000,000 acres of publicly owned land and places at the absolute mercy of twelve semipolitically appointed boards more than 160,000,000 acres of national forests within twelve Western States. This forest land is an area greater than the New England States, New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia. For a generation these national forests have served as the background for the forest movement in America. They have been built up slowly at great labor and expense into potentially valuable properties of incalculable importance to the Nation. Now all this is jeopardized.

Should the Evans bill become a law boards of five men each will sit in twelve Western States with full power to decide whether or not national forest lands shall remain as properties of the Nation or shall be given into the custody of the States within whose boundaries they exist. The States are South Dakota, Wyoming, Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico, Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada and Utah.

Under the proposed legislation the powers of these boards are absolute. Their decision is final. They need no approval, either by the Congress or by the President. They need hold no hearings. They need account to no one either for what they do or how they do it. The boards may, if they wish, hold their proceedings in absolute secrecy, and in any and all cases what they decide becomes effective. Never since the days of unsavory memory following the Civil War has there been a proposal that could better lend itself to debauching the national wealth.

Every conservationist and the public as a whole will concede the entire reasonableness of returning to the several States the lands of the public domain that have not been reserved for any national purpose, but to make it possible to deliberately scrap the entire national forest system, undo a generation's labor and place again at the disposal of politicians millions of dollars' worth of national resources amounts to looting on a gigantic scale.

The Evans bill proposes to set up, in each of the twelve Western national forest States, a board of five men, consisting of two men appointed by the State, one by the Department of the Interior, one by the Department of Agriculture and the fifth by the President. This, on the face of it, would seem to insure the equities of the Federal Government and is well calculated to disarm suspicion.

Again, under the proposed legislation, the work of these boards involves the passing upon hundreds of millions of acres and deciding upon their desirability for forest purposes, for recreation, national defense and for a number of other purposes—this colossal task to be performed intelligently by five men in each State within the short term of one year. The absurdity of even hoping that such work can be done with any reasonable care may be emphasized by the fact that it took ten years of vigorous work, aided by the entire personnel of the Forest Service, to classify the lands in the national forests alone. Yet this is only a portion of the task that is proposed for these twelve boards to accomplish within a year's time and without provision for investigation of any kind.

Thus the fate of the entire forestry conservation movement is to be decided within 365 short days by these boards. The national forests, if the boards so decide, may be torn apart and dismembered, and the millions of dollars that represent their worth given over to twelve—presumably—duly appreciative States.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

AT HER WEDDING.

I came across 'em, by the stair,
Those two old women simpering there,
Sniffling, as if they both had colds,
And were a pair of 9-year-olds.
"What's wrong," said I, "and why the tears?
You've thought about this day for years,
And now it's come, why cry this way?
Remember, it's her wedding day!"

"I know," said Aunt Eliza, "I
Know very well I shouldn't cry,
But——" here the other aunt began,
"You can't explain it to a man,
Nor can you possibly reveal
The dreadful things we women feel.
Men think a wedding should be gay,
And so they never cry this way!"

"Oh, bawl your heads off!" I replied,
"I'm on my way to kiss the bride,"
And left that funny red-nosed pair
Still sorrowfully sniffling there.
But at her door, I seemed to note
A curious tightening round my throat,
And had to stop, to my surprise,
To wipe some tear drops from my eyes.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY dear Louise: The world has come a long way since little girls were required to sit primly upright in straight-back chairs with their hands folded in their laps, but it hasn't outgrown its respect for dignity.

"Dignity" is an old-fashiond word seldom used by this generation. It seems to have no place in an era of jazz dancing, hip flasks and exposed legs. But the quality called "modernism" hasn't changed the old standards, and a flippant and cynical age still pays unconscious tribute to men and institutions that do no clowning.

That sounds too preachy, but I don't know how else to say it. Here's what I mean. For all their ridicule of ancient ways, people still have a decent sense of the fitness of things. Despite a preacher who makes his pulpit a vaudeville stage. They expect the guests at a church wedding to behave with decent decorum. They are shocked, as their elders were, when anybody makes an unholy show of himself. In short, they still require and respect dignity where dignity is due.

A few years ago a candidate for the Presidency—a man of uncommon ability and great personal charm—lost millions of votes because the rakish tip of his hat and the jaunty upward tilt of his cigar made him seem less dignified than a President should be. The people can forgive stupidity, but they can't forgive lack of dignity.

A certain popular magazine, striving almost pathetically to gain the advertising patronage justified by its circulation, looks in vain for an explanation of its failure. To an outsider the explanation is obvious. The magazine lacks dignity. It is popular, but it isn't respected.

Do you wonder what all of that has to do with you?

Only this, my dear. The world judges girls as it judges candidates and magazines. Being willing to do anything once may win the applause of shallow-pates, but the part of the world that matters won't respect you unless you seem to respect yourself.

Don't misunderstand. I'm not suggesting that you be prim and prissy. There is a time for whoopee and a time for nonsense. But the place for clowns is at the circus, and the world doesn't like them elsewhere. Love,

DAD.

Skulking Behind Hoover.

Springfield Republican.

With the Government's finances in a condition so vulnerable that the bewildered outside world wonders if a culminating crash is still to come in the United States, paying the veterans $2,000,000,000 at this time to liquidate their adjusted compensation claims would seem like madness. It will not be done. That majorities in both House and Senate may vote for such impossible legislation is true, yet numerous representatives and senators seeking reelection this fall must pray for an executive veto to balk their own support of the bonus bill. They will thus avoid offending their war veteran constituents, while the veto protects the credit of the Government. The danger is probably remote that a veto could be overridden by a two-thirds majority in both House and Senate at a session when balancing the budget has assumed overshadowing dimensions as a major issue.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

Senator Vandenberg, a Republican from Michigan, has tacked an appropriate label onto that group of Democrats in Congress who vote for specific tariff rates which affect the interests of their constituents, but who denounce with fire and fury the "Republican" policy of tariff protection. "Hitch-hikers," the gentleman from Michigan dubs this considerable group. "They attach themselves to a Republican measure," he declares, "to get protection for their own products, and then thunder at the bill as a whole."

"Hitch-hikers," he adds, "always are dangerous passengers, liable to assault you, sue for damages and contribute nothing but their dead weight." Unsavory as the comparison is, the Democrats whom Senator Vandenberg assails have laid themselves open to just such an attack.

Al No Stickler.

Detroit News.

We didn't get the impression, as some did, that Al Smith would accept the nomination only if it was on a silver platter. If it were on an ash tray we think he could forgive it.

An Alleged Platform.

St. Louis Post Dispatch.

In examining the credo of the Democratic party of Missouri, we observe it firmly approves of Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe, Andrew Jackson, Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson; it sternly renounces the Republican party and all its works; it recalls "with pride" the golden eras in our past history when the Democratic party was in control; it is confident that the Democrats will be returned to power in November; finally, it lauds James A. Reed as an enemy of sham and pretense and as as a follower in the footsteps of George Washington and the aforesaid Jefferson and Monroe.

In short, the Democratic platform is a string of weary and shopworn platitudes that have been worked overtime in every party platform for the last half century. There is not a line or a syllable in the document that would give the historian of the future, to say nothing of the voter of the present, the slightest clew as to the philosophy, aims or aspirations of the party. The platform ignores every single issue before the country, its framers apparently not deeming it necessary to pin the party to any definite program in view of their cocky self-confidence that a victory looms in November.

The platform is a disgrace to the names of the great statesmen which it frivolously invokes, and an insult to the voting public. The latter must conclude that the Democratic party of Missouri stands for only one thing, namely, to obtain a place at the national pie counter for its henchmen.

Fixing the Blame.

Los Angeles Times.

Blame for the Lindbergh kidnaping having been laid by the wets at the door of prohibition, we shall not be surprised if the devastating storms in the South and Midwest are not attributed to unnaturally dry conditions.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

A Sightless Reader Protests Against Discrimination in Proposed Old-Age Pension Law.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to protest, through your columns, against a section of the speech broadcast by Hon. Hamilton Fish, of New York, over WMAL. I am a sightless man and enjoy listening in on local radio hours when my professional duties leave me the time free.

I will quote excerpts from the congressman's speech, as follows:

"The time has come for Congress to study the ways and means of obtaining uniform old-age pension laws. * * * It is preferable to maintain the aged poor in their own homes or in those of their families or friends, rather than to commit them to poorhouses. The exception to this proposal for home aid is that the blinded, crippled, diseased and insane should be sent to State institutions specifically designed to care for those unfortunates and where they would receive better attention and medical treatment than at home."

I feel that every fair-minded citizen in this country, sighted or unsighted, will agree with me that the honorable gentleman has drawn a wonderfully vivid picture of a place to which he wishes to consign people who are absolutely healthy and fully capable of doing everything that any one on earth can do, except to read ink print. It is such remarks as these used by the learned gentleman that keeps the sightless man in a position to suffer the insults with which he is constantly bombarded by a mentally blind public.

The so-called "blind" man is usually stronger physically and mentally than the sighted man. He has lost one sense and the others are strengthened; his mind is more keenly alert; his thought perception, his judgment of character far surpasses the sighted man of the same status in life. There are many brilliant sightless people in this country, fully capable of any important position in which a man or woman may be placed.

A Critic Replies to Representative Rankin on Soldiers' Bonus Proposition.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Representative Rankin, who bolted the leadership of his party and voted against the sales tax bill, has now gone a step further and bolted the consensus of the American people by asserting that a soldiers' bonus bill will be passed over the President's veto. His logic in ascribing a motive for the veto of such a bill is on a par with some of the absurd arguements presented against the sales tax bill. For instance, witness his statement:

"We knew it (the bonus bill) would never get the approval of his (the President's) billion dollar Cabinet. We knew the international bankers were opposed to it."

Such nonsensical assertions as these might be tolerated if made in the heat of a political campaign by a candidate whose back was against the wall and who had no constructive issues to offer and very little hope of being elected. At such a time a politician may be expected to reach out with this and that statement in the hope that something he may say will find a responsive chord.

Witness the further assertion that the payment of the certificates at this time would benefit economic conditions generally. The same assertions were broadcast more than a year ago when over a billion dollars was made available to the veterans over the President's veto. Of course few people believed that statement then, and the increased deficit and continued depression are silent witnesses which completely refute the statements then made and should be a sufficient warning against any further drain of the resources of the country at this time such as the bill referred to would certainly entail.

While such a serious menace to the country as the full payment of the soldiers' bonus would precipitate at this time should be dealt with in a nonpartisan manner and promptly defeated, if such a bill should be passed by the House the blame for it will rightly hang on the Democratic party in power there. If this is done the Democratic party might as well abandon its plan for holding a national convention in June, for the party will be doomed to overwhelming defeat in November. Speaker Garner, who has turned the tide in the House in enacting a revenue bill by taking the floor and pleading for unity and support, will win the plaudit of a grateful nation if he repeats this performance and urges the defeat of any bonus bill at this time.

VIRGINIA DEMOCRAT.

Enlist Brains, Says Massachusetts Correspondent, to Solve National Problems.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Detroit Free Press, some months ago, commented on the political situation in America as follows: "The ease with which the best political minds of Great Britain can get together and submerge partizanship, in face of a crisis, ought not to pass unnoticed in Washington."

We are reaping a harvest of stupendous ignorance of the cure for a tense situation. Instead of sending the best brains and efficiency of the country to Congress, the first requisite we ask is will you vote for booze? Three capable Massachusetts congressmen have been asked to resign because they refuse to believe the country can be pulled out of a hole with a corkscrew.

There will be no relief to our depression till the country wakes up to the need of enlisting the political capables of the country, the clear thinkers of each party, whose first test will be as to his Lincoln-like common sense and all-round ability to meet a terrible situation.

SOCIETY

Mrs. Hoover Has Guests at Society Circus Which Is Attended by Notable Throng, Numbering 800 in Riding Hall.

MRS. HOOVER OCCUPIED a box at the opening performance of the Society Circus at Fort Myer yesterday afternoon. The proceeds of the circus this year will go toward the unemployment fund of the District of Columbia. Mrs. Hoover had with her Miss Emma Martin, of New York; Miss Gwen Martin, of Philadelphia, who are guests at the White House; Mrs. Stark McMullin, Miss Doris Goss, Col. Campbell Hodges, Mr. Phillip Fell and Mr. Cuthbert Train.

Mrs. Hoover wore a simple black suit and a small black hat of straw and felt. The collar of the suit was trimmed with a narrow band of black and white fur. A crowd, numbering about 800, assembled in the riding hall, attractively decorated with the flags of all nations, to witness the entertainment.

Noted among the spectators were the Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, who had come to see their young daughter, Patricia, ride in one of the events. With them in their box was little Ruth Hurley. Mrs. Hurley wore a smart navy blue costume, with a small modish hat of matching straw. To complete the ensemble, she wore a sable scarf.

Others present were Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, Representative and Mrs. Clarence Hancock, who had several guests with them in their box; Maj. Gen. John L. Chamberlin, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Robert U. Patterson, Mrs. E. St. John Greble, wife of the late Brig. Gen. Greble; Rear Admiral Charles L. Hussey, retired, and Mrs. Hussey; Brig. Gen. William E. Horton; Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, Col. and Mrs. H. L. Cavanaugh, Col. Charles A. Mortimer, retired; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carpenter, Mrs. Keith Merrill, Mrs. Grosvenor Backus, Mrs. Newbold Noyes, Mr. P. Lee Jones, Mr. Robert Hinckley, Col. Allan Rodgers, Mr. and Mrs. Cary Langhorne, who had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. O. H. P. Johnson, Mrs. McClellan Ritter and Mr. Griffith Warfield; Mrs. Charles Yandes Wheeler and Miss Virginia Harris.

HOME-MAKERS LAUD FOOD PAGE OF POST

New Recipe Helpful Suggestions Says One Keeping House 40 Years.

More and more the value to the home maker of the Saturday Food Page of The Washington Post is acknowledged in letters received from readers of the page.

The following is a specimen of the kindly interest taken in this effort to assist home makers in these trying days in ways and means of menu planning:

Dear Editor: I am interested in the Saturday Food Page in The Post, and that is the first thing I look for when the paper comes to my home Saturday morning.

I have been keeping house and planning menus for my family for more than 40 years, but am as alert in watching for new recipes and helpful suggestions as I have ever been.

I am inclosing a recipe for butterscotch sticks which I would like to enter. Very sincerely yours,

MRS. HENRY F. HARMON.
13 Cleveland avenue, Takoma Park, D. C.

CRANBERRY MUFFINS.
(Awarded Book Prize.)

Cream ¼ cup crisco, add ½ cup sugar, beat 2 Sanico egg yolks and add:

Then sift 2¾ cups self-rising Washington flour and ½ teaspoonful of salt.

Mix flour and salt with ½ cup Eatmore cranberries, coarsely chopped, add this to the first mixture alternately with 1 cup of sweet milk. Fold in 2 egg whites, beaten stiffly.

Bake 20 to 25 minutes in a moderate oven. MRS. FRED B. SINSEL.

Recipes Necessary for Week-End Menus

HOW nice that spring is in the offing at last—and how nice to know that soon our Sundays will be spent for the most part out of doors, in the country, with a picnic basket tucked away in place of a Sunday dinner table spread for the family.

However, this is still a "table meal" which we planned yesterday for tomorrow, so no picnic details today. Instead, a request recipe or two for column friends.

Braised Shoulder of Veal With Stuffed Tomato Cups.

Dredge the inside of a boned shoulder of veal with salt and pepper. Rub with onion, roll and tie. Cut as many 2-inch slices as desired, reserving any left-overs to use in other ways. Lard with thin strips of bacon and sear on all sides in bacon drippings. Add a cupful of boiling stock, cover and cook in a slow oven until tender. Turn once and add more liquid if necessary. Uncover and brown in a quick oven, basting with the liquor in the pan. Arrange on a hot platter with a border of alternate mounds of finely cut stringbeans and stuffed tomatoes. Select six firm, medium-sized tomatoes, scoop out the centers, drain and sprinkle with salt. Fill with a stuffing of the tomato pulp, one-half a green pepper chopped fine, one-half teaspoonful of grated onion and one-quarter pound chopped mushrooms, sauteed in two tablespoonfuls of butter and mixed with three-quarters of a cupful buttered crumbs. Season to taste and bake in a greased baking dish for about 25 minutes.

Coleslaw.

Mix together three teaspoonfuls of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt and one-half teaspoonful of mustard. Add a dash of red pepper. Place in double boiler and add an egg, slightly beaten. Mix thoroughly and add 4 tablespoonfuls of hot milk and 1 tablespoonful of butter. Cook until mixture thickens, then remove from the fire and stir in gradually 2 tablespoonfuls of hot vinegar. Strain and pour the mixture over 3 cupfuls of shredded cabbage.

Strawberry Shortcake.

Wash, remove the stems and crush a quart of fresh berries. Add two-thirds of a cupful of sugar and allow to stand in refrigerator for at least two hours. Blend one cupful of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two tablespoonfuls of butter and add enough milk to make a dough that may easily be handled. Pat into little biscuits or cut out with a biscuit cutter. Put one on top of another, so that each individual shortcake has two layers, and bake in a hot oven about twelve minutes, or until nicely browned. Split across and put the crushed strawberries between and on top. Cover with whipped cream and serve at once. The shortcake may be buttered when it comes from the oven before being put together again with the berries.

Cottage Pie.
(For Mrs. W. Gishell.)

2 cupfuls cooked meat, diced
1 cupful cooked peas
2 cupfuls mashed potatoes
1 cupful gravy or sauce
3 teaspoonfuls grated onion

Combine peas, diced meat, onion and gravy. Pour into a casserole and cover with mashed potato. Brush potato with melted butter or slightly beaten egg. Bake in moderate oven until nicely browned.

Chocolate Meringue.
(For D. Young.)

3 egg whites
3 tablespoonfuls grated chocolate
4 tablespoonfuls sugar

Beat the egg whites stiff and gradually add the sugar and chocolate, beating all the while. Drop from tip of spoon onto buttered paper and bake in a slow oven three or four minutes.

APPLE MUFFINS WINS POST AWARD

Formula Submitted by Mrs. D. B. Zimmer Makes Attractive Recipe.

This week's Post $5 award was won by a recipe for apple muffins. The formula was submitted by Mrs. D. B. Zimmer, of 802 Philadelphia avenue, Silver Spring, Md.

This oven product should make a delightful and tasty addition to any meal.

To be eligible for the weekly recipe awards, formulas sent to The Post should use some of the products advertised on the paper's Saturday food page.

Mrs. Zimmer's winning recipe follows:

2 cups Washington Self-Rising Flour
1 cup milk
1 egg
¼ cup Land o' Lakes melted butter
1 cup chopped apples
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Sift, then measure, the flour; beat egg, add milk, then add to flour; beat until smooth, then add melted butter. To the chopped apples add sugar and cinnamon, mix and add to muffin batter; fold in thorough and bake in muffin tins in a hot oven about 25 minutes. Delicious for breakfast or luncheon. MRS. D. B. ZIMMER.
802 Philadelphia avenue, Silver Spring, Md.

Chocolate Date Cookies.

1½ cups brown sugar (sifted
¾ cup butter
4 tablespoons cocoa
2 eggs
2½ cups flour
1 teaspoon soda in ½ cup hot water
Pinch salt and cloves
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped nut meats
2 cups chopped dates

Sift flour once, measure and add salt, cocoa and cloves. Sift three times. Cream butter, add the sugar gradually and cream again until light and fluffy. Add eggs, nuts, vanilla and dates. Then add flour and soda mixture alternately in small amounts. Drop by teaspoons on greased cookie sheets and bake 15 to 20 minutes.

Pineapple, Grapefruit Shortcake.

Boil three-fourths cup canned pineapple syrup and three-fourths cup canned grapefruit syrup with two tablespoons sugar five minutes. Cool, add fruit and serve on hot, rich baking powder biscuits, split and buttered. This makes enough to serve eight.

Will Preach in Suitland.

The Rev. W. M. LaRoche, pastor of the Suitland Christian Church, will preach tomorrow morning on "The Ever Living Christ."

OUR DAILY FOOD

By COLONEL GOODBODY

Cereal Grains the World Around.

IT'S interesting to consider how the various grains are used in different parts of the country. Down South, spoonbread and beaten biscuits and other hot breads are the thing. In New England, Johnny cake is popular. In Pennsylvania, scrapple, combining corn meal and pork, is a delicious breakfast dish.

All over the country we use grains in bread, in griddle cakes and waffles, in pies with flaky crusts and in a hundred kinds of cakes.

Or we might take a trip around the world and see how grain products are used in other countries—Yorkshire puddings with England's roast beef; Scotch oatmeal and barley soup; hardtack or health bread in the Scandinavian countries. Then, in Russia, you'd find the black bread, eaten with soup; in Germany, sour rye bread; in Spain, chicken and rice; in Italy, spaghetti; in India, rice with meat and a sauce of curry powder; in Japan, rice and raw fish; in Java, the famous rice taffel, which includes meat, fish and eggs; and in China—practically nothing but rice.

At one time, people believed that certain grains were better than others, but now we know that it's largely a matter of taste—whether you prefer wheat or corn, oats, or barley or rice.

And the same is pretty much true of whole grain products and refined products. To be sure, the whole grain contains more vitamins, more mineral salts and more roughage than the refined products. But most of us have a diet so varied that we needn't worry over the constituents of each food. Of course, when the diet is made up of grain, and little else, as is the case in some parts of the Orient—then it's important that the whole grain be used. But, in most cases, we can select our cereals according to personal taste or the cost.

While cereal grains are the backbone of the world's diet, we must remember that cereal grains in any form are not complete foods. That is why we eat our grain products with other foods. Cereal and milk, bread and milk, eggs on toast, cheese sandwiches, meat sandwiches—all these are good examples of our standard combinations.

Well, whatever the grain, wherever it's raised—the main thing for us to remember is that cereal grains are a nourishing food, the chief source of energy—but not a complete food in themselves. We need a varied diet of grains and milk and butter and vegetables and fruits, and meat and fish—in order to keep ourselves in the best of health.

The other day I was talking with a big buyer of breakfast foods. This woman says she never serves the same kind of breakfast food two mornings in succession.

That's a good way to prevent monotony. Breakfast cereals are important right now because they can be one of the cheapest energy foods on the whole diet list. When you consider that you can give a family of five enough cereal for a whole meal for about three cents, and that, with milk, and a little fruit, it becomes a mighty wholesome meal too—well, that's something to think about, isn't it?

FEDERAL AID URGED FOR DISTRICT ROADS

Business Group Holds U. S. Should Supply Funds; Auto Tax Is Hit.

Although the Federal Government maintains and operates thousands of vehicles which daily use the streets of the District of Columbia, it makes no appropriations for the upkeep of Washington thoroughfares, it was pointed out yesterday at a meeting of the executive committee of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

It was declared that as long as the Federal Government appropriates funds for the maintenance of State highways the same system should apply to the District.

Opposition to the automobile weight tax also was expressed at the meeting. The committee was of the opinion that the present automobile taxes are producing sufficient revenue to meet an equitable share of the expense of building and maintaining roads in Washington.

District motorists, it was pointed out, are paying 66 per cent of the entire cost of street construction and maintenance. Automobile taxes for the current year will amount to $2,600,000, while operation of the Highway Department and the Director of Vehicles and Traffic will be $3,900,000, it was shown.

Dr. Veredie to Address Clyde Kelly Class

Dr. Abram Veredie, of Boston, secretary of Good Will Industries, which are operating successfully in 67 cities of the United States, will address the Clyde Kelly Class of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the Avalon Theater, where the class is temporarily holding its sessions. Adult Bible classes of the other Chevy Chase churches have been invited to meet with the Clyde Kelly Class for this occasion.

Two Visiting Ministers At Bethesda Methodist

Two visiting ministers will speak at Bethesda Methodist Church tomorrow evening. The Rev. C. Wesley Israel, pastor of the Rogers Park Community Church, of Chicago, will preach at 8 o'clock; and the Rev. Roland Rice, pastor of the Anacostia Methodist Church, will address the Epworth League at 7:15.

Mr. Israel is a native of Fairfax, Va., and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Israel, live at Bethesda.

(Honorable Mention.)

½ cup Land o' Lakes butter (Sanitary Grocery Co.)
2 cups brown sugar
2 cups Gold Medal flour
½ cup broken nut meats
1 tablespoons hot water
2 eggs (Sanitary Grocery Co.)
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 teaspoons maple flavoring
½ teaspoon salt

Melt butter in saucepan, add sugar and when blended, remove from fire and cool until lukewarm. Add unbeaten eggs to mixture and beat well. Mix flour, salt and baking powder, and add to the sugar mixture. Stir in nutmeats, flavoring and water. Spread out in a shallow pan lined with well-greased paper, and bake about 20 minutes in a hot oven. While still hot, cut in strips about one inch wide and four inches long.

(Honorable Mention.)

Boiled spaghetti
2 cups tomato juice (Sanitary stores)
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon butter (Land o' Lakes)
1 chopped green pepper
1 finely chopped onion
Cheese (Sanitary stores)

Melt butter over high heat. In this brown the onion and pepper, then add the tomato juice and the rest of the ingredients. Reduce heat to medium and heat thoroughly. Pour over the spaghetti, sprinkle with grated American cheese and bake at 350 degrees F. until a golden brown on top.

CREAM TUNA FISH.

1 cup tuna fish
2 tablespoons chopped olives
1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon chopped pimientoes
3 tablespoons flour
Salt and pepper
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced (Sanico fresh)
3 tablespoons butter (Sanitary)
1½ cups milk

Make a white sauce of milk, butter and flour. When sauce has thickened add remaining ingredients. Serve in hot patty shells.

Mrs. E. W. HEBERT.

FISH CROQUETTES.
(Honorable Mention.)

1 pint cooked fish, cut fine
1 tablespoonful butter
1 heaping tablespoonful flour
1 cup milk
2 hard-boiled eggs, chopped fine
2 raw eggs
½ teaspoonful dry mustard
Little cayenne pepper
1 tablespoonful finely chopped parsley
1 teaspoonful salt
1 egg in which to roll the croquettes

Melt butter and flour together, cook it two minutes, add milk and stir until a thick, smooth sauce, then add salt, mustard, cayenne pepper, chopped parsley, eggs and fish. Cook until well mixed, then stir in raw eggs beaten with a tablespoonful of milk. Form into little cylinders, roll in beaten egg and bread crumbs and fry in hot lard. Serve on heated dish. Garnish with parsley.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Beans Seen in Market Disclosed as Having Romantic Character and Fit for Poetry; Asparagus Cheap; Tasty Cherry Pie.

The conclusion of Easter Week's festivities with its accompanying extra efforts on the part of housewives to offer particularly enticing foods to family, relatives and friends, may have left every one a bit "fed up" with embroidered food ideas. Now that vacations are over and the family is back in its usual routine, mothers probably are swinging the meal planning back into ordinary grooves.

This post-Easter relaxation was in the Meanderer's mind this week on her tour of the markets. "Look up something plain and practical," she told herself. "Even if April is here at last don't go off into rhapsodies over the spring flowers as you have been doing." So be it, then. How about the humble, ubiquitous bean? Surely there can't be much romancing on the subject of beans. Oh, no?

Here are the rows of beans, then, in a market out Seventh street way, if we must be practical. The Meanderer looked over what is probably one of the most complete displays of beans south of New York City. Not exactly pretty, perhaps, but interesting. The very multitude of them in each bin makes one want to guess how many per bin. A tall, young man in a white marketer's apron presides over them. His serious face and quiet demeanor should be a help in keeping practical, the Meanderer thought.

"Tell me about these beans. I'm being practical this week," the Meanderer prefaced her interview. "You must help me be unromatic in spite of the spring flowers and the perfect day."

"Those beans look practical and taste practical, I'll admit," the tall and accommodating marketer said. "But there's romance about them just the same." "Beans romantic? That just can't be," the Meanderer contradicted. "Why, I once wrote a whole column about beans under the heading 'Plain, humble, everyday foods.'"

"Oh, you're mistaken about the dullness of beans," insisted the marketer. "This red and brown one here, for example, is known as the Roman bean, the October bean, or the bird egg bean. Once it grew only in the district surrounding Rome, but was brought to this continent more than 100 years ago. It has been improved so much in this country that it is now superior to the original Roman bean and we no longer import them. Are those uninteresting and unromatic facts?"

"I'm about to be convinced that beans may be material for poetry as well as for soup," the Meanderer capitulated. "Go on."

"Eight or more foreign countries have supplied some of the beans, lentils and peas in this row of bins," the marketer said. "These countries include Canada, Germany, Palestine, France, Italy, Honduras, Mexico and Alaska." He pointed out flageolets, or French lima beans, much like a smaller edition of our domestic green lima beans, and truly imported from France. Bidding for one's interest next are the tiny, bright, orange-colored lentils from Palestine. "The lentils from Palestine are mentioned in the Bible," the learned marketer contributed to the Meander's enlightenment.

Polished rice from Honduras, with its coating of paraffin and talcum; brown rice, in the natural state, from Texas; green whole dried peas from Alaska, German lentils and the soya bean for diabetics, are other items in this special food row. And wild rice is there. Wild rice is very different from the rice most of us know. "Wild rice is gathered in the hull, packed in the hull and cooked in the hull," the marketer said. "It is as different from other rice as wild oats is from the quiet life."

So, Q. E. D., with respects to the bean marketer, there is no food without its little romance. One may even believe, too, that a bean seller may be a good philosopher, and posseas imagination.

Flashy, flame-colored Mexican daisies are neighboring the blue-purple German iris in another market, proving that some florists are surely artists in arrangement of their wares. Orchid and white stocks, always favorites in bouquets, have the reasonable price of $2 a dozen.

A toothsome cherry pie, with its open face wreathed with crushed nuts, has the ordinary little price of 20 cents. According to customers who have bought this pie from a certain corner bakery stand in a downtown market, there is nothing ordinary about its taste.

From the winter's pinnacle price among vegetabes of as much as 75 cents a bunch, asparagus has been reduced to as little as 15 cents a bunch in most markets this week. Large shipments from the Carolinas caused the lowered price. The 15 cent bunches differ in weight, some of them weighing about a pound.

Dusseldorf mustard in small gray pottery containers is featured in a food specialty shop in a big downtown market. Other containers of the German mustard are miniature steins. At this fancy goods corner one finds wine vinegar from Italy and a new stock of horseradish-mustard.

P. S.—N. B. on beans: In the offerings in a canned goods sale in one of the chain stores are cans of green lima beans at the rate of four cans for a quarter!

FILIPINO BILL VOTE PROMISED MONDAY

Garner Says Most Drastic of Rules May Be Invoked to Assure Action.

(Associated Press.)

Speaker Garner announced yesterday the most drastic rules of the House will be invoked, if necessary, to obtain a vote Monday on the independence of the Philippine Islands.

He told the House just after passage of the tax bill that unanimous consent will be sought for a vote on the Hare bill granting independence within eight years, limiting debate to two and one-half hours.

Failing that, the Texan said he "will take the responsibility of" recognizing Chairman Hare of the insular committee for a suspension of the rules.

This procedure, rarely employed, makes a vote mandatory after only 50 minutes of debate. But two-thirds majority then would be required for passage.

"We have been talking about this question for 30 years," the Speaker told the House, "and both parties have indicated they want it settled. The chair will take the responsibility of recognizing the gentleman from South Carolina for a suspension of the rules if unanimous consent is not granted. It is just a question of how much time the House wants to debate this question."

The Hare bill would grant independence eight years after the adoption of a constitution. Pending independence, immigration to the United States would be limited to annual quota of 50 and limits placed upon the free importation of Philippine products.

The Senate program for the remainder of the session was virtually made up yesterday by the Republican steering committee giving preferred status to five important measures.

The line-up includes the bills for naval construction, Government reorganization, $136,000,000 road construction, disposition of Muscle Shoals and Philippine independence.

These measures will be taken up in that order as soon as the Senate disposes of the pending Reed resolution seeking a Tariff Commission investigation into the effects of depreciated foreign currency values on American imports.

The program includes about all outstanding controversies remaining. It is to be subordinated to the tax and appropriations bills which must be passed before adjournment.

2 Youths Are Convicted In Communist Teaching

Media, Pa., April 1 (A.P.).—John Adams, 19, and Harry Roth, 22, of Chester, were convicted by a jury today of charges of teaching seditious doctrines. The young men were arrested in Chester last October by a county detective, who testified he heard them tell an audience to "overthrow the government by force of arms."

Adams and Roth denied this and said they merely asked their hearers to vote for the Communist ticket. At the suggestion of their counsel, the young men yesterday told the jury what they spoke about. Adams talked for an hour and Roth an hour and a half.

New Members' Service At Petworth Methodist

Petworth Methodist Church will have an unusual service tomorrow night. It is planned for all the members who have united with the congregation under the pastorate of the Rev. Robert L. Wood, and will be called "New Members' Service." Fifty-one new members were received into fellowship last Sunday and another class will be received tomorrow.

At the morning hour the service will have echoes of Easter as its inspiration and a special musical program has been arranged. At the evening hour the minister will preach on Munkacsy's great painting, "The Crucifixion."

Sunday School to Hear Missionary to Siam

Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, minister of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, will resume his series of addresses on "The Glorious Company of the Apostles" next Thursday night.

Tomorrow morning Dr. James W. McKean, for 40 years a missionary to Siam, will address the Sunday school, and Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Dickson, chaplain, will address the All Comers' Bible Class on "The Cross on the Battlefield."

Post-Resurrection Jope Sermon Topic

"The Post-Resurrection Experiences of Jesus" will be the themes of the morning and evening sermons of the Rev. Clifford H. Jope, pastor of the Ninth Street Christian Church, tomorrow. There will be special music at both services.

On Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week the Alpha Christian Endeavor Society of the church will present the operetta, "The Christian Star."

"Les Temoins" Theme Of Vurpillot Sermon

The Rev. Dr. Florian Vurpillot, pastor of the French Congregation which worships at St. John's Church, Lafayette Square, every Sunday afternoon, will preach tomorrow at 4 p. m., on "Les temoins."

"Children of Eternity." Theme.

Dr. Gerhard E. Lenski, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, will preach on "Children of Eternity" tomorrow morning, and in the evening the sermon topic will be "The Disciples Before and After Easter."

Will Address Bible Class.

William B. Bankhead, member of Congress from Alabama, will address the Harrison Bible Class of the Congress Street Methodist Church tomorrow morning. Avon Shockey will teach the class.

Easter Music to Be Repeated.

So much liked was the Easter music at the Takoma Park Baptist Church that the choir was asked to repeat it; and so on tomorrow the entire program will be sung again.

Dr. Birnie at Gunston Temple.

Dr. Douglas Putnam Birnie will preach at Gunston Temple Presbyterian Church tomorrow morning and in the evening the pastor, Dr. Bernard Braskamp, will fill his pulpit.

Higher Brackets For Church Text

Dr. Harmon Will Preach at National City Church Tomorrow.

"Placing the Church in Higher Brackets" will be the sermon subject of Dr. H. H. Harmon at the National City Christian Church Sunday morning. Dr. Harmon will stress the need of giving the church a larger place in the life of our modern day. The evening worship hour will be given over to the monthly musical service by the choir, under the direction of W. E. Braithwaite. Selections by a ladies' quartet, male chorus, mixed chorus and solo numbers will make up the evening's program.

On Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock the church will be host to the annual ingathering of the Woman's Council of the Washington Federation of Churches. Mrs. Harvey S. Irwin, president, will be in charge of the meeting, which will be open to all women of the city.

At this meeting the representatives of the churches of the city bring in the funds contributed by individuals and organizations for the support of the work of the council. Flowers also are brought for distribution among the hospitals of the city.

Dr. Brodie to Preach On "Marching Orders"

At the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning Dr. Andrew M. Brodie, associate minister, will preach on "Marching Orders." At the evening service Dr. Brodie will have for his subject, "The Win One Club."

On Sunday evening the young people of the Christian Endeavor Society will hold a tea with Joseph A. Sixoo and Mark Smith as hosts. Following the tea Ernest Hanle will lead the discussion of the topic, "Why Do We Have a Church?"

Baptism, Communion At Metropolitan Baptist

New members will be baptized and received into fellowship at both services at the Metropolitan Baptist Church, Sixth and A streets northeast, tomorrow.

At the morning hour the ordinance of Holy Communion will also be observed. Dr. John Compton Ball, the pastor, preaches at both services.

Will Preach on "Hills of God."

Dr. Mark Depp, minister of Calvary Methodist Church, Columbia road near Fifteenth street, will preach at both services Sunday. "The Hills of God" will be the sermon subject for the morning service, and at 8 o'clock the subject of the address will be "Does the Church Count?"

At Eckington Presbyterian.

The Rev. H. B. Wooding, minister of Eckington Presbyterian Church, will preach tomorrow morning on "The Rod of an Almond Tree." In the evening Dr. James W. McKean, missionary to Siam, will deliver an address.

Will Preach in Hyattsville.

Dr. H. W. O. Millington, executive secretary of the Columbia Baptist Association, will preach at the First Baptist Church of Hyattsville tomorrow morning. He will give a survey of the missionary work in the church at this time.

Theme of Stockdale Sermon.

Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, minister of First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets, will use as his sermon theme tomorrow morning at the 11 o'clock service, "Moth-Proof Treasures."

Dr. Taylor's Theme Is "Lord's Supper"

Central Presbyterian C. E. Elects Officers; Installed Tomorrow.

Dr. James H. Taylor, minister of the Central Presbyterian Church, will preach tomorrow morning on "The Lord's Supper," after which he will administer the sacrament. The church year ended yesterday, and the various organizations of the church will submit reports, which will later be sent to the Presbytery.

The election of officers in the Christian Endeavor Society has resulted as follows: President, Claude W. Kniseley; vice president, Maude Hudson; recording secretary, Isabel Alexander; corresponding secretary, Hope Posey; treasurer, Theodore Birdsong.

The installations of the officers of the Christian Endeavor and Westminster League will be held tomorrow at the regular meetings of the societies.

Ceremony Will Call Confirmation Classes

An interesting ceremony will take place tomorrow morning at the Lutheran Church of the Atonement, North Capitol and Rhode Island avenue northeast, when the roll will be called of all the confirmation classes that have been formed since the church was organized 26 years ago. The minister, the Rev. H. E. Snyder, will preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion.

At the meeting of the Luther League, at 7 p. m., Austin W. Howard, president of the Luther League, Maryland Synod, will make an address, and Mrs. Ruth Beach, of Parker's Wharf, Md., will be soloist.

Has God Left Capital? Swem Sermon Theme

Dr. E. Hez Swem, pastor of Centennial Baptist Church, Seventh and I streets northeast, will preach tomorrow night at 8 o'clock on the theme, "Has God Left Washington, D. C.?" In the morning his sermon will be on the thesis, "An Unheard Text."

This church has recently been recarpeted and a new heating plant has been installed.

COLORED CHURCHES.

Dr. James L. Pinn, pastor of Good Will Baptist Church, will preach tomorrow morning on "The Sense of Values."

At Lincoln Congregational Temple, the pastor, the Rev. R. W. Brooks, will discuss the theme: "Can This Generation Ignore Christ?" at the morning worship hour.

The Rev. William D. Jarvis, pastor of New Bethel Church, will preach tomorrow morning on "The Preciousness of Our Lord."

The Rev. William D. Battle, pastor of Galbraith A. M. E. Zion Church, after an absence from his pulpit on account of illness, will return and preach tomorrow morning on the subject "Following the Risen Christ."

"The Haunted House" is the subject of the morning sermon of the Rev. J. L. S. Holloman, pastor of the Second Baptist Church.

The Rev. W. H. Dean, of Pittsburgh, will preach at Zion Baptist Church Monday evening on "Handwriting on the Wall."

At Central Union Mission.

The Columbia Heights Christian Church will have charge of the services in the Central Union Mission Chapel at 613 C street tomorrow night at 7:45.

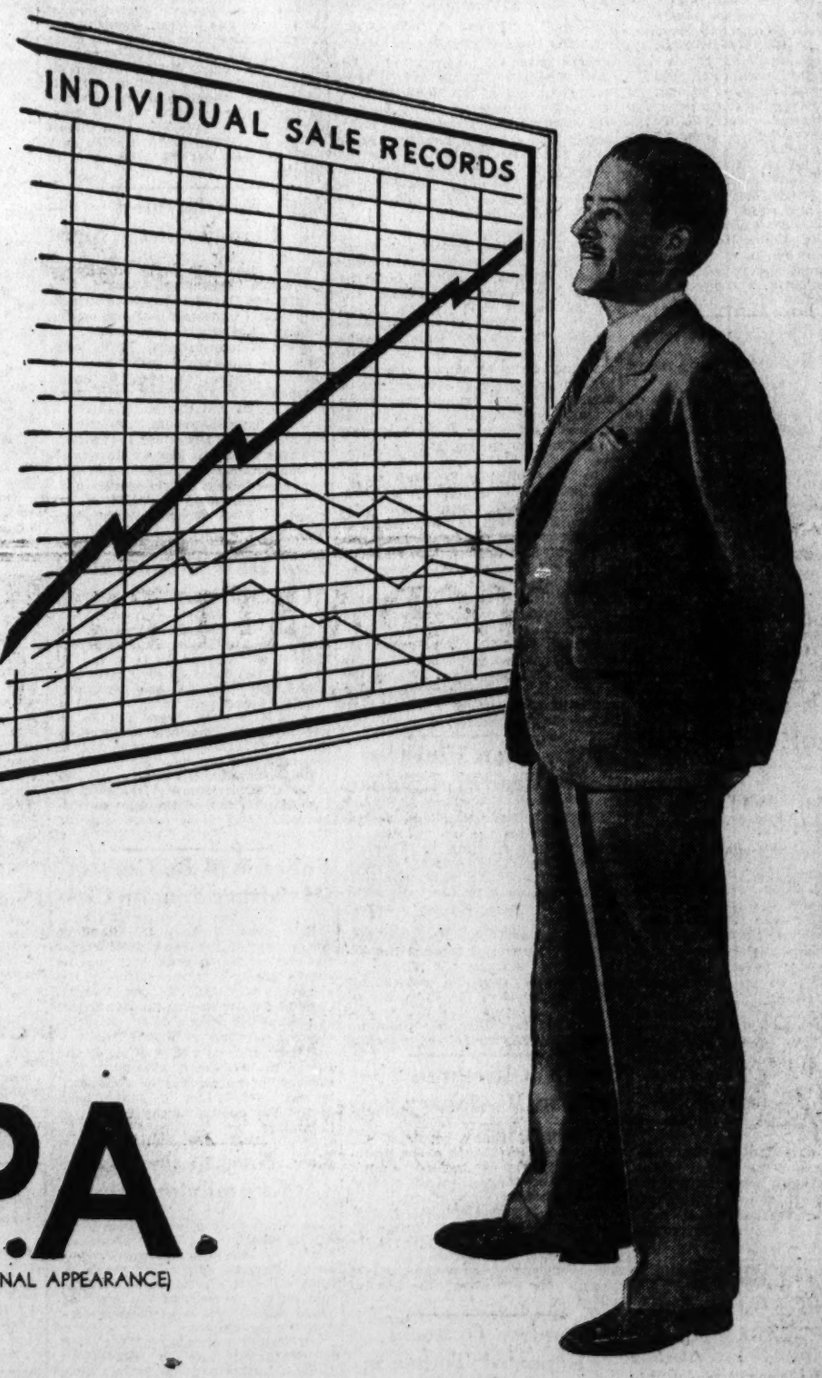
Over . . . His Quota



P.A.

Helped Increase His Earnings!

Six months ago the sales chart told him a discouraging story. He had personality, and punch. Why didn't he click like the others? His salesmanager noticed that he was careless about his appearance and suggested that he make the P. A. test—A Smart P. A. Every Day in the Week! It was surprising how few and far between his "off days" became. Commissions piled up! That depressing line on the sales chart opposite his name started a steady climb. He even heard talk of a promotion! Yes, sir, P. A. certainly did something for him!

BAPTISTS ARRANGE CONSECRATION WEEK

Southern Section to Observe Prayer Also During April 10-17.

Southern Baptists have set aside the week of April 10-17, as a week of prayer and consecration, to be observed by all of the 24,000 Baptist churches in the South. The particular object of this wide-spread movement is a revival, which it is hoped will spring into existence and sweep through every State in Dixie.

Dr. Fred F. Brown, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Knoxville, Tenn., is in charge of the movement, in his capacity of executive secretary of the promotion committee of his church.

Dr. Brown, who gave himself to promoting an every-member canvass in every church of the Southern Baptist convention last fall, has been devoting his energies this spring to promoting an every-member revival, seeking to deepen the spiritual life of the people and to give them a proper appraisal of spiritual values. He has already toured most of the 18 States in the Southern Baptist convention in the interest of the movement. Dr. Brown reports that he has received a marvellous response to his appeal everywhere he has been.

"There are a number of Southern Baptist churches in Washington, but they are united with those of the Northern Church in one body known as the Columbia Baptist Association. It is the understanding that these churches or at least some of them, will participate in this prayer movement.

Welsh-Americans Plan Celebration Tomorrow

At the evening service tomorrow at 7:30 o'clock, at the First Congregational Church, the Welsh-Americans, of Washington, under the auspices of the St. David's Society, will commemorate the historic events during the life of George Washington with a fitting celebration in song and story.

Addresses will be given by James J. Davis, Roy St. Lewis and other members of Congress. Prof. L. Powell Evans, Welsh-American tenor of Atlantic City; Dr. Mostyn Thomas, the nationally known Welsh-American baritone, of New York City, and Wilfred Smith, the Welsh-American tenor of this city, will be the solo artists.

The St. David's Chorus, of Washington, under the leadership of Dr. Griffith Evans, will sing the national airs, folk songs and sacred hymns in Welsh and English. The public is cordially invited.

Present Day Questions Clinchy Series Topic

The first of a series of sermons on "Five Present Day Questions," will be delivered tomorrow at the morning service of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church by the minister, the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy. In this series Mr. Clinchy will discuss the relation of religion and the church to present-day economic and moral problems. He will give an answer tomorrow to the question, "Do We Still Need the Church?"

For the four other sermons the subjects are: April 10, "Does God Send a Depression?"; April 17, "Should We Pray for Material Needs?"; April 24, "What Do We Mean By Living Unselfishly?"; May 1, "How Should We Use the Bible?"

Church and State Dr. Shelton's Topic

Daniel C. Roper Also to Address Mt. Vernon Place Church.

"Church and State" is the subject of a sermon by Dr. W. A. Shelton, pastor of Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church South, Ninth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest, at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. The sermon will be preceded by an address by Daniel C. Roper, former Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

This service inaugurates a series of similar ones to be held Sunday evenings, in which prominent laymen will have a part, and which are designed to bring about a better understanding and appreciation on the part of the church membership and of their responsibilities as citizens of the civil realm.

At the 11 o'clock service Dr. Shelton preaches on "The Spread of the Dawn." Thirty-nine members were received into the church on Easter Sunday, twelve by vows, eleven by baptism and vows and sixteen by certificate.

Forum Will Be Told Of World's Great Book

Ranging in variety from a description of rare volumes in the Congressional Library to the relative agricultural capacity of the United States and Russia, and the consideration of the "neglected factor" in prohibition debate, the final series of discussions on the program of the Adult Forum of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church will begin at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Frederick W. Ashley, assistant librarian of the Library of Congress, will speak tomorrow on "The Greatest Book in the World, and Other Treasures of the Library of Congress," referring especially to the first edition Guttenberg Bible in the collection.

Class to Be Addressed By E. C. Brownell

Tomorrow the men's Bible class of Eastern Presbyterian Church will have as speaker E. C. Brownell, associate teacher of the men's Bible class of Eastern Presbyterian Church. His subject will be "Experiences in Australasia."

The class will hold its April business-Fellowship meeting Wednesday.

"The Divine Dole," Volunteer Topic.

"The Divine Dole" will be the subject of a sermon by Capt. Arthur Wise at the religious service at the Relief Mission of the Volunteers of America, 471 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

"Voices of Heaven," Theme.

CONCORDIA CHURCH TO START CRUSADE

Loyalty-Financial Campaign Throughout April to Begin Tomorrow.

Concordia Lutheran Evangelical Church, Twentieth and G streets northwest, begins a loyalty crusade and financial campaign tomorrow. This loyalty crusade is to be carried on throughout April. It will be conducted under the leadership of J. Edward Tompkins, of the church campaigns bureau of the Home Missions Council. Its objective is to quicken the spiritual life of the church membership, to win new members and to raise funds for the centenary objective of the congregation. This centenary objective is the remodeling of the parish house of the church and to provide adequate, modern equipment for religious education.

The Rev. Charles Enders will preach on "The Challenge of the Present Time to Church Loyalty" in both the German service at 10 a. m. and the English service at 11:15 a. m. A roll call will be taken at each of these services. In the afternoon all families that are not represented in the morning service by at least one member will be visited by a committee of women, who will explain the loyalty crusade and invite to participation in the crusade. Mrs. H. F. Dunkhorst is chairman of the visitation committee.

In the evening at 8 o'clock a special service for women will be held. This will be in charge of Mrs. Charles Rohland, secretary of the Ladies' Aid Society. Mrs. A. R. Gould, treasurer of the Mission Society, will read the scripture lesson, and Miss Josephine Escherich, president of the Literary Guild, will offer prayer. The speaker of the evening will be Mrs. Frank Edgington.

Sunday, April 10, will be community Sunday with a men's service in the evening. Sunday, April 17, will be Symposium Sunday, with a family service in the evening. Sunday, April 24, will be observed as Victory Sunday.

Presbyterian Ministers To Hear Prof. Julian

The Presbyterian Ministers' Association of Washington and vicinity will meet Monday morning at 11 o'clock at the New York Avenue Church. Prof. Percy L. Julian, of Howard University, will speak on the topic, "The Present Dilemma of the Austrian People."

Dr. Julian who is head of the Chemistry Department of Howard University, spent two years in Vienna in post-graduate work and received his Ph. D. degree from the University of Vienna.

Group at Brethren Plan Missionary Play

A group of young people of the Washington City Church of the Brethren will present a missionary drama, entitled "Two Masters," at the evening service tomorrow.

On next Saturday evening, April 9, the friends of Juniata College in Washington will give a banquet in the social room of the church. Dr. C. C. Ellis, president of the college, will be present. He will preach the Sunday following.

McKendree Oratorio Repeated Tomorrow

The choir of the McKendree Methodist Episcopal Church will repeat, by request, the Easter Oratorio which they sang last Sunday morning. This will be followed by the administration of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

At 8 o'clock the pastor will preach on the subject, "The Return of Faith and Hope."

Depression Sermon At Eldbrooke Methodist

At the evening service tomorrow the Rev. Walter M. Michael, pastor of the Eldbrooke Methodist Church, will discuss the question: "Overcoming the Depression."

The young people's dramatic club will give their annual spring play, "It Runs In the Family," on Thursday and Friday evenings. Miss Estelle Derrick is directing it.

Dr. Schnabel to Repeat Palm Sunday Sermon

By special request, Dr. George E. Schnabel, minister of Albright Memorial Evangelical Church, will preach again tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock the same sermon he preached on Palm Sunday evening. The subject is "The Lost Christ." A score or more requests have been received for its repetition.

Baptism at Chevy Chase Church.

The ordinance of baptism and the reception of new members will be observed at the Chevy Chase Baptist Church tomorrow morning. The minister, the Rev. Edward O. Clark, will deliver a brief meditation.

MUSIC OF EASTER WILL BE REPEATED

Bishop Freeman and Dr. Fleming Preach Tomorrow At Cathedral.

The Rev. Frederic S. Fleming, vicar of the Chapel of the Intercession, Trinity Parish, New York, and the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, will be the preachers in the Bethlehem Chapel at the Washington Cathedral tomorrow respectively at the 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. services. The music rendered on Easter Sunday will be repeated at both these services.

The service at the People's Evensong at 4 p. m. and the sermon by Bishop Freeman will be broadcast through Station WMAL. At this service the anthem, "O Sing Unto The Lord, for He Hath Triumphed Gloriously," composed by Edgar Priest, the Cathedral's organist and choirmaster, will be given.

At the 11 a. m. service there will be the celebration of the Holy Communion and the sermon by Dr. Fleming. A member of the advisory committee of the College of Preachers, Dr. Fleming has conducted several conferences there and has also preached in Washington several times, once holding a mission in this city. He formerly served as rector of the Church of the Atonement in Chicago and of one of the leading parishes at Providence, R. I. Twice he has declined election as a bishop. Two anthems of Easter Sunday, "On Wings of Living Light," by J. Sebastian Matthews, and Horatio Parker's "Behold, Ye Despisers," will be sung at this service.

Other services will be celebration of the Holy Communion at 7:30 a. m. and Morning Prayer and Litany at 10 a. m. Worshipers at the Sunday services at the Cathedral will be seated by the ushers to the limit of its accommodations, only a few seats being reserved for the families of the Cathedral clergy, officers and staff.

The usual Sunday pilgrimages at 12:30 p. m. and 5 p. m., following the morning celebration of the Holy Communion and the People's Evensong, will be conducted by Canon John W. Gummere and the staff of lay pilgrim aids. Members of the congregations, wishing to join the pilgrimage will remain in the Bethlehem Chapel at the end of the services when they will be met by the clergyman in charge.

Unitarian Laymen Plan Ladies' Night

Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, minister of All Souls' Unitarian Church, Sixteenth and Harvard streets northwest, will preach tomorrow morning on the subject "Not Yours—But You."

Special preparations have been made for the annual ladies' night of the Washington Chapter, Unitarian Laymen's League, which will take place on Thursday evening, April 7. Dr. Frank Tannenbaum, formerly on the staff of the Brookings Institution, will give a talk on Mexico, illustrated by motion pictures. The ladies who have served the monthly dinners during the year will be guests of the chapter. John W. Townsend, president, will preside.

Two Holy Communions At St. Margaret's Church

There will be two celebrations of Holy Communion at St. Margaret's Church at 7:30 and at 11 a. m. At 11 a. m. the Rev. Robert Shores will preach on "Joy in the Morning." Sunday school will meet at 9:30 a. m. At 4:15 p. m. there will be organ music by Charlotte Klein, F. A. G. O. At 4:30 p. m. there will be evensong and sermon.

Holy Communion will be celebrated at 11 a. m. on Monday, the feast of the Anunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary and at the same hour on Thursday.

Police Will Be Guests Of Calvary Vaughn Class

Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford with other officers and members of the Police Department will be the special guests on the occasion of the annual Police Day at the Vaughn Class of Calvary Baptist Sunday School at the regular session of the class tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock.

A short address will be given by the pastor, Dr. William S. Abernethy, and the regular lesson will be conducted by the teacher, Linn C. Drake, head of the Boy Scouts of the District of Columbia.

Rev. Niles to Preside At Communion Service

The sacrament of holy communion will be administered at the 11 o'clock service of the Georgetown Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Frank S. Niles will give a communion meditation on the theme, "As We Forgive." There will also be a short story-sermon for the children.

On Thursday evening at 8 o'clock Mr. Niles will give an address on "Martin Luther and the Reformation in Germany."

Clutz Sermon Theme "Victory of Faith"

"The Victory of Our Faith" will be the theme of the Rev. Frank H. Clutz's sermon tomorrow morning at the 11 o'clock worship hour at the Luther Place Memorial Church, at Thomas circle. In the evening at 8 o'clock the Rev. Mr. Clutz will speak on "God's Way With Men."

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society will be held in the church parlors next Wednesday.

THEMES ANNOUNCED FOR MASSEE REVIVAL

"Petting Parties" to Be Topic at Young People's Night Next Friday.

Tomorrow will mark the beginning of the third week of a "Revival of Bible Christianity," now being directed by the National Baptist Memorial Church, Sixteenth street and Columbia road. Dr. Gove Griffith Johnson, pastor of the church, announced yesterday that the themes for Sunday of the world famous guest, Dr. J. C. Massee, former pastor of Tremont Temple Church, Boston, would be: 11 a. m., "God's Program for a Revival;" at 7:45 p. m., "Is It Nothing to You?"

In association with Dr. Massee is the Rev. Arthur G. Slaght, of Rochester, N. Y., soloist and song leader of the evangelistic party. Mr. Slaght will be in charge of the special music for tomorrow and throughout the week. The music for the evening services throughout the week will be featured by an antiphonal song service, a candle light service, a lighted cross service and other features of unusual interest.

In the week's announcements special attention was called to Dr. Massee's subject for Friday evening, when he will be especially addressing his remarks to the young people, though all are invited. The treatment of the subject, "What's Wrong With Petting Parties, the Favorite Sport of American Young People?" has attracted the attention of the Associated Press, which has given national publicity to the text. The subjects for the afternoon messages, which will be given at 3 o'clock, are as follows:

Monday—"God Introduces Himself" (Genesis).

Tuesday—"God Was Among Those Present" (Exodus).

Wednesday—"Happiness Dust" (Ecclesiastes).

Thursday—"Why Does God Permit Us To Suffer?"

Friday—"The Antics of the Anti-Christ."

In the evening, he will speak on the following subjects:

Monday (Bible School Night)—"Odd Sparrows."

Tuesday (Church Officer Night)—"One Fool's Advice to Another Fool."

Wednesday (Family Night)—"Fish, Cucumbers and Garlic."

Thursday (Ladies' Night)—"The Second Coming of Christ."

Friday (Young People's Night)—"What's Wrong With Petting Parties, the Favorite Sport of American Young People?"

St. Andrew's to Repeat Easter Music Service

The Easter music at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, 1827 Park road, was so interesting that the choir has been asked to repeat it tomorrow, and will do so. The rector, the Rev. A. J. Wilder, will preach on the theme: "In the Resurrection With What Body Do They Come?"

The church school will resume its sessions at 9:30 a. m. and the rector will take up again with the children the eventful journey of Christian from Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress."

Dr. Zimmerman to Talk At St. Paul's Lutheran

At St. Paul's Lutheran Church tomorrow morning Dr. L. M. Zimmerman, formerly of Baltimore, Md., will occupy the pulpit in the absence of the pastor, Dr. Henry W. Snyder, who is out of the city assisting at the installation of his friend, the Rev. H. K. Hilner, as pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, Myersdale, Pa. Dr. Zimmerman will use as his topic "The Call of the Ages."

In the evening at the vesper services at 8 o'clock Mrs. Gould Wickey will deliver an address on the subject, "Stop, Look and Listen."

Prof. Bell to Preach At Epiphany Church

The services at the Church of the Epiphany tomorrow will be as follows: 8 a. m, Holy Communion; 9:30 a. m., Church School. The special preacher at the 11 o'clock service will be the Rev. W. Cosby Bell, professor of theology and the history of religion at the Virginia Theological Seminary.

The Rev. Mr. Wills will be the preacher at the evening service. The subject of his sermon will be "Christ in the Midst."

Adele Carmichael Will Lead Revival

Noted Evangelist Opens Campaign Tomorrow of Crusade.

Adele Carmichael, noted woman evangelist, is coming to Washington to lead a National Revival Crusade in the Masonic Temple Auditorium, Thirteenth street and New York avenue northwest. She will open her campaign tomorrow night at 7:30, preaching from the subject, "The General on the White Horse."

Mrs. Carmichael is a speaker of unusual eloquence and spiritual power, and is considered one of the strongest evangelists on the field today. Churches, halls, and auditoriums have been thronged everywhere to hear her. She began preaching at nine years of age, and has conducted large revivals in the United States and Canada. She has traveled extensively in Europe and the Holy Land, and some of her sermons are given in the costumes she brought back from her tour of Palestine. Marvelous healings have occurred in her meetings, and prayer for the sick will be a feature of the campaign.

Her husband, the Rev. Richard Carmichael, who is an officer of the General Council of the Assemblies of God, will be the musical director, and a special musical program will precede each service. Her subjects for the first week will include, "Elijah, The Flaming Prophet," "Holy Ghost Power," "The Nation's Peace Pipe," "Physical Bankruptcy," and "Pick Up the Pilot."

Grace Baptist Church Revivals Next Week

Evangelistic services will be conducted at Grace Baptist Church, Ninth street and South Carolina avenue southeast, next week, beginning on Monday evening and continuing nightly for two weeks. The preacher will be the Rev. H. O. Stewart, of Elmira, N. Y., who for a number of years was pastor of the Second Baptist Church in this city.

Rev. LeMoine to Begin New Sermon Series

So well received was his last series of sermons that the Rev. E. A. LeMoine, rector of St. Columbia's Episcopal Church, announces a new series beginning tomorrow evening, when he will preach the first of three sermons on "The Three Conceptions of the Christian Church, Roman, Protestant and Catholic."

CHRIST CHILD HOME WILL BE DEDICATED

Archbishop Will Preside at Ceremony on Monday; 661 Children There.

The Christ Child Settlement, at 608 Massachusetts avenue northeast, will be dedicated at 4 o'clock on Monday afternoon by Archbishop Curley. The house is fireproof throughout and is well adapted for the purpose for which it was designed.

The first floor contains a pine paneled library with a thousand books for children; offices, cloakroom, boys' room and a room for layettes—which are given to destitute mothers.

Upstairs there is an up-to-date dental clinic which treats about 77 cases a month. Last year 1,473 cases were treated. There are two big assembly rooms flooded with sunlight.

There are classes in wood carving, carpentry, boxing, wrestling, swimming, dramatics, singing, sewing, arts and crafts, scouting. There is a kindergarten conducted for the little children and games for the preschool child.

661 Children Enrolled.

Already there are 661 children enrolled and the number is still growing. A Mothers Club has been organized with 60 active members.

For the last 30 years the Christ Child Society, founded by Miss Mary V. Merrick, has worked effectually to meet the needs of the underprivileged child. From a small beginning it has grown into a national society with 33 branches in different cities of the United States. Settlement work has always been one of the chief activities. This new building is an outstanding monument to its successful achievement.

Another work of the society that appeals strongly to the public is the fresh air farm on the Norbeck pike near Rockville for convalescent children lately dismissed from hospitals.

Confirmation April 24.

The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley will confirm at the Church of the Immaculate Conception at 3 o'clock Sunday, April 24.

The daily 12:15 noon mass at the Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes will be said every week day throughout April, May and June in the church.

Installation is now being made of the perpetual vigil light at the Purgatorian Shrine which was endowed in memory of James G. Rowe, Jr., by his friends of the track, and the dedication will take place some time this month. James G. Rowe was the trainer of the Green Tree Stables, and the famous Twenty Grand was one of the outputs of this famous stable.

On the fourth Sunday of May the rededication of the World War dead memorial light will take place. At this ceremony will be added the arms sent by French veterans who fought on the Marne at Chateau Thierry.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

Expert Answers Readers' Questions.

MRS. WM. I. B.—The little white spots that you describe on the nails are called "present spots" because a superstition exists that when these white spots have grown to the edge the owner is to receive a present. Actually they mar the beauty of the nails. To make them less noticeable, try mixing half and half of turpentine and myrrh, and apply a little of this paste at night before retiring. In the morning remove with a bit of olive oil. Then polish the nails. Avoid injuring the nail by knocking against a door, or squeezing accidentally when making beds, &c. Massage is good for the nails just as it for every other part of the body. After washing the hands, try to remember to push the cuticle back from the nail bed with the towel. Also massage the cuticle with a little olive oil or cream occasionally.

Miss P. L.—Your sister is right. Two rouges are better than one, and the modern miss usually has a cream rouge and a compact (dry rouge). The cream rouge is used before powder and blended carefully. It gives a warm, natural glow to the skin and lasts for a long time. Then the skin is carefully powdered. Finally as a last finishing touch the dry rouge may be used. The latter is also used during the day if the color has faded, to heighten the make-up. If you use only dry rouge and the little heads you complain of are stubborn, be sure to cleanse the skin very thoroughly before applying make-up. Also use a protective preparation. This will form a soft film over the skin and prevent the rouge from working its way into the pores. As further protection, powder first and then touch the cheeks with rouge. I think you will find this very satisfactory.

O. B.—For the granulated appearance of your eyelids, use a boric acid solution as an eye wash. Also apply just a bit of yellow oxide of mercury (not more than 1 per cent). If this does not help in a short time, I would advise you to see an eye specialist.

* * * *

Violet—Are you quite sure you used the depilatory according to directions? And didn't instructions say not to use a deodorant immediately afterward? Most depilatories bear such caution, because the combination of the two preparations clashes chemically and causes irritation. Most depilatories specify that no deodorant is to be used for a few days following removal of superfluous hair. To allay irritation, apply a soothing cream—cold cream or nourishing cream—and dust with talcum powder.

John—From your description I think the boils have not responded to home treatment and are sufficiently inflamed and serious for you to see your physician or go to a skin hospital immediately.

What Today Means

"ARIES."

IF April 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 2:30 p. m. to 4 p. m., and from 8:15 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:30 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 11:30 p. m.

Astrological tendencies for April 2: Financially favorable for the more prosperous, to whom sound investments will be proffered. To those for whom conditions are unsettled, a change is foreseen. Family worries through affairs of the younger members. A propitious time for correspondence, especially business letters.

The child born on this April 2 will be shy, yet self-possessed. It will have a great deal of latent ability, which will not "blossom out" until almost maturity. It will be naturally high-principled, honest, considerate, dependable, ambitious, energetic, affectionate, loyal, neat and tidy.

Born on April 2, you will have rather a stoical and puritanical nature. You bear pain and trouble silently, and take your joys soberly. You have a very strict conscience, which tries to keep your life in order. It will not allow you to take a lenient attitude toward right or wrong in either your own life or that of another. Your judgments are harsh and severe; you would administer justice unsavored with mercy. As you grow older you will realize more that to err is human and that compassion is divine. You invite the respect of your associates without winning their spontaneous love.

Your work will be the big factor in your life, and from choice if not from actual necessity, you will always be a very busy person. When once you start a thing you are never happy until it is finished, and unfinished tag-ends annoy you. You are very systematic and make every movement count. Your brain is not quick, but given the time you can study and think things out very correctly.

There is a great deal of love in your heart, although your emotions are too suppressed for people to readily realize the depth of your real feelings. You may be intolerant, but you are not thoughtless or selfish. You are very generous both with money and your services.

Successful people born April 2:

Emperor Charlemagne.

Thomas Jefferson, third President of the United States.

Nicholas Murray Butler, educator.

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me how often to water ferns, rubber plants and geraniums. JULIA D. W.

Water a fern in a warm room daily, a rubber plant daily and a geranium only every other day.

In the country about my lawn there are several places where poison vine flourishes. I have never been able to eradicate it. Do you know of any really reliable way to get rid of this pest? MRS. BIRD R. E.

There are several methods of getting rid of poison ivy. If grubbed out early in spring, just after they have made some growth they frequently succumb. Another method is to burn the tops with a torch. The plants may be sprayed with sodium arsenate, using 1½ pounds of sodium arsenate to 50 gallons of water. Any of these methods is worth trying.

My lilac bush shows traces of scale. Would it be all right to spray the bush at this time with bordeaux mixture? MRS. PAUL L.

Yes.

Please give me a list of three rapid-growing, tall-climbing vines. MRS. ERNEST F.

Actinidia, aristolochia (Dutchman's pipe) and the polygonum.

My Easter lily has finished blooming. I have been told to water it until the leaves turn yellow. Is this the proper treatment? Will it ever bloom again? ESSIE W. P.

Yes. When the leaves are dry and yellow set the pot aside until the 1st of June, at which time remove the bulb from the pot and plant it in some sunny place in your garden. It should bloom most beautifully at the end of August.

Last year my currants and gooseberry bushes were ruined by small worms. Can you tell me what to do to prevent the leaves from being devoured this season? JOHN S. P.

The small worms which strip currant and gooseberry bushes of their foliage can be destroyed by a thorough spraying with arsenate of lead or pyrethrum powder as soon as they appear. It is well to remember that they begin eating at the bottom of the plants and may escape observation for a long time.

How many times is it necessary to roll a well-established lawn? WILLIAM E. W.

One good rolling of the lawn will be sufficient.

Last year my plants were touched by a late frost. Is there anything to do should such a tragedy happen this season? Last year none of my plants fully recovered. MABEL H. F. T.

Plants that have been touched by late frosts should be shaded and sprayed frequently with cold water.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

WHAT CAUSES TYPHOID.

E. F. B. writes: My nephew, a high-school boy in a small town, has typhoid. My brother writes that the dairy from which they get milk had its cows tested just before he became sick. The water at their cottage ten miles up the river has been tested, he was not in swimming at the summer cottage for a month, and the city water has been tested. This is the only case reported in that town, but a child died on the fifth day after becoming sick. It was supposed to be intestinal flu. A doctor says that so far as he can learn the symptoms were the same.

There were two cases of typhoid in this house in 1915—my father and my niece. In 1919 my sister, living half a block away, had typhoid, and was in the hospital a month. I have suggested the possibility of a typhoid carrier in the family or a source of infection in the home where they have lived since it was built 30 years ago. It is a good home, and my sister-in-law is very clean and devotes her life to her family's welfare.

REPLY.

Typhoid is becoming a rare disease all over the country, and physicians do not see it often enough to know it very well when they encounter it, or to suspect it when symptoms are developing. Most medical students go through college without having seen a case. Furthermore, it is so unimportant, from the public health standpoint, that communities are losing their fear of it. If this continues it will not be easy to get them to put in sewerage to protect streams from pollution, to refrain from using water from lot wells and to build water works.

Your first point is that the cows in the dairy, the milk of which this patient used, have been tested and, presumably, found all right. That has no bearing on this case. Cows do not have typhoid, nor do they pass the bacillus of this disease into their milk. When milk becomes infected with the bacillus it is because of pollution by infective people.

It is important to know that the drinking water, at both the summer home and the town, are all right, and that the swimming place is sanitary.

Physicians are not agreed as to whether there is such a disease as "intestinal flu." If there is, it is fairly unimportant practically. Ninety-nine per cent of the cases so diagnosed are some other disease. In many cases, and in most epidemics of what is labeled "intestinal flu," the disease is either typhoid fever or water-borne diarrhea.

The suggestion that the house may be the cause is not a good one. Typhoid does not hang out in houses. When many cases of typhoid come out of a given house over a term of years the fault lies not with the house, not even with the plumbing thereof. Some one in that house is spreading the disease.

In this instance there is a likelihood that some member of the household is a typhoid carrier. In the present state of affairs carriers are responsible for much the greater part of the typhoid in both city and country. The water supplies are rarely found polluted with typhoid, and methods of handling milk are making that food safe. Flies are not spreading much of the disease. We are careful with our typhoid cases. The greatest menace remaining is the chronic carrier.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

The flower coverlet bedspread again, by request. (A Dah-ray idea.)

NEW YORK, April 1.—There she is!

The lovely lady, awakening to a sun-filled morning, lifting one sleepy eyebrow, reaching one hand for her hot water and lemon juice—and his telegram, perhaps. And then nestling down again for another twenty winks, these dream filled, with different dreams—

Well, there were millyuns 'n' millyuns of requests for the directions for making the be-e-e-o-o-outiful heap o' flowers bedspreads we suggested to you some weeks ago, so I just had to sketch it again, and make you a leaflet with the most careful directions for making this bedspread in your spare finger time, is yours for just sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for it.

When to Wear What.

In the morning in town—remember, this means any morning business, shopping or going to business or school—the preference is for a lightweight woolen dress or tailleur, sports type. Always a jacket of some sort is smart these days. Hat is toque or beret, small. Higher type of shoe, such as oxford, with medium walking heel. Gloves glace kid and of flared-cuff type or button wrist. Bag matching gloves or the shoes or sometimes the dress or jacket. Mesh or lisle thread hose. And for jewelry, never pearls or diamonds, but always sports jewelry. The preference is for silver, in massive bracelets or necklaces.

And so much for morning wear. Be guided, exercise your own taste and individuality—but not at the expense of good taste, comprenez?

* * * *

Don't forget your clever-finger work. It's all a habit—using your pretty fingers or not using them. The lovely lady who is taught to sew as part of her early education, less frequently these days, unfortunately, knows the value of finger work. Knows the many, many minutes, half hours and hours that she finds in which to sew. Knows the elegance of the handmade something for her frock—and the prices she would have to pay for them.

Have you any idea how much you can sew in an hour a day? Ten or twelve hours a week, if not seven, will soon fill your lingerie box with "handmade" Parisian undies. And your collar and cuff box with delightful little collars and jabots and things that cost $40 and $50 apiece when one goes to buy them. And things for the house, bedspreads, as the one illustrated, for instance. All done of an evening when everyone is sitting around chatting. Or on street cars —yes, even so—do you care what your neighbor thinks? Not as long as you have lovely, elegant and expensive looking things around your house and on your frocks, you don't. Or shouldn't.

* * * *

The tailored evening suit is very popular for the moment. True, we find many uses for them, informal affairs that we don't know much about in advance, and those that "we know we never know how they will turn out."

This evening tailleur is mostly in peal d'ange or peau d'soi, with decidedly high waistline and with jacket coming barely to the waist in directoire effect. The blouses are decidedly evenigish, often rather elaborately decorated. And the skirt comes to 6 inches from the ankles.

Au revoir.

Culbertson on Bridge

WON BY WAITING.

ONE of the most difficult problems one is up against at Contract is that of the Opening lead against a notrump declaration. If one has a good, establishable suit of one's own, or if partner has bid a suit, one knows, of course, how to proceed, but otherwise one is very often in a real quandary.

The conventional lead in such circumstances—hallowed by a generation of usage—is that of the fourth best of one's longest suit. With many players this fourth best card is led automatically, the stronger suit being chosen where there are two four-card suits to select from. But all experienced players know that nothing should be done by rote. This situation—the making of a blind lead against a notrump declaration—is essentially one where it pays to take a little thought.

There is a lot to be said for this fourth best lead, in the sense that there are positive arguments in its favor, but what must be borne in mind, here or elsewhere, is that often one has to strike a balance of argument. There is something to be said for your lead of the fourth best and something also to be said against it, and in some situations, as I hope to show, there is a balance of argument against it. Take the following hand, which illustrates a situation with which every reader must be familiar:

Both sides were vulnerable and North-South 80 to 00. (A critical position for East-West.)

South dealt and bid one notrump. All passed. Neither East nor West, being vulnerable, could afford to risk any kind of sacrifice bid.

Now, what, in this position, was West to lead? The convention-ridden player, of whom I have just written, would plank out the two of clubs and hope for the best. But observe that if he plays a club West is leading away from a tenace position. He may, that is, be leading from a suit in which he holds, of significant cards, the second and fourth best, where his adversaries hold the best and third best. In such a position, obviously, a trick is gained if the third move is made by the adversary.

The same argument applies to the lead of the three of diamonds. Here again, West holding the Queen and nine twice guarded, may be risking the loss of a trick he could otherwise make if he opens the suit himself.

There remains the spade and heart suits. A spade lead from Q 10 x might clearly be suicidal; this, too, is, in its way, a tenace position, and hence the logic of the situation demands that the Opening lead should be a heart.

In the play of this particular hand the logic of the situation impressed itself upon West. He led the eight of hearts. East took the first trick with the King and—realizing that West's was a short-suit lead—returned the Knave of clubs. West took Trick 2 with the King and again led a heart. South now began to take tricks. He made 3 heart tricks, took Trick 6 in Dummy with the King of diamonds and finessed a diamond unsuccessfully against West's Queen. West now applied the important principle that if there is only one chance of saving a game, however unpromising, it should be taken. He led the Queen of spades through Dummy's King, and had the satisfaction of setting South's contract 1 trick.

In other words, the "waiting" lead of a heart at the first trick made all the difference between losing the rubber and saving it. If either a diamond or a club had been led, South must have made his contract, as nothing could prevent his taking the first trick and, in addition, the 6 tricks which, in fact, he made.

The moral: Even the most lightly held tenace position may be a tower of strength if one holds on to it.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Opening One Notrump Bid With Forcing Takeout.

A bid of three in a suit, over partner's one notrump, is a Forcing Takeout indicating about 3 honor-tricks. The bid suit will normally be a five-card suit or better. A response from the Opening bidder is obligatory.

Example:

♠ Q J 10 3	♠ A
♡ A Q 3	♡ 4
◇ K 10 6 3	◇ A Q J 7 5
♣ 7 3	♣ K Q 9 8 5 4

The Bidding:

Opening Hand	Resp'd'g Hand
1NT	3◇
3NT	4♣
4◇	6◇
Pass

The four club bid (reopening the bidding after a game contract has been reached) shows a hand which may well play for a Slam.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

A PROGRAM devoted entirely to works by contemporary American composers will be given by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, under the baton of Leopold Stokowski through Station WMAL tonight. This concert of American music will round out a series in which Mr. Stokowski has endeavored to trace the development of the art during three centuries.

"In order to produce this American program," Mr. Stokowski explained, "I have studied literally hundreds of scores, and I have found enough good works to leave no doubt that there is a large volume of worth-while music being written by many different composers in this country today. I found so many good scores that I hope to be able to present each year by means of radio the outstanding works of young and not very well-known American composers.

"For this program I have chosen works that are not based on European modes, but which show a definite American idiom in the way they are written, which have an American feeling underlying them, and which are, as far as possible, an expression of the conflicting tendencies, the contradictory cross-currents, the turmoil and the restless energy of American life as we know it."

Following is the program in detail:

The Pleasure Dome of Kubla Khan (Griffes).

Synchrony (Cowell).

Natchez-on-the-Hill, Virginia reels (Powell).

Music for the Theater (Copland).

Intermission—Program comments by Leopold Stokowski.

Nine Colors (Gruenberg).

Atonal Fugue (Dubensky).

His Humor, from Abraham Lincoln Symphony (Bennett).

Suite (Piston).

WITHIN the week, as soon as casting can be completed, rehearsals will start on a new play entitled "Coast to Coast," to be produced by John T. Adams, of the Adams Broadcasting Service. The show will open on Broadway in the latter part of April.

The author of the new play is Herbert Polesie, who has been for many years actively engaged in radio creation and is at present scenario chief of the Adams Broadcasting Service. As the title indicates, the play will deal with radio.

Just as Mr. Adams was the first impresario to arrange sponsored programs which brought artists from the legitimate concert and dramatic stage to the radio studios, so he is also the first of the radio program makers to enter the lists of Broadway legitimate producers.

Stars of the silver screen, led by Maurice Chevalier and Jeanette MacDonald, will broadcast from a Hollywood movie lot during the Lucky Strike dance hour over WEAF at 10 o'clock tonight.

Ernest Lubitsch, famous director, and Genevieve Tobin and Charles Ruggles, screen stars appearing with Miss MacDonald and Chevalier in their latest picture, "One Hour With You," also will be heard.

The remainder of the program will be given by Jimmy Grier and his orchestra, playing from Los Angeles.

THE thirteenth annual dinner of the Little Congress, an association of secretaries and attaches of senators and representatives in Congress, will be broadcast tonight (WMAL, 10:15).

Seven men who at one time served as assistants to members of Congress and who have since arisen to positions of increased responsibility and prominence in the Federal Government, will be heard on the program. Chief among them is Senator Wallace H. White, jr., of Maine, who was once secretary to his grandfather, Senator William T. Fry, of the same State. Senator White will share the spotlight as chief speaker of the evening with Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah.

Others who are former assistants who will speak are Representatives Paul J. Kvale, of Minnesota; Joe Crail, of California; Fritz Lanham, of Texas, and Carlton Mobley, of Georgia, "baby member" of the House.

The massed high school bands of the country assembled at Cleveland on Monday will be led by Capt. Taylor Branson, of the Marine Band, and the concert will be broadcast by WTAM, Cleveland, and other stations.

This program will be in connection with the Music Supervisors National Conference.

WHILE New York and Chicago are the radio centers of the country, there are a number of "network quality" orchestra conductors quietly building reputations at radio stations in the hinterland. Washington has been fortunate in having Harold Veo and Rudolph Schramm, both of whom might now be enjoying success in the larger broadcasting centers, available to direct local radio orchestras.

Veo is well known for his work at WRC as the conductor of the Wilkins Coffee quarter hour, which also features Margaret Cromwell, soprano, another local "network-quality" star. Schramm is heard frequently on the local stations, being particularly well known for his Washington Gas Light Co. and Torrid Heat programs.

Senators Royal S. Copeland, of New York; Robert J. Bulkley, of Ohio, and J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, will be among those heard over the WJZ network as they speak at the annual Jefferson Day dinner of the National Democratic Club in New York tonight at 10:15 o'clock.

Senator Copeland will introduce Mayor James J. Walker of New York.

The last two acts of Giuseppe Verdi's Egyptian opera, "Aida," will be broadcast over WRC from the Metropolitan Opera House at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. The opera was written for the opening of the Grand Opera House in Cairo, in 1871, and has gained wide popularity. It has been produced by the Metropolitan more than any other opera, 171 times to date. The story is laid in Memphis and Thebes, in the time of the Pharaohs.

Mario Chamlee, tenor, will be guest soloist on the Civic Concerts Service program at 8 o'clock tonight over WRC.

Revival Conducted By Texas Woman

Mrs. Dawson to Continue Services at Fifth Baptist Church.

An inspirational speaker from Texas, Mrs. J. M. Dawson, member of the faculty of Baylor University at Waco, is conducting an evangelistic campaign at the Fifth Baptist Church, 623 F street southwest, of which Dr. John E. Briggs is pastor. She will speak at 10 and 11 a. m., and at 7:40 p. m. tomorrow, and every evening during the week, at 7:45 o'clock.

Mrs. Dawson is said to have had a wonderful influence on the thousands of students who have passed through her hands at Baylor. Speaking to them has trained her for the particular work she is now doing.

Large congregations have heard her during this week, and there have been conversions and additions to the church at every service.

BERLIN URGES REIN ON FOREIGN MONEY

Drastic System of Rationing Asked to Insure Interest and Needed Imports.

Berlin, April 1 (U.P.).—A more drastic system of rationing Germany's meager supply of foreign currency was urged today by industrial leaders in an important statement designed to reassure foreign creditors.

The statement was issued by the federation of industries commercial committee, representing 120 of the nation's leading manufacturers and traders, after an all-day debate on the question of foreign currency.

The committee urged more drastic action in order to assure the continuance of payment of interest on foreign debts and the maintenance of essential imports, such as foodstuffs and raw materials, which Germany must have under any conditions.

It was understood that Krupp von Bohlen, the president of the federation, would soon visit Chancellor Heinrich Bruening to convey to the government leaders the decision of the industrialists. The action is expected to have a profound effect on the commercial policy of the government.

At present, it was pointed out, each importer is entitled to enough foreign money to finance only 55 per cent of the imports which he handled in 1930. Contrary to this arrangement, the federation urged that currency be apportioned among the importers on the basis of whether the goods they import are essential or "less essential" in character.

The statement also was calculated to reassure foreign borrowers and investors, who were said to have been disquieted by recent reports of a possible German moratorium.

The communique did not mention any possibility of a moratorium on long-term debts owed by Germany, but it was reported that the members of the committee were in agreement on certain measures in connection with short term debts.

It was said that, in view of the currency shortage, the members believed it desirable to recommend that the Government begin negotiations soon with a view to lowering rates of interest on foreign loans and also to postponing annuity payments.

Capital Wins Prize In Fire Prevention

Chosen as Honor City in National Interchamber Competition.

Because of its fire prevention record in 1931 Washington has been chosen as an honor city in the national interchamber fire waste contest. Official notification of this fact was received yesterday by the Washington Chamber of Commerce in a letter from President Silas H. Strawn, of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The report for Washington, upon which this award was based, was compiled by the Washington chamber with the cooperation of the District Fire Department, the water department, the building inspector, the municipal architect, and other public and private agencies.

Comparing 1931 with 1930 Washington had 633 fewer fires in the former year and the total property loss by fire (insured and uninsured) was $885,012 less than in 1930.

The Kevin Barry Council is acting as host for the National Race Conference to be held at the Hotel Hamilton, here April 10 to take action on the present Irish crisis.

The local committee in charge of the conference is composed of John F. Finerty, chairman; Francis A. McCann, secretary; Andrew I. Hickey, Mrs. Charles F. Murphy, Aeneas Collins, Anthony J. Barrett, Michael J. Lane, Thomas W. Lyons and Charles Edward Russell.

4 Branch Offices Of Gas Firm Close

Service Is Expected to Be Improved by Move, Officials Say.

As a result of the closing of four branch offices yesterday, service to customers of the Washington Gas Light Co. is expected to be greatly improved by centralization of sales and service activities at the main offices, 413 Tenth street northwest, officials of the company said yesterday.

The offices were originally opened about two years ago as an experiment and it is felt that they have served their purpose, but that better service can be rendered by concentration of sales and service supervision.

No reduction in personnel is contemplated as a result of this move. The offices closed were at 910 H street northeast, 3310 Fourteenth street northwest, 5632 Connecticut avenue northwest and in the Seco Theater Building, Rockville.

IN THE CINEMA HOUSES

PALACE

"THE BEAST OF THE CITY." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a story by W. R. Burnett, with dialogue and continuity by John L. Mahin, featuring Jean Harlow, Walter Huston, Wallace Ford and Jean Hersholt. Directed by Charles Brabin. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

The Jean Harlow who appears upon the screen in "The Beast of the City," at the Palace this week, is vastly less important in the eyes of the cash customers than the gorgeous platinum blonde who appears before them in her propria persona on the stage. This Miss Harlow, in the flesh, you should know, will exceed the most sanguine expectations of the army of admirers who will flock to see her.

The portions of her remarks across the footlights avowing a definite immunity from many of the sinister endowments she is compelled to assume before the cameras and microphones are completely superfluous. It is obvious to any discriminating observer the moment Miss Harlow makes her appearance that here is a beautiful young woman and a charming personality, gracious, natural, literate and utterly unspoiled by the success that has come to her so rapidly.

Assisted by the assured and glib Mr. Bert Frohman in the conduct of a sort of questions-and-answer colloquy, Miss Harlow presents no cut and dried "act" in the usual sense, but still by the sheer attractiveness of her person and the admirable poise that seems never to desert her, holds the stage agreeably for a considerable period of time. The turn is concluded by a little blackout skit and Miss Harlow's disavowal of the qualities the screen so often attributes to her coupled with a graceful and sincere expression of gratitude for the deafening salvos of applause that greet her every appearance and punctuate all that she does and much of what she says.

There is, contrary to the camera's misleading evidence, a glint of gold in the hair which, after all, is not the dead platinum it seems. I mention this merely because Miss Harlow is such an engaging, fresh and delightful personality that you might never notice it if I didn't.

As for "The Beast of the City," the title is the only seriously ill-judged thing about it. The pivotal figure in the play is the headquarters man, who becomes chief of police and dedicates his life—sacrificing it in the end—to the prodigious task of ridding the community of the gangster, whom the title accurately denominates, and his ominous henchmen. The picture frankly is the glorification of the officer of the law, as a welcome variation of the customary practice of making heroes of the hoodlums. President Hoover's well-known dictum on the matter is utilized as a prophetic foreword.

Miss Harlow's role in the picture is that of a smartly bedizened "stenographer" who acts as lure for Sam Belmonte's prospective accomplices—or victims, as the case may be. It is a part in which she plays with the most disarming naturalness she has ever brought to the screen.

Walter Huston is the chief of police who took his job seriously, and Jean Hersholt the big-time bandit who seems to me just a wee bit miscast. Wallace Ford acquits himself well in the thankless role of the kid who made a set-up of his brother by betraying his trust as a headquarters man to the crooks—a lapse for which he, too, paid with his life—and Dorothy Peterson is effective as Chief Jim Fitzpatrick's wife. Tully Marshall, Warner Richmond, John Miljan, Emmett Corrigan, Sandy Roth and J. Carroll Naish complete an ensemble perfectly chosen for type.

"The Beast of the City" is as direct, as pungent and as outspoken a melodrama as you are apt to come across in a month of Sundays and it ends with a miniature Battle of the Marne that will probably have you crawling under the seat!

The "Westward, Ho! Ho!" revue, is a colorful symposium of songs, dances and skits that enlists the services of both Bert Frohman and Don Barclay, the droll clown from burlesque, vaudeville and the "Follies," and is additionally notable for the presence of Robert Pitkin, last seen here as Ko-Ko, in "The Mikado," and Marion Eddy, a statuesque soprano with a voice capable of doing fair justice to the "One Fine Day" aria from Puccini's "Madam Buttrefly!" The Chester Hale Girls appear in a variety of effective routines.

All auxiliary attractions were omitted from the performance reviewed, the Harlow crowds having slowed the house schedule down to a walk.

Jean Harlow as she stepped off the "limited" which brought her to Washington yesterday morning. It is expected that the city will go on the "platinum" standard during the seven days of Miss Harlow's appearance at Loew's Palace Theater.

COLUMBIA

"TARZAN, THE APE MAN." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of the story by Edgar Rice Burroughs, adapted to the screen by Cyril Hume, featuring Johnny Weissmuller, Maureen O'Sullivan, Neil Hamilton and C. Aubrey Smith. Directed by W. S. Van Dyke.

It was inevitable that a picture affording such an abundance of action, adventure, thrills and sure-fire audience appeal as this fantastic and utterly unbelievable epic of studio wizardry should have done capacity business its first week and by the sheer delight of its hair-raising entertainment been forced into a continuance of its run through a second seven-day period.

With much genuine African scene and action—left over, if you must know, from the cutting and assembling of "Trader Horn"—have been combined, by methods of "processing" that must remain a mystery as far as this department is concerned, Hollywood sequences that are cleverly acted and convincingly staged. Johnny Weissmuller, Maureen O'Sullivan, C. Aubrey Smith, Neil Hamilton and numerous others offer performances that are fully in the spirit and the atmosphere of a fanciful but fascinating narrative.

As a zoological exhibit, "Tarzan" is almost in a class by itself. Elephants, lions, tigers, leopards, crocodiles, monkeys, gorillas, zebras, wildebeests, hyenas and goodness only knows what not, amble, charge and fight their way through the action with a savagery that keys the suspense up almost to the point where nerves break and pulses stop.

Altogether, probably the greatest utilization of hokum ever devised for the delivery of the individual from the stultifying humdrum of his daily routine. Don't miss it under any consideration. N. B. B.

FOX

"DISORDERLY CONDUCT." Fox picturization of a story by William Anthony McGuire, featuring Spencer Tracy, Ralph Bellamy, Sally Eilers and Frank Conroy. Directed by John W. Considine, Jr. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Motorcycle policemen, rum runners, hush money, underworld intrigues, graft, and ultimate redemption of the cop who strayed from grace are the essential elements going into the production of this latest bit of cinematic hash. Snatches of theatrical hokum, with these ingredients, are here strung together in a long series of incidents, occasionally punctuated by moments of brightness that raise the offering to the rank of a breezy entertainment.

As a motorcycle cop, motivated by the honorable idea that a strict observance of honesty is the best policy, Dick Fay (Spencer Tracy) arrests Phyllis Crawford (Sally Eilers) for speeding. Unfortunately, Phyllis is the daughter of the money side of a gang of bootleggers, who immediately get her off and Dick demoted to a flatfoot. This jolt to his altruistic philosophy of success convinces Dick that he can get away with a Jake Lingle racket, and so he develops an itching palm. All goes well until some of his fellow coppers get a line of the true state of affairs, and Dick is clapped into the hoosegow for insubordination.

Without giving him a chance to wise up his "clients," Dick is forced by Capt. Tom Manning (Ralph Bellamy) to lead a raid on a big "club." Tony Alsotto, (Frank Conroy), the big shot, gets bailed out and makes an attempt to erase Dick. Dick escapes, but his little nephew (Dickie Moore) gets fatally slugged. This catastrophe brings Dick to his senses and he redeems himself in the eyes of Capt. Manning and the rest of the public—and cash customers.

On the stage, the Fanchon & Marco "Black and White" idea offers the note of real entertainment, with Clifton and Brent doing some clever eccentric acrobatic dancing; Dolly Kramer, pint-size comedienne, singing a hot number and stepping no more coolly; Margaret Alice Head furnishing the piano accompaniment for Rose Glesby's English version of "Liebestraum," and Marie LeFlohic's solo acrobatic dance routine; and the line girls appearing in a delightful classical number and a "disappearing" routine before a black drop.

The outstanding feature of the bill, of course, is the appearance of F. Chase Taylor and Wilbur Budd Hulick—better known to Mr. Heinl's public as Col. Stoopnagle and Budd. Their interpretation of "Certified Candidates," or politics gone commercial over the air, featuring initiations of Calvin Coolidge and Alfred E. Smith, has the audience howling with glee and all but rolling in the aisles.

METROPOLITAN

"THE FINAL EDITION." Columbia Pictures' filmisation of Roy Chanslor's story, featuring Mae Clarke and Pat O'Brien. Directed by Howard Higgin. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

Here is a newspaper gal's wildest dream come true.

And consequently it is pretty wild, far-fetched and unbelievable, but, for all that, mighty interesting and with as tense a climax as any recent flicker can boast. (In fact, there are a whole series of breathless little climaxes leading to the big moment—give Director Higgin a hand.)

Ann Woodman, reporter, gets more breaks than the bull made in the china shop, in scooping everybody on the paper from which she has just been fired, and everybody on every other paper, on the solution of an important murder. And does she have a grand time, and did we, as she hijacks that swaggering city editor into another job and a raise!

Conroy, new police commissioner, is murdered through the machinations of a "higher-up" whom he was out to get—his private file of evidence against the "big shot" being carefully rifled ahead of time.

Ann walks off with Mrs. Conroy; does a little plain and fancy eaves dropping, learns of the rifled file; puts two and two together, getting four more than any one else; hikes off to a sunny beach to shadow the gangster-gentleman whom she suspects; gets the room next to his and doesn't stay in hers; finds the evidence, and when you're absolutely sure she's not only too good for everybody in the play, but, also, to live, she makes a boner and only ye good old editor saves her from a nice long ride.

Lots of good, clean, illogical fun, and, we repeat, interesting and exciting if plausibility isn't a prime requisite.

Wallis Clark makes the brief role of Conroy stand out brilliantly with altogether splendid character etching. Mae Clark is her usual more than capable self, portraying the lucky lady, who is bright enough to make her luck and use it, too. She plays with a nice sense of humor.

Pat O'Brien again upholds that tradition of the staccato editor in his traditional frozen-face manner. He was Hildy Johnson right enough in "Front Page," but he's been just Pat O'Brien ever since.

The accompanying feature, "The Studio Mystery," is no great shakes, being not nearly so good as preceding plays of this S. S. Van Dine series.

A mirthful Merrie Melodie, with a dachsund showing how football interference should be run, and an unusually interesting newsreel complete the bill.

RIALTO

"STEADY COMPANY." Universal picturization of the story by Edward Luddy, adapted to the screen by Earl Snell, featuring Norman Foster, June Clyde, ZaSu Pitts and Henry Armetta. Directed by Edward Ludwig. Reviewed Friday night by Don B. Reed.

Without ZaSu Pitts and Henry Armetta, "Steady Company" wouldn't be much to write about, but with them present, there is enough comedy to lift the picture a little above the ordinary run of program photoplays. Armetta has the bigger of the two comedy parts and he rants and raves in his explosive Italian way to a thousand laughs.

There is not much of a story. Jim, a truck driver, seeking for better things via the prize ring, is capably played by Norman Foster, who is pretty handy with his dukes. He falls for Peggy, a telephone operator, who ditches him when she learns he is a fighter. However, she returns to save him when a defeat in the ring threatens his career. Peggy is a role acceptably filled by June Clyde, whose smile is a much bigger factor in her appeal than any conspicuous ability.

ZaSu Pitts, as Dot, Peggy's coworker and roommate, and Mr. Armetta, as the shoemaker who has been a "father" to Jimmy, and later becomes his manager, create enough humor to keep the story from being just hokum. Armetta's big scene is where Jimmy has a rival fighter out on his feet and he tosses a towel in the ring because he sees the other manager about to do the same thing.

It is hard to imagine a fighter receiving big offers after that, but Jimmy does and the final fadeout finds him on the threshold of a bout in the "Garden."

Auxiliary subjects are of almost as much interest as the feature, the best being another detective story, "The Red Shadow," which has plenty of thrills and not a few complications. An Oswald, the Rabbit, song cartoon called, "Wins Out," is fairly amusing, but as much can not be said for "Torchy's Night Cap," featuring Ray Cooke. The Universal News, with Graham McNamee broadcasting, completes the program.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT just occurs to me that if any one had it in mind, now would be a very elegant time to put on a performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's everlasting classic, "The Mikado."

With Vivienne Segal and Charles Purcell, appearing in "The Chocolate Soldier," at the National, are Marian Palmer and John Dunsmure, the Yum-Yum and Mikado, respectively, of the recent revival of the Nipponese satire in which Mme. Schumann-Heink appeared at the Belasco. Around the corner at Loew's Palace, in the "Westward, Hi! Ho!" revue, is Robert Pitkin, the veteran stage comic, who played Ko-Ko, the Lord High Executioner, in the same production. Since I once devoted the spun-gold tones of an especially dulcet voice—and am I laughing!—to the role of Katisha . . .

But we won't go into that!

I am reminded by Mr. Sigmund's mimeographed publicity notice No. 10,113 that Saturday nights at the Club Michel, occupying the former Le Paradis premises on Thomas Circle, are reminiscent of Monte Carlo and the continent.

On that evening each week an "atmosphere of dignity and opulence pervades the smart night club . . . the large room itself is decorated in a most attractive manner, that is quite foreign . . . Conniseurs have acclaimed Club Michel one of the most gorgeous in America . . . the general effect of the deep red and gold decorations, the jewels and gowns of the women, the exotic rhythm of Pete Macias and his Club Michel Orchestra and the very unusual dancing of Donna and Darrell create an atmosphere that has made the grill the cynosure of all eyes."

Boy, that's tellin' 'em!

And since you have lashed yourself into such a frenzy about it, here is a brief recital of the eagerly awaited subjects that are to bring distinction to Loew's "Cherry Blossom Festival of Hits"—otherwise, the regular bookings for the month of April:

First, of course, is Jean Harlow, in person and on the screen. Then on April 8 is the Eastern premiere of "The Wet Parade," the screen version of the gripping novel by Upton Sinclair.

Following closely is "Grand Hotel," with as imposing an array of stars as have ever graced the silver screen in any one movie: Greta Garbo, Joan Crawford, Lionel and John Barrymore, Wallace Beery, Lewis Stone, Jean Hersholt and Tully Marshall.

Another of the "Festival" hits is "Strange Interlude," with Norma Shearer and Clark Gable. It is the screen version of Eugene O'Neill's nine-act stage play.

Marie Dressler and Polly Moran are included in the list with "Prosperity," and also in the way of comedy is Robert Montgomery's latest, "But the Flesh Is Weak."

Still another is the great gangster play, "Scarface," and yet one more is "The Miracle Man," done over in talkie form.

Two other of the shows on the "Festival" line-up are "Strangers in Love," with Kay Francis and Frederic March, and "The Wiser Sex."

Since many of these productions are from the studios of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, you might be interested, too, in knowing that Jean Harlow, the gorgeous creature who is making a week of personal appearances at the Palace, has been signed to a seven-year contract by that company and is the actress finally decided upon to play the stellar role in "Redheaded Woman"—a part the studio has been having an excessively tough time trying to fill to its satisfaction.

Clara Bow was among those seriously considered for the part, but the Brooklyn conflagration, so the story goes, didn't even nibble.

The human body, by the way, is said to replace itself completely every seven years—don't pin me down too closely now, metabolism or cellular warfare or something. Surely it can't be that M-G-M made it a seven-year contract because they hope for some improvement by the end of that time!

Well, if that's it, they're just plumb crazy! Imbeciles, idiots, fools, dolts and jassacks, not to mention the little matter of being off their nuts!

Col. Stoopnagle and Budd, known to radio listeners as the "Gloom Chasers," opening on the Fox bill yesterday, made their first appearance on the vaudeville stage together just eight weeks ago. They met with instant success and unanimous praise, resulting in a contract to tour all the principal cities in the United States.

Immediately upon their return to New York, these comedians are planning to accept an offer to appear in the fall edition of an annual Broadway revue, part of which will be written by "The Colonel."

Now that the good Dr. Ziegfeld's "Hot-Cha!" has got into its stride in New York—restored largely to the form in which we saw it here—the enthusiastic verdict of the Washington critics seems not to have been so far wrong.

The piece is clicking along right merrily these days, with the turnstiles turning up something like $45,000 a week—the biggest weekly gross now being recorded along that hypothetical Broadway, which in this instance happens to be Sixth avenue!

I'll give the F street cowboys until about Monday to begin greeting each other as they stagger in and out of the soda fountains, "Harlow, fella, how've you been?"

Dealers and Salesmen Entertained by Morris

Edgar Morris, president of Edgar Morris Sales Co., distributors of Westinghouse refrigerators, entertained all local and adjacent county salesmen and dealers of Westinghouse refrigerators last night at a meeting and dinner at the Raleigh Hotel. Ninety-five dealers and their salesmen were guests. Included among the guests were Melvin C. Sharpe, of the Potomac Electric Power Co., and John L. Myers, president of the Electric League of Washington.

Game Sanctuary Bill Advances.

The House District judiciary subcommittee yesterday ordered a favorable report on a bill to make Potomac waters within the District a sanctuary for wild birds and game.

15,000 WATCH JAZ AGE ANNEX INAUGURAL HANDICAP; NATS RALLY IN NINTH TO WIN FROM DODGERS, 11 TO 10

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

Biloxi, Miss., April 1.

THIS correspondent is beginning to see the dim outlines of a figure recognizable as Joseph Ignatius Judge at first base for the Washington ball club when the bell rings on April 11 for the start of the American League pennant race.

The developments of the last few days in the training camp of the Nats here point unmistakably to the fact that the Washington management has undergone something of a change of heart in the first base situation and that Judge has begun to take precedence over young Joe Kuhel for the job that had apparently been assigned to Kuhel.

Not that Kuhel has failed in the battle for the position. He hasn't had a fair trial yet, owing to his injured hand that has kept him out of the line-up for a week. But Manager Johnson apparently inclines to the theory now that Kuhel can watch and wait with no impairment to his development while Judge is still very capable of giving the Nats first-water protection at the position.

Judge came to Biloxi deep in disappointment that the projected trade with Detroit, where he could play regularly, failed to go through. He came after a winter in the gymnasium prepared to wage a stubborn battle for the position with his younger rival.

It was announced by both Manager Johnson and President Griffith that it would be an even break for Judge. If he could win his job from Kuhel, well enough. If he couldn't, Kuhel would be retained at first base. When he was withheld from the line-up of the early games and Kuhel sent to first base, Judge's admirers were entitled to ask when the 50-50 break would start.

But they gave Joe his chance and he has made good with a vengeance, fielding in all his old-time brilliance and inspiring and steadying the infield with his presence, besides slapping the ball to all fields for good distances, and Johnson has been truly impressed by his play.

The Washington Club doesn't want to trade Judge, and proposed deals have fallen on deaf ears because Judge is held to be of greater value to the Nats than any material offered. President Griffith has repeatedly stated that it is his desire that both Judge and Sam Rice spend the remainder of their baseball days with Washington in deference to their many years of service with the club.

Yesterday Griffith and Johnson were approached by Max Carey concerning possible waivers out of the American League on Judge and a trade with Brooklyn, which is in dire need of a first baseman as a result of the injuries to Del Bissonette.

Brooklyn received no encouragement to talk trade for the reason that Judge's fine condition and play with the Nats in the exhibition games was of such caliber that it would be folly to trade him. There was still the possibility that Kuhel might not justify expectations, and if he did, it was still a question with Johnson if Kuhel could compare with Judge.

The Washington Club's high regard for Judge's value is further sustained by the fact that trading the veteran this season would net the Nats twice as much in cash or player talent than if it traded him next season. Should Judge spend the greater part of this season on the Washington bench out of active play, other clubs would justifiably be hesitant about dealing for a 38-year-old first baseman who had become rusty from lack of play, and their offers, if any, would be revised sharply downward.

Thus Washington's disinclination to trade Judge is apparent.

If the Washington Club had the desire to trade Judge to a National League team, the difficulty in obtaining waivers on him by the American League clubs might not be as great as at first apparent.

The Cleveland Indians, with Eddie Morgan, and the Detroit Tigers, with Dale Alexander covering first base, would certainly be the ones to put in claims for Judge, but here the personal firendship of Judge and Manager Peckinpaugh and Manager Harris might enter the scene.

Both Harris and Peckinpaugh might waive on Judge out of this personal friendship if the opportunity presented itself for Judge to better his position and the ways smoothed for his passing out of the league, but the Nats want to keep Judge around for a long while, and Judge wants to play in Washington.

McCormick to Coach Minnesota Athletes

Minneapolis, April 1 (A.P.).—Frank McCormick, who locked up his law library in South Dakota to return to coaching athletics, accepted appointment as athletic director at the University of Minnesota today.

For two years he has been baseball coach and backfield coach in football at Minnesota, under Herbert O. (Fritz) Crisler, whom he will succeed July 1. Crisler goes to Princeton as head football coach.

CRONIN'S BAT BRINGS VICTORY IN INITIAL MAJOR LEAGUE TEST

Marberry Pounded by Robins After Hitting Home Run.

Manush Leads Batters While Judge Gets Timely Triple.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH
(Sports Editor of The Post).

BILOXI, Miss., April 1.—The Brooklyn boys were leading by two runs as the game wore into the last half of the ninth inning, but it was April Fool's Day. The Nats pulled some last ditch pranks with all seriousness in their last turn at bat and placarded the Brooklyn boys with an 11-to-10 defeat that was no joke.

All the boys made free and easy with the pitching this afternoon as Biloxi turned a banner crowd of 2,000 for the Nats' first major league opposition of the exhibition season. But Joe Cronin proved the real cut-up of the afternoon when he smashed a single into left field that untied the score and climaxed the Nats' stirring three-run rally. Previously such things as a home run to deep center field by Fred Marberry had reminded the assembled gathering of the significance of the date, but the Nats weren't fooling in the ninth.

Ragland Grants Three Runs In Eighth.

Frank Ragland had permitted the Dodgers to score three runs in the eighth and the Nats went into the ninth laboring under a two-run disadvantage. At this juncture Fred Heimach lost control of the situation, walking Judge and Bluege with none out. Manager Johnson sent little Johnny Kerr to the bat in place of Ragland to do what he could do about the situation, and Johnny sent a hot shot through shortstop that went for a double which retrieved one run.

Manager Max Carey waved Heimach off the mound and replaced him with Arthur Jones, a rookie from Hartford, and ultimately, it was established, the joke was on Jones. Moe Berg drew a walk that filled the bases, but the Dodgers choked off the tying run at home when Stripp took Myer's grounder and threw to Picinich for a force out.

There were still three on and one out when Manush larruped a single to right field, scoring Kerr. But Berg was held up at third with the winning run. Sammy West didn't think it was any joke when Umpire Van Grafian called him out on a third strike for the third time today, and he told Van Grafian as much, but Van Grafian wasn't fooling, and the Nats' rally appeared to be dying with the score tied.

Cronin's Single Breaks Up Game.

Joe Cronin was next up, but he wasn't at the plate long. Young Jones' first pitch was rudely intercepted as it crossed the plate and bounced off Cronin's bat for a line single to left that scored Sam Rice with the winning run, Rice, fleeter of foot, having replaced Berg on third base, in the anticipation that something might happen.

Yo couldn't be quite sure of anything today. The Nats scored four runs off Joe Shaute in the second inning, but they didn't stand up because Brooklyn lambasted Fred Marberry for seven hits and six runs in their next time at bat. But it took more than one six-run inning to win a game on this All Fools' Day.

Lloyd Brown relieved Marberry in the sixth and permitted one run in two innings, but it was the Nats' ability to peck away at the offerings of Shaute and Heimach for one run at a time in four different innings that made a contest out of the ball game.

Marberry injected his home run into the proceedings in the second inning after Reynolds and Judge had singled and Bluege had tripled, and four runs were the result. Then the Dodgers began to play and six runs resulted off Marberry in this fashion:

Finn singled, Lopez popped out, Shaute singled, Cohen singled, Frederick singled, Stripp walked, Wilson grounded out, Wright singled, Cuccinello singled, and Finn singled for the second time. Marberry finally got the side out—a hollow success inasmuch as it was a line drive by Lopez to Bluege.

The Nats got a run back in the third when West and Reynolds singled

Baseball Fans to Pay Ticket Tax, If Any

St. Louis, Mo., April 1 (A.P.).—Admission prices to baseball games here will be increased if the new Federal amusement tax, providing an assessment of 10 per cent on baseball tickets, is passed by Congress, President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals said here today.

Breadon said he understood club owners of both major leagues had agreed to add the tax to ticket prices in event the law is passed.

Rules Body Urges Faster Cage Play

Revisions Toward Speeding Up Game Presented to Coaches.

Chicago, April 1 (A.P.).—A vigorous plea for a uniform interpretation of rules was made by George Keogan, of Notre Dame, at today's session of the National Association of Basket Ball Coaches' meeting.

Keogan, chairman of the committee on officials, presented the argument that teams going out of their own sections were handicapped by varying interpretations of the rules. The suggestion was favorably received and will be acted upon tomorrow.

Other suggestions for changes in rules centered about efforts to speed up the game. The rules committee outlined a set of prospective revisions and additions, the more important of which are:

1—Place a limit on the length of time a player may hold the ball after receiving it off the backboard.

2—Declare the ball dead after a player has held it five seconds whether or not he is closely guarded.

3—Eliminate the tipoff, placing the ball in play from out of bounds.

4—Revise the foul shot rule to "cancel" free throws at the end of the half and the end of the game and permit the team having a surplus to shoot.

The suggestions for speeding up the game by imposing time limits are new, but the proposal to eliminate the tipoff has been rejected before.

Before the discussion of proposed rule changes today, the coaches heard Maj. John L. Griffith, Western Conference commissioner of athletics, and E. C. Quigley, National League umpire and Missouri Valley Conference basket ball official, speak.

Manich-Stein Meet On Mat at Strand

George Manich, the fist brandishing matman who has made a hit in Washington, will be given another severe test of his worth next Thursday night, when he runs up aganist Sammy Stein, Jewish champion, at the Strand Theater.

Four other bouts will be added to this feature during the week. Stein, rated up among the first five wrestlers, has never been beaten here. Manich was undefeated until he ran into Jim Londos last week and pressed the Greek champion all the way.

Ladies with escorts will be admitted free.

Wyckoff Meets Kiesel In Coast Test Today

Berkeley, Calif., April 1 (A.P.).—Dedication of a $250,000 stadium and a sprinting duel between world's champion Frank Wykoff and Bob Kiesel, sophomore star, will feature a track meet here tomorrow between the powerful Southern California Trojans and the University of California Bears.

As a track meet, the affair figures to be one-sided, observers are merely speculating on how many points Southern California will roll up. The Trojans won the national intercollegiate championship in 1930 and repeated last year.

But in Kiesel, California has a youngster who is expected to furnish Wykoff with fair opposition in the 220-yard dash. Wykoff has a time of 9.4 seconds up for recognition as a world's 100-yard record and probably will run away from Kiesel in this event.

Kiesel's best time for the century this year is 9.7.

Harridge Against Baseball Ballyhoo

Conscientious Effort Draws Fans, League Head Declares.

Chicago, April 1 (A.P.).—Concentrated, conscientious effort on the part of baseball players and not ballyhoo brings fans to baseball games, Will Harridge, president of the American League, said today after reading John McGraw's appeal for more showmanship in the national pastime.

"It's my opinion that the star ball player by his actions on the field does his own ballyhooing," President Harridge said. "If ordinary ball players or false alarms, such as rise from time to time, are built up and overpublicized, the result, contrary to helping a club, is damaging. The fan of today knows his baseball, and if the crowds are to be drawn to the parks there must be concentrated and conscientious effort."

Manager McGraw's statement that umpires are too pacifistic drew this from Harridge:

"There is one function for the umpires and that is to render decisions to the best of their ability. Their belligerence or lack of it should have nothing to do with gate receipts."

Yanks, Whose Hopes Depend on Pitching, Traded Off Good Boxmen in 1929-1930

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, April 1 (A.P.).—Experts say that all the New York Yankees need to break the Athletics' stranglehold on the American League this coming season is a small matter of large pitchers. A baker's dozen games separated the two clubs at the close of 1931.

And those same Yankees, needing hurling so badly, must wonder if every trading day in 1929 and 1930 wasn't April fools' day. The talent frittered away in those two years alone came back in other major league livery last season with enough strength to pitch 44 victories.

The Yanks, of course, have George Pipgras, Lefty Gomez, the large Red Ruffing, Herb Pennock, Ed Wells and other assorted hurlers, but what a difference Waite Hoyt, Tom Zachary, Wilcy Moore, Lefty Heimach and even Sad Sam Jones would make in the pitching problems that now confront Manager Joe McCarthy.

After Moore, the bald farmer with the bewildering sinker ball, slowed down from nineteen-victory pace in 1927, because of a sore arm, the Yanks let him go to St. Paul in 1930. Last year he won eleven games for the Boston Red Sox, a sixth-place club.

Hoyt, star of two Yankee splurges, drifted off to Detroit with Mark Koenig in 1930 in exchange for some fellows named Carroll, Wuestling and Harry Rice, only to bob up last year winning thirteen games for Detroit and the Athletics. This spring Brooklyn has him. He is in perfect form again, and only yesterday held Baltimore to two hits in five innings of a practice game.

Likewise Tom Zachary, the ancient left-hander, took a new lease of life when the Yanks stamped him obsolete and waived him to the Braves in 1930. Long Tom won eleven games for Boston that season and another eleven last year. Lefty Heimach, another result of the 1929 wave of generosity, bobbed up winning nine games for Brooklyn in 1931.

The Giants cast adrift Pete Donohue, who now looks good for big league duty again with the Red Sox, even if only as a relief pitcher.

Away back before the war, the Yankees gave up Dazzy Vance as a bad job and Dazzy has only been averaging 17.5 victories a season for the last ten years with Brooklyn. Then, too, the Giants made a noble gesture nine years ago by waiving Rube Walberg out of the league, and, a little later, disposed of Pat Malone, now the fireball artist of the Cubs.

In contrast, however, is the case of Red Ruffing. The Yanks got Ruffing in 1930 from the Boston Red Sox for Cedric Durst, an alleged outfielder, and Rufus the Red won sixteen games last season.

Seat Reservations Are Good Until Today

Secretary Edward B. Eynon, jr., of the Washington Baseball Club, has announced that reservations for the opening game against the Boston Red Sox here on April 11 will be held until today at 5:30 p. m. All reservations not called for at Griffith Stadium will be canceled at that time.

BERG FIGHTS FULLER TO DRAW

Briton Twice Floored Comes Back to Even Battle.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Jackie (Kid) Berg, the White Chapel whirlwind, came far enough back along the road to his old place near the top of the lightweights tonight to hold Sammy Fuller, a little bulldog of a fighter from Boston, to a draw in a bristling ten-round duel before a crowd of 12,000.

Twice Berg, battling desperately to come back after a long rest and two bad beatings by the class champion, Tony Canzoneri, was on the floor. Once in the fifth he went down for a count of five and again in the eighth for a count of one just as the closing bell rang. But neither of these knockdowns, the first the result of a low right swing, nor the steady stream of thudding wallops Fuller poured into the Englishman's body, could stop Berg fom pounding forward enough to gain the draw verdict.

Opinion Divided on Verdict.

Both judges called the contest a draw, and Referee Jack Dening voted for Berg, but a large part of the crowd and many of the newspapermen thought Fuller, by his cleaner punching, had won a slight edge. The Associated Press score card gave Fuller six rounds —the first and the last five—and Berg the other four.

Until he tired under Fuller's steady body thumping in the sixth, Berg made a brilliant fight of it. He stormed from his corner at each bell in the headlong, ceaseless punching style that carried him through the list of lightweight contenders in two title matches with Canzoneri. But his punches for the most part lacked authority.

Fuller gave way before the leather storm, and held whenever he could, until the fifth. Then he caught Berg charging in with a full right swing that landed low on the Briton's body and dropped him to one knee, complaining of the foul. Berg came up at five, however, and under the New York State Athletic Commission rules barring foul endings Fuller's only punishment was loss of the round.

Berg Slowed by Blow.

That blow, and Fuller's body ripping attack, slowed Berg down, however, and he could not match the

St. Paul to Stage P. G. A. Title Golf

Pros to Stage Event in August or September on Public Course.

St. Paul, April 1 (A.P.).—The National Professional Golfers Association will determine its 1932 champion at Keller, a Ramsey County fee course, either August 29 to September 3 or September 5 to 10.

Announcement that the P. G. A. play, for the first time, would be over a public course was made today by the St. Paul Junior Association of Commerce. At the same time, that organization decided the tournament would be substituted for the annual St. Paul $10,000 open

A. R. Gates, executive head of the P. G. A., in conference with junior association officers, said the professionals are unanimous in their desire to have the championship settled on Keller course. Experience with the layout during the St. Paul open has made it a favorite of the professionals, who expect to find the going more difficult this year.

New Champs Crowned In A. A. U. Swimming

WOMEN GOLF RIVALS IN FINALS

Mrs. Hill and Miss Orcutt Meet for Pinehurst Title.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 1 (A.P.). Maureen Orcutt, the Englewood, N. J., star, who won the North and South women's championship last year, and Mrs. Opal Hill, of Kansas City, will meet tomorrow for the 1932 crown as well as the deciding honors of the Southern winter season.

Miss Orcutt celebrated her 25th birthday today by beating Mrs. Sarah Fownes Wadsworth, of Pittsburgh, 5 and 4, while Mrs. Hill was winning a close semifinals match from Margaret Maddox, of Atlanta, the Georgia champion, 2 up.

Mrs. Hill Beat Rival Recently.

Mrs. Hill won the North and South in 1928 and defeated Miss Orcutt two weeks ago at Augusta. A victory tomorrow would put her even with Miss Orcutt for Southern honors this winter as the New Jersey girl won at St. Augustine and Palm Beach.

Both the finalists came from behind to win today, Mrs. Hill especially having a tough battle with her long-driving opponent from Georgia.

Mrs. Hill had an 83 for her 18-hole battle with Miss Maddox, while the Georgia girl had an 87. Miss Orcutt was out in 40 and shot the five holes played on the inward nine in even par. Mrs. Wadsworth had a 43 going out.

All-South Golfers Play at Pinehurst

Pinehurst, N. C., April 1 (A.P.).—The tenth annual golf match between the Pinehurst and All-South team will be played over the No. 2 course here tomorrow.

This year the All-South team is headed by Will Gunn, of Philadelphia, brother of Watts Gunn, famous Atlantan, and includes J. B. Ryerson, of Cooperstown, N. Y.; Robert A. Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio, and Jimmy Robbins, of Merion, Pa., former Princeton golf captain.

WINTER ACE DEFEATS VACILLATE, PANETIAN AT BOWIE'S OPENING

Winner Cleverly Handled by Hanford; Choices Beaten.

Trueman Trains Trio of Victors; Close Finishes Seen.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

JAZ AGE, as speedy as the period from which he draws his name and with little Jockey Hanford fairly dancing in silks of that red so popular on F street, rumba'd down the stretch to victory in the tenth annual running of the Inaugural Handicap, which served feature purposes as King Horse was welcomed back to within easy reach of Eastern turf followers at Bowie yesterday.

Fifteen thousand turned out for the spring home-coming, lured by the long racing drought and the clear skies, which left the only real discomforts to the horses, forced to earn their feed over a strip muddy as the result of 24 hours of rain.

Jaz Age's victory was not entirely popular, as his win price of $15.20 attests, but the gelding proved his superiority at the weights, having a length advantage over Vacillate, which finished ahead of the favored Panetian.

Winter Track Horses Predominate.

The race was strictly between those horses which campaigned during the winter, although Follow On drew some heavy backing, and netted J. Parmalee, the winner's owner, $3,480 of the $5,000 added purse. The time of 1:13 was fast under the conditions.

Jaz Age served notice that he was to be reckoned with by breaking in front. Jockey Hanford took a tighter grip going down the back stretch, and Vacillate, Havana star, took command. The heavily weighted Panetian was far back at this stage, with Pancho Lopez third. At the stretch turn Hanford again sent Jaz Age to the front, this time to stay. Vacillate was being pressed by Panetian. They stayed in their respective positions for the remaining distance.

Elmer Trueman, Washington trainer, supplied three of the day's winners, two owned by Howard Bruce. These were Acautaw, Avalon and Jolly Pilot, the latter from the Audley Farm. The trio, as well as Towee, which won the fourth race, were making their first starts of the year.

It was not until Jaz Age and Mgr-snuff scored that the winter track contingent earned brackets.

Bruce Stable Wins First Two Races.

Howard Bruce's Maryland-bred Acautaw made good at the first asking, taking the opening race from a field of twelve juveniles, the majority of which were facing the barrier for the first time. Jockey Albert Johnson, just out of the hospital after a tonsil operation, was forced to put the son of Trojan to a hard

Body Approves Clash Of Schmeling-Sharkey

Chicago, April 1 (U.P.).—The international championship committee has approved the Max Schmeling-Jack Sharkey bout scheduled for New York in June as a world's heavyweight title bout, the National Boxing Association announced today.

The international committee is composed of Thomas A. Murphy, chairman of the Canadian Federation of Boxing Commissions; Paul Rosseau, secretary of the International Boxing Union; Charles F. Donnall, secretary of the British Boxing Board of Control, and Latrobe Cogswell, of the National Boxing Association.

"Taxicab" Annexes HornedToad Derby

Eddie Cantor's "Whoopee" Is Out of Money in Thrilling Race.

Palm Springs, Calif., April 1 (A.P.). Taxicab, a lanky, gimlet-eyed desert scooter, from the stables of a Los Angeles motor livery company, today ran away from the high powered entries of the Hollywood movie colony and captured the first international horned toad derby.

A synthetic revival of the pioneer West was achieved in scenic Palm Canyon, where the race was held. Old miners, and cowhands, mingled with Hollywood film personages, Gov. James Rolph, jr., of California, and officials from nearby Mexican states.

The movie capital had to be satisfied with only a "show" in the race. George Bancroft's entry, Sure Shot, came in third. Second place went to El Mirador, entry of Joe Fladwed, of Palm Springs, a hotel clerk.

The comedian, Eddie Cantor, chief judge of the derby, sorrowfully watched his highly touted steed, Whoopee, finish completely out of the money. In fact there was some doubt as to whether Whoopee ever finished at all.

Editor of Columbia U. Spectator Expelled

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Reed Harris, editor of the Columbia Spectator and a harsh critic of intercollegiate football, was expelled from Columbia University today by Dean Herbert E. Hawkes, acting with the approval of President Nicholas Murray Butler.

Dean Hawkes said he would issue a formal statement saying Harris' expulsion was "due to the discourtesy, innuendoes and misrepresentation" which had appeared in the college newspaper. Harris called football a "racket" last fall and asserted college players at Columbia and elsewhere were in reality "semiprofessionals."

A GREAT MONEY'S WORTH

Perhaps in the past a stringent clothing budget did not permit you to buy the best. But now you can. You can get a suit handcrafted by Kuppenheimer for no more than you pay for clothes of less style and durability. These reduced prices, combined with all the advantages of Kuppenheimer quality, make these suits the biggest money's worth anywhere.

drive to take the purse from J. E. Davis' Indiantown, another son of Trojan. Lough Port, by The Porter—Lough Eask, was third. The field got off with little delay and Lough Port took the lead. Indiantown challenged at the far turn. Robertson moved Acautaw up to second turning into the stretch after Indiantown had gone to the front. The two youngsters fought it out in the stretch with Acautaw going ahead to stay at the sixteenth pole.

Bruce made it a double when Avalon, with Sonny Workman in the saddle, scored a popular victory in the second race. H. G. Bedwell's Fair Jack finished second in front of the Pauline Stable's tiring Sun Memory. The Okah set the early pace followed by Sun Memory with Avalon, off slowly, back in the field. With the stretch turn reached, Sun Memory looked like a winner, but Robertson took the gelding to the rail and Avalon, Benish Way and Fair Jack moved up. Workman outrode his rivals to score by a length and a quarter.

Robertson Puts Up Good Ride On Jolly Pilot.

Jockey Robertson gave further evidence of his good health by putting up a rousing ride to take the first division of The Promenade with the Audley Farm's Jolly Pilot. Robertson brought the Sir Barton gelding up to win by a nose from Open Hearth, the favorite. Ladfield, which set a fast pace, managed to take third money, a head behind Open Hearth.

The start was delayed by Jolly Pilot and Open Hearth and the ultimate winner failed to get away with the top group. Ladfield drew away to a good lead at the far turn but hung slightly in the stretch, leaving the main battle to Jolly Pilot and Open Hearth.

The second division of The Promenade went to the Sagamore Stable's Towee by a nose margin over Brave and Bold, from the Mereworth Stud. Don Romiro accounted for third money. Lord Tournament did the expected in breaking on top of these 3-year-olds, followed by Towee and Arrow. The Trueman owned and Trueman-trained colt went wide in the stretch, while Towee, on the inside, took the lead. Brave and Bold came with a rush in the last sixteenth and would have accounted for the chief money in another stride. The winner, Arrow, on which Jockey Jockey Bejshak had the mount on Mills was making his Maryland debut, dropped back after being a keen factor up to the home swing.

The narrowest margin that they count at the race track, a nose, gave Morsnuff a victory over Impish in the sixth. Jockey Neil hustled Morsnuff to the front and the 5-year-old appeared to like the sticky track. But like or no like, it appeared that Morsnuff was tiring as the field swung into the stretch. Impish, which had been hanging on the tailgate, suddenly decided to get going and did just that. Morsnuff appeared to be tied just off the mutuel board and Impish was moving at express train speed. Many thought Impish had won but, as usual, the judges did the final thinking. The 1931 fall star, Bubola, finished third.

Garlic, owned and operated by R. B. Allen, supplied the wining punch in the final. This 4-year-old led Judge Caverly home. Make Believe, after making it a long wait at the post, was in third place, just ahead of Petabit.

JOE AND ASBESTOS —By Ken Kling

Open Hearth lost by a whisker yesterday and Asbestos is plenty hot. He only plays horses two ways, win and show, and yesterday's two bucks were on the nose. Asbestos is determined to give the mutuels and bookies a cleaning and expects better luck today.

The bank roll fell off two bucks and is now $14.10.

Watch Sunday's Post for the key to Asbestos' secret code. He expects to dig up some live horses at the Bowie meeting.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

Bowie Rrace Track.

Dear Al:

You should have that Easter suit by now. Three winners, including Jaz Age in that $5,000 runaway. I know you didn't have any interest in that $5,000 end of it, but you were really concerned with that $15.20 win price. Don't tell me you didn't have Morsnuff, $11.90, and Acautaw, $11.60. And Open Hearth beaten by a nose. I'll quit talking hard times with taxi drivers if it keeps up.

They'll be hanging up new numbers on the mutuel board today, Al. Here's hoping they're ours.

Something scared the horsemen out of entering their charges in the Spring Handicap that Racing Secretary Joseph McLennan had scheduled for today so the Capital, a conditions race that would have been the subfeature, is now the big spot on the card.

INDIAN RUNNER for me. Has worked fast, is being pointed for the Kentucky Derby and all that sort of thing. Can't see anything here beating him. REGULA BADDUN is bound to be well backed and is reported fit. AIR PILOT did little last year but the clockers like him.

FIRST RACE—SINGLE K has raced enough to know what it's all about and threatened several times in the South. Look for this colt to beat out MOHEGAN, which is said to be good and is another Trojan offspring (two won yesterday). HAPPEN may happen along in the third hole.

SECOND RACE—FOUL TIP is the one. No, Al, I'm not talking about Petabit in yesterday's last. This young lady showed real speed at Miami and if she's up to it today will make a homer. MISS BRILLIANT won last out at Fair Grounds and has works to recommend her. HELL DIVER, what ever that is, should be third.

THIRD RACE—Trying to put over one here. LADY BIENVILLE, direct descendant of Prince Pal, has shown a return to form. Breezed in with a victory after a slow start at New Orleans. BOB SHANNON likes Bowie and slow tracks, while NEALON KAY can't be pushed further back than third.

FIFTH RACE—Taking JOHN F. Any way you figure this race, JOHN F seems to have the edge. Hardened by winter work in the South, this Ladkin colt should walk in. GAY BIRD was prominent in results coming North from Florida, twice beaten by the well-known nose. SERGT. DONALDSON was stopping at New Orleans, but he can stop today and still take third money.

SIXTH RACE—From Kentucky we get KNEE HIGH. Fair sort. Did mighty well at Latonia and off form there has a good chance. SEMESTER ran good in spots last year and is second choice here. PHANTOM ROCK is something of a mystery, but must be considered.

SEVENTH RACE—They'll lead old ESSARE to the post today and I believe it will be serious. This Light Brigade gelding surprised at the Fair Grounds, leading from start to finish. May do it today. STRONGHEART is as good as his name implies. PLEASE for third.

See you Monday.

BILL BENNINGS.

TWO SCHOOL CONTESTS TODAY

St. Alban's Host to Mercersburg; Business Away.

High school diamond warfare will break out on two nearby fronts today when St. Alban's plays host to Mercersburg (Pa.) Academy at 1:30 o'clock at St. Alban's and Business High treks to Episcopal for a game at 2:30. It will be the first game for all four teams concerned.

St. Alban's puts a fairly veteran team on the field today against the Pennsylvanians. Ray Patton and Bob Fletcher will be the battery, with Chesley on first, Henderson, second; Thom, short stop, and Lorton, third. McGee, Sterrett and Shippen have gained outfield berths. The team is in good shape and has had several chances to practice this year.

Business has not been as fortunate. It has held only one general drill, but has an experienced group of players on hand. Lou Silverman and Jimmy Garner, both of them experienced flingers, will do the pitching. Clayton Schneider, all-high third baseman, is back, as is Biff Elynn, all-high center fielder, who probably will appear in a shortstop's berth today. Others in the starting line-up are Giovannetti, second base; Sherman, first base; Frydin, left field; Hayman, center field; Steel, right field and Mastromarino, catcher.

A. A. U. Handball Play Starts at "Y" Today

Without the presence of Jack Schwartz in the list of entries the District A. A. U. handball championships will get under way this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. with a wide-open field of nineteen seeking the crown.

Play will continue throughout the week, the finals being scheduled next Saturday afternoon. Channing Walker, runner-up last year, has been seeded No. 1. The doubles entries close tomorrow at the Y. M. C. A.

*Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ACAUTAW, $11.60, $6.40, $4.60; INDIAN TOWN, $10.50, $6.50; LOUGH PORT, $3.20.

ACAUTAW, quick to get going and showing good ability in the footing, gained rapidly rounding the turn, wore the leaders down and, finishing in determined fashion, outstayed INDIAN TOWN. Latter, a stout factor from the start, weakened slightly during the stretch run. LOUGH PORT began quickly, displayed good early speed while saving ground, but tired during the stretch run. KELTWICK was held safe for the entire trip. POSTPONEMENT could not menace the racemakers at any stage. LIQUEUR showed a flash of early speed. IRISH KNIGHT rated very green. ALTUS NUBA ran out badly after leaving the back stretch.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 3:02. Off at 3:06½. Winner, H. Bruce's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—AVALON, $6.80, $4.10, $2.90; FAIR JACK, $21.70, $4.90; SUN MEMORY, $2.60.

AVALON, outrun for the first quarter mile, slipped through on the inside of the pacemakers when moving into contention, saved a lot of ground at the stretch turn and, taking command under punishment, had enough in reserve to withstand FAIR JACK. Latter, kept out in the firmer footing in the early stages, finished resolutely on the inside during the stretch run. SUN MEMORY followed THE OKAH closely, wore the latter down, but was unable to keep pace under severe punishment. BENISH WAY, a keen factor from the beginning, weakened during the closing quarter mile. PROMETHEUS was weakly ridden for the entire trip. THE OKAH showed speed for five furlongs and third. SYRIAC raced very wide the entire journey.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200; allowances. The Promenade. For 3-year-olds, colts and geldings. Start poor from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:36. Off at 3:44. Winner, Audley Farm's b. g. (3), by Sir Barton—Alice McLuke. Trained by E. Trueman. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:09 1-5.

RED LEAD	105	9	6	9	9	9	9	Pegg	57.85

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOLLY PILOT, $7.20, $2.90, $2.60; OPEN HEARTH, $2.90, $2.40; LADFIELD, $4.80.

JOLLY PILOT, away in a tangle and forced wide in the early racing, met with interference rounding the turn, secured racing room during the stretch run when taken to the outside and, finishing in determined fashion, was up in the final sixteenth. OPEN HEARTH, crowded back and bothered when the break came, responded stoutly to pressure when securing racing room and, coming through on the inside during the home stretch, was going the strongest of all at the end. LADFIELD, stoutly ridden the entire trip. PENDING, caught in tight quarters at the break, gained clear passage when entering the home stretch and closed courageously. BUSTED was carried wide throughout. SIR WALTER drew clear early but tired suddenly when reaching the home stretch. RUMMY tired, as did UPSET 'EM.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200; allowances. The Promenade (second division). For 3-year-olds, colts and geldings. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:16. Off at 4:20. Winner, Sagamore Stable's br. c. (3), by Harpenden—Blue Grass Belle. Trained by J. H. Stotler. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. L. TOURNAMENT	112	4	3	1¹	1²	7	7	Accardy	15.00

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TOWEE, $6.80, $4.20, $3.00; BRAVE AND BOLD, $8.80, $5.40; DON ROMIRO, $2.90.

TOWEE, sluggish getting off, was vigorously ridden to get into racing stride, moved up fast approaching the home stretch and, saving a world of ground, wore the leaders down to get up in the final sixteenth. BRAVE AND BOLD improved his position on the inside to reach contention, took command when nearing the final furlong pole and held on with good courage when finishing in the middle of the track. DON ROMIRO, ridden hard all the way, outstayed ARROW. Latter, on the outside of the pacemakers from the start, weakened badly in the closing drive. JIB BOOM tired early. LORD TOURNAMENT bolted to the extreme outside midway of the turn and was eased up.

WEATHER, CLEAR. TRACK, SLOW.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $5,000. The Inaugural Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates for all but Panetian. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:55. Off at 5:00. Winner, J. Parmelee's b. g. (4), by Great Jaz—Elga. Trained by owner. Net value to winner, $3,480; second, $1,000; third, $500; fourth, $280. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 4-5, 1:13.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JAZ AGE, $15.20, $6.70, $3.70; VACILLATE, $7.70, $3.80; PANETIAN, $3.20.

JAZ AGE, away forwardly and suited by the footing, followed in closest pursuit of VACILLATE, responded readily for the final drive and, wearing the pacemakers down, had something in reserve at the end. VACILLATE began rapidly, displayed good early speed, saved ground where the going was best and continued gamely after losing command. PANETIAN, away in a tangle, was steered to the outside when entering contention, was carried extremely wide into the home stretch, and finished willingly through the stretch. FRENCH LASS, saving ground in the early stages, was unable to keep up with the leaders in the final drive. THE CRANE raced well for five furlongs. PIGEON HOLE lost ground the entire trip.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start fair from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:31. Off at 5:32. Winner, J. B. Morrow's br. h. (5), by Morvich—Snuff. Trained by T. Flippen. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:49 3-5, 1:15 3-5, 1:43 2-5, 1:50 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MORSNUFF, $11.90, $5.30, $3.80; IMPISH, $4.30, $3.00; BUBOL4, $6.40.

MORSNUFF, having the most early speed, outran his field to the first turn, was rated along while displaying good speed, saved ground wherever possible and, continuing with good energy in the final drive, just lasted to stall off IMPISH. Latter, slow to get going, improved his position stoutly through the final half mile and, coming to the outside, closed fast and would have been winner in a few more strides. BUBOLA, prominent the entire trip, held STORM safe. Latter made repeated efforts in the closing stages, but was not good enough.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 6:06. Off at 6:15½. Winner, R. B. Allen's b. c. (4), by Port au Feu—Miss Palatine. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:25 2-5, 0:52, 1:17, 1:45, 1:59

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GARLIC, $11.00, $6.40, $5.10; JUDGE CAVERLY, $10.50, $8.00; MAKE BELIEVE, $10.80.

GARLIC, taken very wide rounding the first turn after breaking among the trailers, went to the outside when reaching the back stretch, moved up rapidly in the final five furlongs, wore the leaders down and held JUDGE CAVERLY safe in the final test. JUDGE CAVERLY worked his way up steadily and closed with good courage. MAKE BELIEVE, fractious at the barrier, broke from outside his field. He made up ground stoutly after being in tight quarters midway of the back stretch. PETABIT, hurried into a forward position, held on well when the final drive came.

GALLAGHER, BARRY IN FORM

Capital Heavyweights to Clash Tuesday at Portner's.

VERBAL brickbats, sign of the old ballyhoo, flew forth yesterday from the camps of those local heavyweight rivals, Marty Gallagher and Reds Barry, as the fans began to seek the "low down" on next Tuesday's feature bout at Portner Arena.

In effect, Marty said: "I'll knock that Barry's head off," and Barry, just to be original, snorted: "I'll knock that Gallagher's head off." And then the rival managers, Dan Carroll, for Marty, and Patsy Donovan, for Reds, broke out in a rash of confident predictions.

Carroll, who is whipping handsome Marty into condition in his Boston gymnasium, wired his personal guarantee that Gallagher will stop the Southeast Redhead in four rounds. But Donovan, refusing to be outdone, shouted from the Mohawk Club second story that Gallagher's claim to District heavyweight honors is as good as denied right now.

All of which doesn't shed any light on the question. Is Gallagher going to repeat or improve on his close decision victory over Barry last October? Or is Barry, with his noticeable improvement of the past three months, going to blast the Foggy Bottom Irishman from the local heavyweight picture?

One thing is certain and it encourages the Barry faction that will plank the old home on the line any time Reds goes to the post. Barry is in perfect physical condition.

Gallagher Down to Best Ring Weight.

Condition is quite likely to prove the deciding factor, the decision going to the man who finishes stronger in the comparatively short eight-round distance.

Gallagher is reported down to 201 pounds, his best fighting weight, while Carroll asserts his man is tossing leather faster than ever before in his career. If this is so, Marty should be able to meet Barry at the latter's own game, that of hitting and getting away, but if Marty is no faster than he was against Natie Brown or Herman Weiner a few weeks back, do not be surprised if Barry wins rather handily.

Barry has been training strenuously for four weeks. Marty, however, has been working hard only half this time. Reds already has reached the razor-edge condition and will do only enough exercising henceforth to keep himself limber until Tuesday night.

Unionists Will Seek Capital City Berth

Federal Employe Unionists, admitted Thursday to the Departmental League, will also seek admission to the Capital City League, the players decided last night at a meeting under Pilot Earle Moser's supervision.

Headed by Randy Shreve, veteran left-hander, the club will engage in its initial practice game Sunday against the Kensington nine at 2 p. m.

Ambassador Mermen Meet Baltimoreans

The Ambassador Swimming Club, District A. A. U. champions, close their indoor swimming season Tuesday at 8 o'clock at the hotel pool when they meet the Baltimore Y. M. C. A. team.

The locals, composed of such performers as Max Rote, John Broaddus, Constancio Alvarado and Vince Gomez, will find themselves pitted against a team composed almost entirely of former and present South Atlantic A. A. U. champions.

There will be no admission charge.

DISTRICT A. A. U. RING FINALS TONIGHT PROMISE THRILLS

Eight Champs Are to Be Crowned

Middle, Light-Heavy Bouts Likely to Feature Card.

Best D. C. Boxers Remain in Tourney at Portner's.

EIGHT amateur boxing champions of the District of Columbia will be crowned, figuratively but not literally, tonight when the local chapter of the Amateur Athletic Union concludes its third annual tournament in Portner Arena, Alexandria. The contests in the eight weight divisions will begin at 8 o'clock.

Torrid milling developed in the preliminaries last Wednesday night when eleven knockouts resulted from nineteen bouts, among which was a two-second kayo credited to Louie Gevinson, Boys Club bantamweight and 1931 flyweight champion, over Harry Goldblatt, an unfortunate youth with no club affiliation and little in the way of experience.

Middle, Light-Heavy Bouts Promise Thrills.

Tonight's bouts should be more evenly contested with the novices having been eliminated. The middleweight bouts and the one light-heavyweight clash listed are expected to prove the greatest thrill producers.

Mickey O'Connor, Boys Club 160-pounder, faces plenty of trouble in the task of retaining his title. His rivals are rated on a par with him in all respects. They are Steve Muti, J. C. C., who blasted Lou Scarlettini out of the tournament; Clarence Merryman, of the National Training School, who dropped Jim Tanner, Y. M. C. A., and Frank Nebel, of Penn State College, who outslugged Vic Grossman, J. C. C.

The light-heavyweight bout brings together Gus Mirman, walloping southpaw star of the Jewish Community Center, and Kirkwood Burke, latest "find" of Joe Bateman. Mirman's devastating left-hand punches are familiar to local boxers and boxing fans, but little is known of Burke, whom Bateman has been training for the past year.

Mike Tardugno Picked to Hold Title.

Mike Tardugno, J. C. C. featherweight, is favored to retain his championship in the final 126-pound scrap with John Ryon, of the American Legion. Mike is more concerned about avenging a defeat suffered by his brother, Joe, at the hands of Ryon the other night than he is in keeping the title.

Eddie Marmel, veteran J. C. C. bantamweight; Earl Dixon, American Legion flyweight; Jack Baxter, American Legion welter, and Al Farrell, American Legion heavyweight, are others with bright prospects of romping home with the honors.

PAIRINGS FOR BOUTS.

126 POUNDS (final)—Mike Tardugno (J. C. C.) vs. John Ryon (A. L.).

135 POUNDS—Shub (J. C. C.) vs. Lowry (N. H.). Haas (A. L.) vs. Ted Kalapos (A. L.). Winners clash in final.

147 POUNDS—Miller (J. C. C.) vs. Gene Kalapos (A. L.). Baxter (A. L.) vs. Bodell (J. C. C.). Winners clash in final.

160 POUNDS—O'Connor (B. C.) vs. Muti (J. C. C.). Nebel (unattached) vs. Merryman (N. T. S.). Winners opposed in final.

175 POUNDS—Mirman (J. C. C.) vs. Burke (unattached).

UNLIMITED—Farrell (A. L.) vs. Wolfe (A. L.).

Olympic Diving Berth Miss Lawrence's Goal

Onalene Lawrence, foremost District women's diving star, will seek a berth on the women's Olympic diving team, it was learned yesterday upon the arrival of the Bethesda girl from Florida, where she spent the winter with family.

There will be no diving for her for the time being, having pulled a ligament while performing a difficult gainer and a half a month ago. The injury caused her to cancel her appearance in the District A. A. U. championships last month.

The local girl earned high praise during her Florida sojourn from Pete Des Jardins, 1928 Olympic men's diving champion, who instructed her frequently during the winter. Des Jardins will visit Washington in June to give Miss Lawrence further instruction off high boards. The Olympic trials will be held in New York in mid-July.

Potomac B. C. Honors All-High Courtmen

The Potomac Boat Club's annual celebration in honor of the all-high basket ball players will be held tonight at George Washington University Gymnasium, with two basket ball games and a dance on the program.

The Boat Club Scholastics, made up of the Eastern High Team, which won the high school series this year, will meet the Central "C" Club in the main attraction. The Scholastics will use Bernie Lieb, Al Walters, Jack Bayliss, Ben Zola, Bernie Phillips, Cecil Hale and others. Barney Kane will not be present, but the club will pack both Tommy Nolan and Dickey Fitzgerald, recent entrants at Eastern.

The preliminary, starting at 7:45 o'clock, will match up the St. John's Victors, 130-pound champions of the city, with the Eastern Reserves.

The dance will follow the second game.

AUTH'S OPEN TOMORROW.

The Auth's nine will play their initial game of the season tomorrow at 3 o'clock when they meet the Dor-A Team at Riverdale Field. The Auth's warm up today at Hoover Playgrounds at 3 o'clock.

SWANN SERVICE MEETS.

The Swann Seniors will meet at the Sixteenth Street Reservoir diamond tomorrow at 2 o'clock. All players are requested to be present and bring equipment. The team will enter the Capital City League this year.

BLAZING THE BASEBALL TRAIL

Raleigh, N. C., April 1 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Athletics wound up their training season in the South today by defeating Raleigh, of the Piedmont League, 7 to 2.

Lefty Grove hurled the first three innings and blanked the class B team. Rube Walberg followed and was socked for two runs in the fifth inning. Outfielder Cramer hit a single, double and triple, besides scoring two runs.

Afetr the game the A's entrained for Philadelphia, where they open the spring city series with the Phillies tomorrow.

Kansas City, April 1 (A.P.).—Having won 13 and lost 10 exhibition games on the coast, the Detroit Tigers arrived here tonight for a four-game series with the Blues, of the American Association, starting tomorrow.

Then the Tigers meet the New York Giants in one game here, moving to Springfield, Ill., for another game with the same club before opening a final three-game series with the Giants in Detroit next Friday.

San Francisco, April 1 (A.P.).—Great pitching by Hal Schumacher and timely hitting by his team mates combined today to give the New York Giants a 4-0 victory over the San Francisco Missions of the Coast League.

Schumacher, a right-hander, twirled steady ball throughout. He held the locals to five hits scattered over as many innings and struck out six batters.

Montgomery, Ala., April 1 (A.P.).—Little Bob Cooney, of the St. Louis Browns, was robbed of a brilliant shut-out victory over the Minneapolis Club here today when Goose Goslin lost a fly ball in the sun in the ninth inning and the drive scored a runner from second. The Browns won, 6-1.

Cooney allowed only seven scattered hits, while the Browns pounded Rosy Ryan and Mooseheart for twelve hits.

Atlanta, Ga., April 1 (A.P.).—Sunny Jim Bottomley's home run with one man on base gave the Cardinals a jump on the Atlanta Crackers in the first inning today, and the world champions won, 7-3.

The Crackers rallied after seven scoreless innings and pounded out three runs.

Birmingham, Ala., April 1 (A.P.).—Lefty Vernon Gomez struck out ten men in eight innings, but it took a ninth inning rally to give the New York Yankees a 5-to-4 victory over the Birmingham Barons today.

The Yanks went into the ninth trailing by one run. After Lazzeri had walked, went to third on Hoag's single and crossed the plate with the tying run on Byrd's long fly, Jim Walkup, former Tiger hurler, made two wild pitches, permitting Hoag to score the wining run. Ruth failed to get a hit.

New Orleans, April 1 (A.P.).—Joe Vosmik, Cleveland's star young outfielder, became the Indians' first casualty of the season today. He strained a muscle in his right side in batting practice and will be on the bench a few days. He is expected to be ready for the opening of the league season, however.

Philadelphia, April 1 (A.P.).—Jumbo Jim Elliott, who won 19 games for the Phillies last year, today came to Philadelphia for treatment on what was diagnosed as a torn muscle in the back.

Elliott visited a doctor and was informed the injury was not serious. With proper care he should be able to take his turn on the mound within a week or ten days.

Little Rock, Ark., April 1 (U.P.).—The Chicago White Sox took their April fools day workout on the grounds of the Arkansas State Hospital for the Insane. One of the uniformed keepers assured visitors that they were not inmates. Manager Fonseca sent his men to the asylum when it was discovered the natives had fooled them into believing there would be a contest with the Little Rock Southern Association team. Somebody had slipped up, and the new stadiura was not in readiness for the contest.

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 1 (U.P.). Cold weather prevented the scheduled workout of the Boston Braves at Waterfront Park today. Pitcher Bill McAfee and Infielder Bill Walters, optioned out to Montreal, left to join the International League Club at its training quarters in Hot Springs, Ark. Manager McKechnie believes the squad is so small now that every man will be kept on the roster at least until the team reaches Boston.

Los Angeles, April 1 (A.P.).—Steve Swetonic pitched shutout baseball today and the Pittsburgh Pirates evened their series with the Chicago Cubs by winning, 6 to 0.

The Cub attack failed to function, largely because of Swetonic, while the Pirates swarmed over Frank (Dutch) Henry for twelve hits in seven innings.

Wilmington, N. C., April 1 (U.P.). The Boston Red Sox defeated the Wilmington Pirates of the Piedmont League, 13 to 6, in an avalanche of extra base hits at Bellamy Park here today.

The contest found no credit for any of three Red Sox or two Pirate pitchers who saw service in the game. Seven errors by the host team cost the Pirates many runs, and the Sox erred three times. Pickering of Boston hit a home run.

V. M. I. FROSH WIN FROM CENTRAL

School Nine Is Badly Beaten by Score of 11 to 4.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., April 1.—The V. M. I. Freshman Baseball Team beat Central High School, of Washington, D. C., today by a 11 to 4 score. It was V. M. I.'s game from the start to finish, the Keydets scoring in every frame except the third and fifth.

Central High held a brief lead when the Washington boys scored one run in their half of the first but the Keydets soon wiped out this lead and from the second inning on were never caught up with. Farrara, Penn and Moore hit nicely for the victors, Penn garnering a double and two singles. Moore hit two doubles and Ferrara hit a double and triple.

Moran played a splendid game for the losers, getting a triple, a double and single in addition to doing some nice relief hurling.

The Washington boys seemed to suffer from the cold, for they never seemed to get going on the bases. They nicked Reynolds, Cadet hurler, for 8 hits, while V. M. I. collected 16 safeties off Debettencourt and Moran.

One Washington rally in the eighth, which resulted in two runs, was nipped off by a smooth double play, Moore to Downey. Thompson and Bryant had scored two runs and Keyser was on first when Malitz, Central second baseman, hit into the double play. Central High's 4 errors plus V. M. I.'s 16 hits, enabled the Frosh to take things easy. V. M. I.'s biggest rally came in the fourth, when 5 hits and a fielder's choice enabled the Keydets to push over 3 runs.

NATS' RALLY BEATS BROOKLYN, 11 TO 10

after Manush walked, and they retrieved another in the fifth when Joe Judge larruped a long triple to center. They added another in the sixth when Manush's double followed Myer's single, and the score was tied at 7 to 7, the Robins having scored off Brown in the fifth when Joe Stripp led off with a triple.

The game was thus given into Ragland's keeping but he was no help. The Robins scored three runs on two bases on balls, singles by Cuccinello and Frederick and Cohen's triple and were in a three-run lead again.

The Nats got one of these runs back in the eighth on Manush's second double, and, then, after Ragland had subdued the Dodgers in their last turn at bat, came the Nats' ninth.

The Nats bade farewell to Biloxi tonight, a few hours after their triumph over the Brooklyn Dodgers, with a record of 11 victories in 12 exhibition games, the best showing of any big league club in the South this spring.

Judge Landis was a spectator at today's game. He was seriously handicapped by the absence of a railing on which to lean his chin in his familiar pose, but he made his blackthorn cane do as a chin rest fairly comfortably.

The Biloxi Chamber of Commerce and Mayor Kennedy today invited Manager Max Carey to bring the Brooklyn Club to Biloxi for training next year, and submitted a proposition whereby the Biloxi Clubhouse would be enlarged and the field shared by the Nats and the Dodgers.

The plan has the approval of President Griffith, of the Nats, who seeks National League opposition for training games as a result of the American League rule forbidding intraleague contests.

Manager Carey will discuss the invitation with the officers of the Brooklyn Team. He is also considering an invitation to train in New Orleans, which would also satisfy Washington's craving for opposition nearby.

Hack Wilson performed in center field for the Dodgers today and went hitless in five times at bat, stretching his hitless streak to 19 straight after a fine start with Brooklyn.

Hack, even in prime condition, has such a girth that he is as easy to step over as walk around, but he traveled like some sprightly nymph to make a catch of Manush's fly in the fourth in deep right center.

The Nats, who had witnessed the Dodgers game with the Orioles yesterday, were laying in wait for the Brooklyn Club to pull the hit-and-run play today, and when they did a pitch out that Spencer called for caught Wright at second base by 15 feet.

Fred Marberry was effective today—before he hit his home run inside the park when he legged it with might and main. He was visibly fatigued when he went to the mound in the third and the Dodgers scored six runs. He recovered his composure thereafter and held them in check.

Frank Ragland could have prevented the Dodgers' three runs in the eighth if he had shot the ball to second for a clear cut double play instead of lobbing it. He had just snared Picinich's shot into the box but his slow toss to Cronin slowed up the double-play machinery.

Manush collected three of the Nats' hits and Cohen totaled a like number of the Dodgers'.

The Nats engage the Chattanoga Club at the latter's training camp at Selma, Ala., tomorrow, at which time several undergraduate members of the Washington Club will be performing for the Lookouts. Montie Weaver is slated to oppose Ad Liska on the mound. The latter will be on trial for another chance with the Nats.

WASHINGTON BOWLERS AT NORFOLK

250 Invade Virginia City Seeking U. S. Pin Crowns.

THEIR outlook made even rosier by the fact no sensational scores have yet been posted, 250 confident Washington bowlers departed by steamer last night for Norfolk, where today they will seek for the fifth straight year a major portion of the honors in the annual National Duckpin Bowling Congress Tournament.

Among the party were several defending champions — namely, Elsie Fischer and Margaret Miltner, doubles; Pauline Ford, all events; Elsie Fischer and Paul Harrison, mixed doubles, and Eddie Espey and Harrison, doubles. Jack Whalen, last year's singles champion, has moved his residence to Richmond and will defend his crown as a representative of that city.

The tournament opened last week, and most of the field has gone to the post; but the District contingent, familiar with a situation wherein they must do their stuff at the last minute, are predicting success.

Jackie Fields Stops Leslie Baker in Fifth

Boston, April 1 (A.P.).—Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, tonight registered a five-round technical knockout over Leslie Baker, of Watertown, in the Boston Garden's feature, scheduled for ten rounds. Fields' title was not at stake, for both came in overweight, Fields at 149½ pounds and his victim at 151.

BERG GAINS DRAW IN FULLER MATCH

Fuller suffered a cut over his left eye when Berg butted him in a clinch in the third round and Berg's left eye was cut by a punch in the tenth. Berg had a slight edge in the weights, scaling 138½ to Fuller's 136¼.

The even result scrambled slightly the Garden's plan to match tonight's winner with Billy Petrolle in a final elimination May 6 to determine an outdoor challenger for Canzoneri's title. Instead Berg and Fuller probably will be asked to meet again at 12 rounds on May 6.

SOCCER TOMORROW.

The final soccer game of a long and eventful season will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Monument Grounds when the crack Concord and Columbia Heights teams clash at 2:30 o'clock. The game is expected to draw a record crowd. Jack Caldwell will referee.

The Washington Post Cup is at stake.

K OF C. STAGES HIKE.

The Knights of Columbus will stage a 15-mile marathon along the new Mount Vernon highway tomorrow as training for the District Bicentennial marathon, May 8, over the same route.

Listed among the runners tomorrow are three Naval Academy hikers, Ensign Hiley, R. J. Moyland and H. J. Nahgombe; Arthur Dewhurst, Y. M. C. A.; M. Leech, park policeman, and the following Casey athletes, Jerry Looney, Mike Lynch, Haskell Clark and Bus Nicholson.

FUSSELL-YOUNGS DRILL.

Fussell-Young Junion Nine, of the Noel House, practice tomorrow at Rosedale at 10:30 o'clock. New candidates and old expected.

WONDER BREAD BOYS, NOTE.

The Wonder Bread Boys will drill today at 11 o'clock at Camp Meigs instead of 1 o'clock, as previously announced.

Hitting the Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

THOSE D. C. Butchers made mincemeat of Fuller Construction last night in the Building Contractors League at the Arcadia, and with fine marks of 600 and 1,754 held first place in the league standings. Charlie Faunce, of the losers, had the highest individual effort, 146 and 383.

Standard Art Marble had to move over and share its second place with Minte Paint, which covered Heffront Construction, 3-0, while J. P. Evans Construction was taking all three from the Marble Team. Smoot Sand beat Rosslyn Steel in the other league match.

Frank Xanten, who won a "Spot the Ball" contest once, was smiled on again last night by Mme. Luella Luck when he rolled 154 in the D. C. Government League. Charlie Bernhardt had a 378 set and Highway marks of 585 and 1,680.

In the Commerce League, at Rendezvous, Census took three from Patents No. 1, largely the work of Harbel, who rolled 372.

Pat. No. 2 held true to their name and took two from Standards, Patrick's 136 game being outstanding.

Transportation's marks of 543 and 1,516, and the 138 and 356 endeavors of Murphy were outstanding in the men's Quartermaster League at Convention Hall. In the ladies' section Executive's 1,357, Personnel's 473 and Betsy Ross' 131 and 320 were best.

In the Jewelers League, at the same alleys, A. Kahn & Co. rolled a nice 1,626 set and 576 game. Larditch and Jund shone individually.

Infielder Sammy Hale Bought by Indianapolis

Indianapolis, April 1 (A.P.).—Sammy Hale, for years a star third baseman for the Philadelphia Athletics, was bought today by the Indianapolis Club of the American Association.

The veteran was obtained from Knoxville, of the Southern Association, after he refused to report to that team. Hale played with Portland in the Pacific Coast League last summer.

Hale was sent to the minors last year by the Athletics. He is 35 years old and is a right-handed batter. He batted .329 in 133 games last season.

Court, Grid Players Offer Blood for Baby

Covington, Ky., April 1 (A.P.).—The basket ball and football teams of Holmes High School here offered their services today when their coach asked for volunteers to submit to a blood transfusion to save the life of Bobby Goble, 2½-year-old son of the principal of the school.

Six boys were chosen. The transfusion may be attempted late today.

Misses Sachs, Morrill Reach Indoor Finals

Brookline, Mass., April 1 (A.P.).—Marjorie Sachs, of Cambridge, defending champion in the women's national indoor singles tennis title play at the Longwood covered courts, today fought off match point five times before vanquishing Mianne Palfrey, of Brookline, 4—6, 8—6, 6—1.

This triumph put Miss Sachs into the final round, where tomorrow she will engage Marjorie Morrill, of Dedham, sixth ranking player and top seeded, for the title. Miss Morrill outstanding player in this year's competition, upset Virginia Rice, Boston, by a 6—1, 6—2 margin in their semifinal.

NORTHERNS SEEK GAME.

Allison in Semifinal Of Huston Tournament

Houston, Tex., April 1 (U.P.).—Wilmer Allison, America's seventh ranking player, advanced to the semifinals of the Houston Invitational Tennis Tournament today by defeating Junior Coen, Kansas City, former national boys champion, 6—0, 6—2.

Jake Wess, Rice Institute, Houston; Lester Stoeffen, Los Angeles, and Jimmy Quick, Dallas, also went into the semifinals. Hess defeated Karl Kamrath, Texas University, 6—2, 8—6. Stoeffen beat Gilbert Hall, East Orange, N. J., 6—4, 3—6, 13—11. Quick won from Louis Thalheimer, Dallas, 6—2, 8—6.

Ellsworth Vines, jr., and George M Lott, jr., of Chicago, first and second ranking players who were eliminated in singles play, teamed together to defeat Doc Barr and Fred Royer, Dallas, 6—0, 6—1, to enter the doubles semifinals.

Quick and Thalheimer defeated Lewis White and Charles Sloan, Houston, 6—4, 6—2. Allison and Hall won from Hess and Jerry Holden, 6—0, 6—2. The Coen-Stoeffen doubles team won from Kamrath and Frankie Parker, 6—3, 3—6, 6—3.

In the doubles semifinals tomorrow, Thalheimer and Quick meet Allison and Hall, and Lott and Vines will play Kamrath and Parker.

A. A. U. OFFICIAL DIES.

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Matthew P. Halpin, a prominent figure in Metropolitan district amateur athletics for 30 years, died today, after a brief illness. He was 63 years old.

Halpin was manager of the American Olympic teams of 1906, 1908, 1912 and 1920.

WYCOFF AND FRALEY TO CLASH

Meet on Program at Bolling Field on Monday.

A NEW supporting cast to flank the Sam Cordovano-Mario Giglio wrestling feature at Bolling Field Monday night yesterday was announced by the Bolling Field Athletic Association.

Top-notch substitutions were made in every instance and high-grade mixing is assured.

Pinch hitting for Jack Sherry against popular Lee Wycoff is Pat Fraley, Irish sensation and a resident of Windsor, Canada.

Fraley, one of the most popular and colorful cards in the Bowser troupe, is ranked among the top flight grapplers and in many respects outranks Sherry as an attraction.

Marin Piestina, who very nearly upset Champion Henri Di Glane in a sensational whirl Thursday night, returns against Stan Sitnowski in the main preliminary; Joe Varga, Hungarian ace, bucks "Bull" Garnon, and Danny Winters opposes John Siejack.

Tickets for the impending show are available at Goldie Ahearn's, 500 Ninth street, and Hoya Inn, 1300 Thirty-sixth street northwest.

Mrs. Waite Hoyt Calls Pitcher Cruel in Suit

Reno, Nev., April 1 (A.P.).—Waite C. Hoyt, major league baseball pitcher, was sued for divorce on grounds of cruelty here today by Mrs. Dorothy P. Hoyt.

He will not contest the action when it comes up for trial, probably tomorrow or Monday. They have been separated for more than a year.

Mrs. Hoyt asked for $25 a week alimony for the support and education of their two children, Harry, 8, and Dorris Arlene, 6.

The marriage of the Hoyts in Brooklyn on February 1, 1922, culminated a high school romance and followed his sensational pitching performance for the New York Yankees in the world's series of the previous fall. Hoyt was with the Philadelphia Athletics for a time last season and now is attempting a comeback with the Brooklyn Club of the National League.

Graham Must Fight Paul or Quit Tourney

Detroit, April 1 (A.P.).—Bushy Graham, Utica, N. Y., boxer, must meet Tommy Paul, his Buffalo, N. Y., rival, next Friday night in Scotty Monteith's featherweight championship elimination tournament or withdraw from the tournament.

That was Monteith's ultimatum today in reply to a request from Graham for a "warm-up" bout preceding a meeting with his bitter rival.

Monteith said he had assurance from Graham that he would go through with the match.

Freddie Miller, stable mate of Bat Battalino, former featherweight champion, will meet Johnny Pena, of Spain, in the other ten-round bout on the first card of the tournament, which has National Boxing Association sanction.

I. J. ROBERTS HEADS BANKS' COMMITTEE

Conference Group Chairman Succeeds W. N. Pope; Active in Institute.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

I. J. Roberts, assistant cashier, Riggs National Bank, has assumed chairmanship of the departmental conference committee of the annual convention of the American Institute of Banking, meeting in Los Angeles June 6-9. This announcement was made from headquarters of the local chapter of the institute yesterday.

Mr. Roberts has been vice chairman of this committee and succeeds William N. Pope, Syracuse, N. Y., as chairman, Mr. Pope having resigned due to severance of his banking connection to establish an investment counsel service of his own.

The committee arranges and supervises eight important conferences of the institute, securing capable speakers for them and preparing their programs. Conferences are held on the subjects of audits and accounting, bank administration, business development and advertising, credits, deposit functions, investments and investment banking, savings banking and trust functions.

Active in Institute.

Mr. Roberts has been active in institute affairs, particularly those of the local chapter, for many years. He has served on all committees of Washington Chapter and was its president in 1927-28. He also has been a member of important committees of the national organization.

Charles P. Light, representative of the National City Co., reentered yesterday the life insurance field, in which he spent many years as special representative at Washington for the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance Co., of Philadelphia.

Mr. Light is a member of the Alfalfa, Army and Navy, Metropolitan, Racquet, National Press and Blue Ridge Rod and Gun Clubs, the Maryland Club, of Baltimore, and the Commonwealth Club, of Richmond.

At one time he was secretary of the American Highway Association, and following this became a representative of the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance Co. at Martinsburg, W. Va. In 1912 he moved to Washington and in 1916 became district manager for the Fidelity here.

Prominent in War Aids.

He was prominent in the Liberty loan drives and other war activities and was offered a connection in Washington with National City Co. of New York in 1918, which he accepted. Mr. Light, however, never gave up his interest in life insurance and maintained close friendships with officials of the Fidelity. His decision to return to that company, therefore, does not come as a surprise.

Fidelity Mutual is one of the large life insurance companies and operates throughout the United States. It is now in its fifty-fourth year and is grouped among the oldest companies. It is noteworthy that in its more than 50 years' operation it has had but two presidents.

President H. H. McKee, National Capital Bank, who is president of the Stockholders Association of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, has announced the annual meeting of the latter group as April 15, at Richmond, Va.

CHAIRMAN

I. J. ROBERTS.

Long-Bell Bondholders Amend Receiver Plea

Kansas City, April 1 (A.P.).—An amended petition was filed in United States District Court today by attorneys representing bondholders who seek a receivership for the Long-Bell Lumber Corporation and its subsidiaries.

The action was taken after Judge Merrill E. Otis ruled the pleadings of the first petitions were insufficient. The judge allowed the filing of an amended bill in equity, stating he did so because of the importance of the case, and in a memorandum said it was his opinion, backed by the law, that the demurrer of the corporation's attorneys to the first petition should be sustained. Long-Bell attorneys have 20 days to answer the petition as it now stands.

The amended bill makes more detailed complaint of the alleged transfer of millions in assets of the Long-Bell Lumber Co. to the Long-Bell Lumber Sales Corporation in 1930 as a basis for continued bank credit.

FORD OF ENGLAND PASSES DIVIDEND

Aluminum Report Shows a Sharp Decline in 1931 Miscellaneous Earnings.

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—The Ford Motor Co., Ltd., of Great Britain, which heads the European Ford enterprises, has omitted its annual dividend for 1931, it was learned today. A dividend of 10 per cent was ordered for 1930.

This action follows omissions by several of the European affiliated companies, including those of Germany, Holland, Belgium, Sweden and Denmark. Ford of Canada omitted its dividend some time ago. Ford of France, however, is still on a dividend basis.

Aluminum Co. Report.

Public participation has been permitted only in the securities of the foreign Ford companies, Ford Motors Co. of the United States being privately held by the Ford family.

The report of the Aluminum Co. of America for 1931 shows net profit of $3,910,054 after depreciation, depletion, Federal taxes and other charges. This compares with net profit in 1930 of $10,868,685.

Associated Dry Goods.

The Associated Dry Goods Corporation, including Lord & Taylor, James McCreery & Co., and other subsidiaries located in Louisville, Baltimore, Buffalo, Newark and Minneapolis, reports for the fiscal year ended January 31, 1932, net profit of $848,411, equal after dividend on the 6 per cent first preferred stock, to 33 cents a share on the 7 per cent second preferred. This compares with net profit of $2,467,458, or $2.01 a share, on the common stock in the preceding fiscal year.

New bond financing in March amounted to about $137,800,000, it is estimated, compared with $65,244,000 in February and $696,586,000 in March, 1931.

Milder Weather Stimulates Improvement in Business

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Milder weather had a stimulating influence on trade during the last week in March, and merchandise moved in good volume in connection with post-Easter sales, the weekly mercantile reviews said today.

Dun's Review said that each week gives growing evidence that the economic situation warrants a less alarming interpretation. "This does not signify," continued the Review, "that the difficulties which lie ahead are to be minimized, but the fact that waste and extravagance have been eliminated, wages readjusted, efficiency increased, inventory economics effeted are favorable indications that moderate progress can not long be held in abeyance."

Bradstreet's said: "Reports from 55 cities reveal that last minute Easter retail buying amounted to fair proportions. Although practically all of the reports mention that volume was less than a year ago, the warm weather toward the end of the week stimulated sales to a greater degree than retailers had anticipated."

The total valuation of heavy engineering contracts in the United States for the week just ended is estimated by the Engineering News-Record at $17,400,000, compared with a $17,211,000 weekly average for March. The average weekly total for March, 1931, was $61,836,000.

BROKERS FEAR TAX WILL CUT BUSINESS

By FRANK H. M'CONNELL.

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Stock Exchange brokers, whose business has dwindled to about one-fifth of its 1929 volume, fear deeper inroads as a result of increasing taxes.

While all agree taxes must be increased to balance the budget regardless of financial hardships, some express concern over the probable effects of the proposed tax on stock transfers.

Pressure on Wall street's short interest to borrow stocks under the new Stock Exchange short-selling order, was lessened.

Wire houses obtained customers' consent to loan sizable blocks of U. S. Steel and Westinghouse Electric for the needs of the shorts. The premium on U. S. Steel, which was posted yesterday at 50 cents for the loan of a single share for one day, dropped to 37½ cents in late trading.

March transactions in stocks on the New York Stock Exchange, running heavily below those of the same month a year ago, proved a convenient medium to brokers for argument that the framers of the proposed House tax on stock transactions grossly exaggerated its income producing possibilities.

In reviewing two and a half years of declining stock prices, brokers record the following changes in their fortunes:

Stock trading volume which in the boom period was considered normal at 5,000,000 shares a day is now running nearer 1,000,000 shares a day.

Stock Exchange seats, which then brought around $500,000, are down around $100,000.

Brokers' revenues from arranging loans to carry marginal customers, which once netted many hundreds of thousands of dollars a year, are down to nominal size.

Further shrinkage is certain to develop in stock trading, leaders say, if the tax burden on customers becomes too heavy. They admit they can not tell whether the new tax will be enough to stifle the day-to-day trader—but they insist it will seriously hamper him. In support of their arguments they have figured out the cost of present and proposed tax rates on the round-trip process of buying and selling a unit of 100 shares of stock.

Purchase and sale of that many shares of a stock selling at $5 entails a commission expense of $15, a New York State tax of $4, a proposed Federal tax which at its minimum rate would be $4, thus making a total charge to the customer of $23. This amounts to 4.6 per cent of the purchase price.

But every increase in the cost of doing business tends to restrict the volume of speculative trading, they say, and it is this business that is particularly profitable to brokerage houses. Furthermore, they point out, many large brokerage houses are running heavily into "the red."

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Stocks.

All the news appeared to favor the downgrade yesterday and stocks sold into new 1932 lows in all categories.

Bonds.

Industrial, rail and utility bonds also were lower, but the U. S. Governments advanced for the third successive day.

Curb.

Grains.

The bottom appeared to fall out of the corn market on heavy Argentine export figures. The close was 1½ cents below Thursday's, at a new low for many years; and wheat followed with a ¾-cent decline.

Cotton.

The trade was featureless and the close 5 to 8 points higher.

Sugar.

New York raw quotations registered a new record low at 2.68 cents a pound.

Oil.

Midcontinent oil was marked up to a dollar a barrel.

STOCKS SINK LOWER INTO LOSING GROUND

Wall Street Is Unnerved by Federal Tax Measures; Shorts Not Pressed.

What the Stock Market Did	Fri.	Thurs.
Number of advances	85	67
Number of declines	409	462
Stocks unchanged	164	126
Total issues traded	658	657

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—The stock market dipped a little further into new low ground today, as Wall Street remained nervous over the Federal tax measures, but leading issues were in the main fairly well supported, and most declines were limited to fractions. Several net losses ranged from 1 to 3 points, however, and the closing tone was heavy. Sales approximated 1,520,180 shares.

There was no squeezing of shorts on the first day of the new loan rule's operation, for enough stock was available to borrowers, to forestall panicky bidding up of prices. Considerable covering was done during the first half-hour or so, but when it appeared that no real shortage of stocks existed traders settled down for a normal session.

Some shares were well supported all day. Prominent in this group were American Telephone, U. S. Steel and Westinghouse, which had commanded large premiums in the "loan crowd" yesterday, and these three closed with fractional gains. Many less favorably situated leaders, however, gave way to the prevailing mood, which seemed to be influenced largely by the prospects of trader taxation.

Equities Are Soft.

Equities which are facing excise taxes were rather soft, this being especially true of the motor group. General Motors made a new low with Auburn, Studebaker, Hudson, Nash and Packard. Coca Cola had an extreme reaction of more than 3 and Eastman wilted to about the same extent.

Heaviness of rails was associated in some quarters with the Interstate Commerce Commission's stand on Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans. Delaware & Hudson lost nearly 4 net, partly in response to its report of smaller earnings and decrease in volue of investments. Northern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, New York Central, Lackawanna and Southern Pacific were down 1 to 2. Santa Fe, among others, made a new low but recovered partially.

Uneasiness again gripped corporate bonds today notwithstanding the fact that the United States list, for the fourth consecutive session, marched quietly but steadily forward.

The market slipped all along the line, with 20 principal utilities falling to a new low average for the year, and both the rails and industrials exhibiting notable weakness.

Rails Join Declines.

The rails, which were under such severe pressure yesterday, also added to their declines, although not quite as badly as in the previous session.

Losses of from 1 to 4 or more points were shown by some liens of Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian National, Chesapeake Corporation, Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Paul, Rock Island, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, New Haven, Nickel Plate, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Frisco, Reading, St. Louis Southwestern, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Wabash.

Several new lows were made by a number of these loans.

There were smaller losses generally among the industrials.

The foreign section was somewhat irregular, although some of the Argentines advanced more than 3 points and the German governments rallied nearly 2 points. The day's trading slackened considerably, sales totalling but $6,870,000 par value, or around $1,000,000 under yesterday's aggregate.

Stubborn Selling Pressure.

Stubborn selling pressure, centering against the public utilities issues, kept the curb market on the downgrade. Trading was again fairly active, as gauged by recent standards, the turnover of 240,000 shares duplicating yesterday's. Several prominent issues penetrated new low ground.

Notable in the utility group was a transaction in public service of Northern Illinois, an infrequently traded issue here, at 70¼, off 24¾ points. Other Insull stocks were slightly changed. Commonwealth Edison sagged a point to a new low at 80, then recovered fractionally.

WALL STREET WAITS ON TAX CONCLUSION

Brokers and Bankers See Market Depressed Until Final Legislation.

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER.

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Wall street was still depressed today by the House of Representative's approval of a stiff tax on stock transfers. Banking and brokerage quarters were inclined to the opinion that it would take something unusual in the way of good news to help the market very much while the Federal tax uncertainty still hangs over it. But important financial quarters continued to urge that the budget must be balanced at all costs.

United States Treasury estimates indicating that the House bill is still rather far short of meeting the requirements found considerable support in Wall street. For instance, brokers estimate that the tax on stock transfers, based on the recent volume of trading, would produce little more than $30,000,000 of revenue, rather than the $75,000,000 claimed for it.

Stock brokers were mostly inclined to look for a protracted period of quiet markets. There was much talk of closing up of branch offices, consolidating wire systems and effecting other economies. Some also expressed the opinion that extending the income taxes to dividends would divert investment buying from stocks to tax exempt bonds.

While Wall street was feeling depressed over so many things, there was little in the day's business and trade news to brighten the outlook.

A spokesman for a leading banking group, whose analysis was said to reflect accurately the belief prevailing among other bankers, held that a healthy market for investment securities could not be obtained so long as present doubt existed over the Glass bill or while any question remained as to the ability of Congress to balance the budget, or while there was a tendency shown to impose taxes on stock transfers in sufficient volume to drive out traders.

Australia Pays Interest In New York and Britain

Sydney, N. S. W., April 1 (A.P.).—The commonwealth government of Australia today made payment of £200,000 in New York and £900,000 in London as interest on bonds of the state of New South Wales which defaulted previous payments on February 1.

CORN PRICE SLUMPS TO LOWEST IN YEARS

Wheat and Oats Join Decline as Buying Orders Become Scarce on Market.

Chicago April 1 (A.P.).—The bottom fell out of the corn market today, and prices outdid the lowest record heretofore this season and for many years back.

Stop-loss selling due partly to seasonal liquidating of accounts by holders of May delivery contracts, but also as a result of almost complete absence of shipping demand here in the face of fairly large country offerings. An added incentive to let go of corn was word that planting of the new 1932 corn crop had got under way in Oklahoma.

Corn closed unsettled, ⅝ to 1½ cents below yesterday's finish, wheat ⅜ to ¾ cent down, oats 1-8 to ¼ cent off, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents decline.

Official estimates that Argentine corn production for 1932 had been greatly curtailed were offset by notice that Argentine corn exports this week totaled 5,878,000 bushels. Under the circumstances, buying orders were few, and the market, becoming top-heavy, pitched downward in the late trading.

Wheat was relatively firm early, but in the end succumbed to the break in corn prices under heavy selling by houses with eastern connections. Signs that North American wheat export business had been of substantial volume were practically ignored. Unofficial crop reports as to what were decidedly bullish but seemed to have been discounted in advance.

Uneasiness over Washington taxation developments continued, and had an evident unsettling effect, especially as a handicap to new speculative buying.

COTTON PRICE GAINS AFTER AN EARLY LOSS

May Contracts Sell Off to 6.06, Closing at 6.18; Exports, 30,387 Bales.

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Cotton was irregular today but reached the best levels of the session on some positions in the late trading on covering and trade buying. May contracts after selling off from 6.20 to 6.06, rallied to 6.24 and closed at 6.18 with the general market closing steady at net advances of 5 to 8 points.

Some of the early buying seemed to come from houses with continental and Liverpool connections while there was also buying by New Orleans interests on the advance during the first hour. The more urgent demand then seemed to have been supplied and there were reactions during the middle of the day.

Closing quotations were within 4 or 5 points of the day's best.

The late afternoon advance was accompanied by reports that spot offerings in the Southwest were becoming tighter and that cotton of desired quality was becoming harder to buy.

Liverpool cables said that the goods market in Manchester was disorganized with a limited turnover.

Exports today were 30,387 bales, making 6,913,213 bales so far this season.

Farmers National Grain To Open Capital Office

Chicago, April 1 (A.P.).—The Farmers National Grain Corporation will shortly establish a permanent office in Washington, D. C., to afford close contact for the cooperative with the Government offices.

C. E. Huff, president, said the office would be managed by M. W. Thatcher, who is resigning his present post as general manager of the Farmers Union Terminal Association at St. Paul.

Huff's announcement said the world-wide business of the Farmers National required "almost constant contact with the various governmental departments, including the Federal Farm Board and the Departments of Agriculture, Treasury and Commerce, as well as the legislative branch."

MIDWEST UTILITIES TO DELAY INTEREST

Two Subsidiaries Lack Cash for Bonds; Dividend on Preferred Is Unpaid.

Chicago, April 1 (A.P.).—Announcement was made today at offices of the Middle West Utilities Co. that the United Public Service Co. and two of its subsidiaries—United Public Utilities Co. and Southern United Gas Co.—would not pay April 1 interest on bonds and debentures, sufficient cash not being available. A dividend on preferred stock of the United Public Utilities Co. also was unpaid.

Necessity of a reorganization of the United Public Service Co. and certain of its subsidiaries had now become apparent, the statement said, and Middle West Utilities Co. was no longer justified in assisting United Public Service Co. by making advances. The Middle West Utilities Co. purchased an interest in the United Public Service Co. in August, 1929.

Work upon a reorganization will be started immediately, and the Middle West Utilities will cooperate in the plan.

Quotations on Bankers' Acceptances Reduced

New York, April 1 (A.P.).—Bid and asked quotations on bankers' acceptances were reduced ⅛ of 1 per cent today by a leading dealer. The change applies to all maturities. Other dealers are expected to follow the revision.

The acceptance market is one of the few financial markets in which the supply and demand situation is favorable to sellers. The shading of quotations is designed to bring out more paper, of which the supply has been comparatively light in the open market.

HATFIELD ATTACKS DEMOCRATIC PARTY

Campaign Against Hoover Is Hit by West Virginian in Debate on Tariff.

(Associated Press.)

The Democratic party was charged by Senator Hatfield (Republican), West Virginia, in the Senate yesterday with waging a "Nation-wide campaign of misrepresentation" of the Hoover administration.

Senator Hatfield said "the inauguration of a Nation-wide campaign of misrepresentation of the Herculean task of the present Republican administration, which began in June, 1929, with the appointment by Jouett Shouse of Charles Michelson as publicity representative of the Democratic party, has never ended."

Since then, he said, "propaganda in the name of various Democratic members of Congress" to "misrepresent President Hoover as the Chief Executive of this country" has emanated from the party headquarters.

Senator Hatfield, opposing the Democratic tariff bill before the Senate, said the Democrats had taken the Hawley-Smoot tariff rates as the "theme" of their attacks on the administration.

"The plot that was conceived by this propaganda," he said, "was ably supported by the importer and the international banker."

The West Virginian, chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, characterized the Democratic tariff bill passed by the House as a "monstrosity" and said the Democrats had failed to propose a single reduction in the rates which they had been attacking.

Defending the Hawley-Smoot rates, Senator Hatfield said the country would be far worse off without them. He called for a blanket increase in the duties to offset depreciation of foreign currencies.

He proposed also that an amendment be adopted to the pending tax bill to raise rates to permit collection of the "revenue our Congress by the tariff act of 1930 intended."

$1,450,000 Is Provided For Grasshopper Poison

(Associated Press.)

Conferees on the agriculture supply bill yesterday accepted the Senate provision appropriating $1,450,000 for grasshopper control in the Northwestern States.

The Federal money will be used in supplying poison bait for the grasshoppers which scourged the agricultural regions last summer. Local and State communities will pay for distributing the bait. The agriculture conference report will be submitted shortly to the House and Senate for final approval.

Bermuda Women Lose Equal Suffrage Fight

Hamilton, Bermuda, April 1 (A.P.). Bermuda women lost their fight for the vote when the House of Assembly today defeated, by a 2-to-1 ballot, the bill for equal suffrage.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

THE ORCHID is the most expensive of all flowers. Collectors have paid as much as $5,000 for a single specimen.

Samuel Untermyer, one of America's greatest lawyers, has about 60,000 orchids. With him the collecting and developing of orchids is a hobby, and every year he spends a small fortune on this flower.

From the banks of the Amazon, from the deserts of Mexico, from tropical Africa, from out-of-the-way spots the world over, he has gathered the largest private collection in the United States.

In the tropics orchids are found perched upon high peaks or clinging here and there as a brilliant patch in midair, on the trees of luxuriant forests. Northward, they require the utmost care and scientific treatment. Most of the plants take seven years to develop from a seed into a full-bloomed flower.

Throughout his long career, Untermyer has never appeared in court without an orchid in his coat lapel. At work or elsewhere, for the past 35 years, he has worn an orchid every single day. Collectively, no doubt, these orchids alone would be worth a fortune. To him, this king of flowers has meant inspiration in his many legal battles and civic struggles. New York has a legend that it is these flowers that keep the famous lawyer at top form in his numerous endeavors.

By consuming 17 pounds of meat in one hour, Garbo won a $100 wager for her owner, E. F. Dorr, of Colorado Springs, Colo. For two days before the event she was fed nothing but milk. Garbo not only ate her weight in meat in one hour, but two pounds extra during the next 20 minutes.

OPENING OF SOCIETY CIRCUS DRAWS BIG CROWD OF NOTABLES

CHILDREN'S EXHIBITION OUTSTANDING FEATURE

Remarkable exhibits of skillful and daring feats of horsemanship, colorful maneuvers in equitation, touches of humor, beautiful girls—all this went to make up the annual society circus as it opened yesterday before a capacity gathering of distinguished personages for a two-day performance at Fort Myer, Va.

A varied program, combining the equestrian talents of military and Washington society circles, was presented at the afternoon and evening performances, with the general theme of international exhibitions of horsemanship running throughout. English huntsmen, Hussars, Russian Cossacks, gypsies and American cowboys all had their place in the show.

A grand parade of performers opened the program. The huge arena at the military post took on the aspect of a "big top" as clowns, ringmasters, bareback riders and gayly bedecked horses swung once around the inclosure in true circus fashion.

Boys Give Exhibition.

The first attraction was presented by Lieut. G. B. Barth and his pack of Fort Myer Cub Scouts. This band of youngsters, among whom was Curtis George, grandson of Vice President Curtis, was organized last year and was a new addition to the circus. The boys, ranging in ages of 11 to 13 years, proved themselves masters of the big Cavalry horses, which they put through a routine of intricate drills.

Cavalry troops, costumed in the striped burnooses of desert sheiks and accompanied by oriental music, went through a series of drills in perfect unison.

One of the highlights of the program, which brought a roar of applause from the crowd, was a rare type of "Hungarian Hussar" jumping ride. Soldiers of Troop E, Third Cavalry, under the direction of Capt. L. K. Truscott, showed remarkable riding ability in this demonstration of hurdle jumping.

Dressed in scarlet coats, the participants made a spectacular entrance through a window 6 feet from the ground. One after the other the horses leaped into space, struck the soft earth and galloped away to a number of high jumps at the far end of the arena.

Cowboy Riding.

Next to bring a burst of applause from the audience was an exhibition of plain and fancy riding—Western style. Amid the whoops of cowboys and crack of pistols, a rodeo equaling the efforts of the best Wild West shows, thrilled the packed house.

A paddock parade, composed of Washington children dressed in racing silks and led by Patricia Hurley, 11-year-old daughter of Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, also held the interest of the crowd.

The show was not without its tragedy, however. During the afternoon performance little Marion Nulsen, 11 years old, was kicked by one of the horses as she participated in an event. An ambulance rushed her to the post hospital, where it was found her injuries, although painful, were not serious.

Sergt. Frank Smith, a familiar figure at all Fort Myer circuses, with his trick horse and dog, lost his place to Patsy Smith, 9-year-old daughter of Capt. and Mrs. G. I. Smith. Patsy rode in with the animals and put them through their stunts with all the skill of her instructor.

Other Events.

Among other events was an English hunt drill and a sporting tandem maneuver. In the former, horses were put through a series of difficult jumps by riders dressed in the red coats and high hats of English huntsmen. The latter was participated in by young Washington debutants, garbed in formal riding habits, and riding one horse while they drove another before them.

A mounted basket ball game, equestrian gymnastic event and a number of humorous clown antics rounded out the program. An artillery finale, in all its military splendor, served as a climax. This was done by the famous "Black Horse Troop."

Notables who attended yesterday's performance included Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Vice President Curtis, Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury; Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, Senator and Mrs. David A. Reed, Maj. Gen. J. L. Chamberlain, Maj. Gen. Blanton Winship, Col. R. R. Wallace, Dr. H. F. Alfaro, Minister of Panama, and many others.

PRETTY DEBS RIDE IN SOCIETY CIRCUS

Underwood & Underwood.

A capacity audience last night witnessed the Drama Guild's presentation—the fantastic "Berkeley Square" of John L. Balderston—at the Wardman Park Theater.

The play, which shows the effect of an old seventeenth century house in London on a young American who inherits it was very well received.

The young man, delving into the past of an ancestor, decides that he can live in the day of the old house. He, Peter Standish, as played by Bernard Barton, lives a portion of his forerunner's life, but with disastrous results.

He finds that his twentieth century experience kills the romance of the past, but nevertheless he falls in love with Helen Pettigrew (Eleanor Wells) and loses his modern sweetheart, Hester Walker Beall, when he returns to the present.

Other players in the modern phase of the fantasy were Miriam Hilton and James Otis Porter. The players of the past were Lenore Romney, Eldred Wilson, Dorothy Crosby, Grace Peters Johnson, Murray Sheehan, Maurice Jarvis, Helen Burton, Caroline McKinley, Capt. Ray C. Montgomery and Thomas Cahill.

Col. John Otto Johnson directed members of the guild in the construction of the stage set. The performance will be repeated tonight.

Gasoline Group Joins Merchants Association

The Independent Retail Gasoline Distributors yesterday became a division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. The new unit is to be known as the Retail Gasoline Distributors Division.

The organization was founded as the Petroleum Products Retailers Association, but recently disbanded and voted to become part of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. H. G. Dunne was elected chairman; L. S. Scott, vice chairman; Fred Grimm, treasurer, and Edward D. Shaw, secretary.

Dentist Arrested, Man Hurt in Crash

An Army sergeant was painfully injured and a Capital dentist arrested on reckless driving charges after a collision between cars driven by the two early yesterday at Wisconsin avenue and M streets northwest.

Sergt. Frank York, stationed at Fort Myer, received painful injuries about the head, for which he received treatment at the base hospital at Fort Myer. Dr. Robert T. McCrystal, 38, of Wardman Park Hotel, was arrested by Seventh Precinct police and released on the reckless driving charge after depositing $25 collateral.

Bentley Mulford, 41, of 3704 Huntington street northwest, a passenger in Dr. McCrystal's machine, was slightly injured, but refused hospital treatment.

Jimmy Thief Gets $200 Loot.

The door of the apartment of Mary S. Adams, 2456 Twentieth street northwest, was jimmied and an opal ring worth $150 and two silk dresses valued at $25 apiece were stolen, she reported to police yesterday.

2 Soldiers Sought For Fort Assault

Enlisted Man Is Found Badly Beaten; Police Start Search.

Police last night were looking for two Fort Washington soldiers in connection with an assault yesterday on Private Martin Tlusty, of Company M, who was found badly beaten and unconscious behind a building at the Army post. Officials at Fort Washington last night refused to give out any information concerning the case.

They would only say that the beaten man had been taken to the post infirmary but "was not there now." They would not amplify this statement.

A lookout was telephoned to police headquarters for Privates Henry Stokes and Robert Wallace shortly after the man had been discovered at noon. The two men are said to have left the post a short time after Tlusty was injured. Police were told they were traveling in a light coupe and wore either Army uniforms or overalls.

Zoo Called 3,338 Times During All Fools Day

Whether there is or is not a depression abroad in the land, its effect was nil yesterday on those irrepressible wags who avidly seize upon All Fools Day as an outlet for a multiplicity of pranks designed to result in the discomfiture of the victim.

Exactly 3,338 calls were received at the Zoo, between 9 a. m. and 9 p. m., and their makers were disillusioned just that many times when they asked for "Mr. Lion," "Mr. Bear," "Mr. Katz," and "Mr. Monk," and the other appellations of humans that phonetically resemble the cognomens of Zoo inmates.

WASHINGTON PARKS TELLINGLY FILMED

Enthusiastic Gathering Sees Premiere of Pictorial Study of Areas.

Washington last night hailed with enthusiasm the premiere showing of the new motion picture, "Parks of Washington." More than 500 people crowded the auditorium of the National Museum to witness the first showing of the film which traces the growth of the park system of the District of Columbia from the early days of the Capital.

Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of Public Buildings and Parks, made a short introductory address in explanation of the film, which was produced by the moving picture laboratory of the Department of Agriculture under the direction of Col. Grant's office.

Frederic A. Delano, president of the American Civic Association, introduced Col. Grant, and expressed the appreciation of the sponsors for the way in which the picture had been received.

For nearly two hours Capital park lovers sat spellbound as the beautifully synchronized film revealed before them sylvan scenes of astonishing beauty, many of them taken in Rock Creek Park.

The film is a composite of all out-of-doors Washington. It shows the varieties of work carried on in the interests and care of the parks and the gradual expansion of the uses of the parks for sports, gatherings, study and rest.

Various maps and charts trace the development and geographic location of recreational centers.

The observer can not help but feel a thrill when the tomb of Maj. L'Enfant is shown overlooking the completed city he dreamed of and helped to plan.

Pair Fight Extradition To Face Maryland Count

The refusal of Hazel R. Mangus, 24 years old, and Irwin Douglas to return voluntarily to Maryland to face a charge lodged by Miss Mangus' mother, Mrs. Lottie M. Sims, a teacher at the Business High School, yesterday caused Judge Isaac R. Hitt, in Police Court, to postpone until May 2 the extradition hearing.

The girl's mother accused her daughter and Douglas of taking chinaware and a quantity of meat from her home at Gaithersburg, Md.

POLICE HELD BRUTAL BY DEMONSTRATORS

Communists' Resolutions of Protest Will Go to Hoover and Commissioners.

Protests against the treatment given demonstrators last Saturday before the Japanese Embassy were made last night by Communist organizations at a meeting in Musicians' Hall. Resolutions condemning "police brutality" were adopted and will be sent to the District Commissioners and to the White House.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the International Labor Defense, the Friends of the Soviet Union and the Unemployed Council of Washington. Joan Hardy, of Baltimore, who faces trial for assaulting a policeman, said:

"It is true that there were cracked heads on both sides. Our purpose was to demonstrate to draw attention of the working class against the American Government's plans for war against Soviet Russia. Our only regret is that only one policeman received a bruised head. There will be other demonstrations and we are soon going to do something very vital in Washington."

Punishment of the policemen involved in the dispersal of the demonstrators; the withdrawal of foreign forces from China and the withdrawal of American troops and warships from China were demanded. The assembly also asked the immediate release of all the demonstrators placed under arrest as a result of the demonstration.

Other speakers were William Powell, of Washington, and O. Everett, of Baltimore.

Driver Held for Jury To Face Liquor Charge

Harry Edgar Klapp, 25 years old, was ordered held for the action of the grand jury under a bond of $1,000 yesterday, when he was arraigned in Police Court on a charge of transporting liquor. Policemen said they found almost 20 jars of liquor in Klapp's car when he was overhauled at Fourteenth and Varnum streets northwest, after a chase.

Sergt. George M. Little and Policemen G. C. Deyoe said that they trailed Klapp as he left a garage in his car, and when he was first ordered to stop, they said, he smashed two jars in the front seat. However, the police arrested him before the remainder of the liquor could be disposed of. Klapp was fined $10 for failing to stop at the officer's command.

Police Race Betting Raid Marks Bowie Meet Start

"They're at the barrier," intoned the voice of the radio announcer at Bowie yesterday as the time neared for the second race of the first day of the spring meeting.

Even as these words were coming through the loud speaker in an alleged betting establishment on the third floor at 702 Ninth street northwest, First Precinct Detectives W. C. Groomes and G. L. Saunders stood at the barrier outside and requested admission.

Unrecognized, the policemen were admitted. Before the second race was under way, the place had been "pinched" and the radio, betting slips and other paraphernalia confiscated.

Robert B. Talbutt, 29, alleged operator of the place, was arrested and charged with permitting gaming. He gave his address as 1922 Thirty-eighth street northwest. Ten United States witnesses were booked at the First Precinct station and gave $10 collateral for their appearance in Police Court for Talbutt's hearing today. About ten others were given summonses for appearance, police said.

OFFICIALS REVERSE STAND ON REPORTS OF RADICAL RIOTING

NOTE OBTAINED BY POST CRITICIZED NEWSPAPERS

Glassford Says Police Told to Use Little Violence on Demonstrators.

The District Commissioners late yesterday turned roundabout face on their criticism of newspaper reports of the police handling of the demonstration Saturday afternoon in front of the Japanese Embassy and announced that no letter has yet been sent to the American Civil Liberties Union, that no reply has yet been approved by them, and that it is not certain whether any answer will be dispatched.

Pressed by inquiring reporters, the Commissioners held several conferences regarding the letter which was published in The Washington Post yesterday morning, and then left Daniel E. Garges, secretary of the board in the lurch.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the board, on Thursday afternoon told a Post reporter that an answer was being drafted to the letter of protest and that he could obtain a copy of it from Mr. Garges.

Obtained Without Warning.

The letter was obtained without any warning from any District official that it had not been approved by the Commissioners. Its contents were based wholly on a letter sent directly to the American Civil Liberties Union by Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police.

Yesterday Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, Police Commissioner, stated that he had never seen either the letter of protest or the reply; neither had he seen Gen. Glassford's letter, which accused the newspapers of "immensely exaggerating" the reports of police violence.

In response to questions, he assumed responsibility for the orders to police that they prevent the parade "with the least possible violence." He admitted the move had been suggested to him, but he declined to say by whom other than to deny that the suggestion came from the White House.

Letter Called "Tentative."

Gen. Crosby said he never would give approval to such a reply as was drafted by Mr. Garges upon instruction of Dr. Reichelderfer. Both Commissioners said the reply, as published in The Post and as released by Mr. Garges as an official paper, was merely "tentative" and that the secretary had been acting in a stenographic capacity. They did not explain who authorized him to take such action.

The Commissioners gave no indication, however, that they did not approve the police methods in breaking up the reputed communistic parade with the use of night sticks. Their withdrawal of the letter apparently was based entirely on the language used, and perhaps the criticism of the newspaper accounts.

All of the so-called facts, which denied that there were any women struck or that there were any heads broken, were incorporated in a similar letter addressed by Gen. Glassford himself to the American Civil Liberties Union.

Hurled Baton Halts Liquor Car Driver

Patrolman Makes Capture After Police Autos Fail in Pursuit.

An alleged liquor runner who had eluded three Eleventh Precinct patrol cars in a long chase fell into the hands of a lone foot patrolman yesterday morning. Private H. M. Hilldrup, who had observed part of the chase from his beat at Fifteenth and East Capitol streets, hurled his baton through a window of the car, striking the man on the head.

The driver lost control of his car and it overturned. Private Hilldrup took him in custody after a short chase on foot. Police said they found 94 half gallons of liquor in the car.

They charged Charles Williams, colored, 21 years old, with possession of liquor, possession of a smoke screen, transportation and operating a car without a District permit.

Proposed Canal Held Feasible by Engineer

Col. Dan I. Sultan Tells National Geographic Society 10 Years Would Be Required to Build Waterway Through Nicaragua.

Ten years of construction work would be required on the proposed Nicaraguan Canal, in addition to five years of preparatory work, much of which has been performed, Col. Dan I. Sultan told members of the National Geographic Society last night in an address at the Washington Auditorium. A canal through Nicaragua would be no more subject to earthquake damage than the existing canal through Panama, he said, and would be less troubled by earth slides.

Col. Sultan was in charge of a party of engineers of the United States Army which spent three years in surveying the canal route. He paid a tribute to the stamina and ability of the soldiers who did the work under conditions as trying and uncomfortable as in war. Many of the activities were carried on in swamps and jungles.

Nicaragua, Col. Sultan pointed out, is about the size of New York State, but has a population only as great as that of Buffalo. Ninety per cent of the population possesses Indian blood. American motion pictures are popular with all classes, and are run, in their sound versions, in English.

Among the poorer people the women earn the money for the support of the family, including its masculine "head." The situation caused difficulties following the earthquake in Managua. Work was given to the men, but it was found that this was not helping in the feeding of the women and children. The American Red Cross then paid the women much higher wages to sweep the streets, and the families again began to eat.

The country around the great lakes of Nicaragua, with their mountainous shores, is one of the most charming portions of the republic, Col. Sultan declared. The lakes were once an arm of the ocean, he said, and in them dolphins, swordfish and tarpon—all three salt-water fish—abound, having become slowly accustomed to the change to fresh water.

Col. Sultan exhibited motion pictures of an airplane trip over the lake country. Lantern slides showed the magnificent flowers of Nicaragua. Flowers are amazingly cheap in the markets, he said. American Beauty roses can be bought for 15 cents a dozen.

Last night's address concluded the 1931-1932 lecture season of the National Geographic Society.

Blanton Hits Patrick On Taximeter Decree

Texan Threatens Move to Cut Off Pay of Utilities Commission Chairman If He Insists on Enforcing Order.

Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, will move to cut off Chairman Mason M. Patrick, of the Public Utilities Commission, without pay, if the latter insists or enforcing the order abolishing the taxi zone system, he said last night.

Representative Blanton, on whose motion the House unanimously adopted a resolution asking the commission to revoke its order, will strike again at Maj. Gen. Patrick when the District appropriation bill comes before the House, he said.

"If the chairman of the Public Utilities Commission has no more regard for the unanimous expression of this House, opposing a return to taximeters, then I will offer an amendment to cut off payment of his salary," he said.

The fiery Texan's threat came on the heels of the House District committee's demand that Gen. Patrick explain the scope of the order requiring taxicabs to install meters or get off the streets.

Earlier yesterday Representative Emanuel Celler (Democrat), New York, declared the District would be "the extreme loser in many ways" if the meter system returns. He charged that two concerns holding a monopoly in meters were primarily interested in effecting the change—that a "tremendous lobby" was sent to Washington in its interest.

His statement read:

"Nearly 10,000 men are directly or indirectly employed on taxicabs in Washington. There are about 7,000 drivers, 1,000 repair men and 1,000 service men. The advantages that these drivers and their families bring to allied trades in Washington are incalculable. It may be true that the drivers make less than the usual wage, but everybody is in the same boat. The fact that they have employment is sufficient reason in these times.

"Normally 1,000 taxicabs at the taximeter rate would be all that Washington would use, since the cost of riding would be probably three or four times as great as it is today.

"Many bricklayers, plumbers, carpenters and other artisans, as well as lawyers, doctors and professional men are driving cars today in order to keep body and soul together and eke out a livelihood for their families. It would be cruel to put them out of employment.

"Of course, the street car companies are now suffering. They deserve to suffer. A 10-cent fare is outrageous.

"Furthermore, these meters are made by two companies, the Ohlmer Co. and the Pittsburgh Co. They are in full control. It is virtual monopoly. A tremendous lobby was present in Washington to foist these meters, at $150 apiece, on these unwilling drivers and the unwilling public."

SUSPECT IN RIEDEL CASE STILL GRILLED

Three Others Arrested With Mulvey Freed; Petworth Case Link Doubted.

While Francis Mulvey alias Roy Holt was still being held and questioned last night in connection with the slaying of Paul Riedel, Mount Pleasant street baker, police sought the assailant on Thursday night of Aeneas Lane, Petworth grocer.

Three other persons arrested with Mulvey were released last night. They were arrested by Sergt. Howard Ogle after he had a hand-to-hand encounter with Mulvey several days ago. Those freed were Roland M. Golden, Fern Gardiner and Oscar E Loving.

Capt. Bernard W. Thompson, of the Detective Bureau, last night said he did not believer that the man who fired four shots, slightly wounding Lane, was the man who killed Riedel. The detective chief said the descriptions of the men did not tally at all.

Detective Sergt. Harry Wilson, head of the homicide squad, would not discuss the detention of Mulvey last night. He said that no further witnesses had viewed the man, other than those who partially identified him as the Riedel slayer Thursday afternoon.

Taxi Driver Is Attacked And His Auto Wrecked

Police yesterday sought a man who picked a fight with a taxi driver at Fourth and U streets northeast, took the cab after emerging victorious from the fray, and then wrecked the hack and a gas light pole on V street northeast near Fifth.

The driver is Charles Lowe, 30, of 1475 Park road, and the cab is the property of E. L. Martin, of 5112 Connecticut avenue northwest. The cab was badly damaged when found.

Two Workmen Injured As Scaffold Collapses

Two workmen were injured, one probably seriously, when a scaffold on which they were working at 1612 W street southeast collapsed, dropping them about 25 feet to the ground below.

Joseph Edinger, 20, of 1304 Florida avenue northeast, received concussion of the brain, possible fracture of the skull and lacerations about the head. Edward T. Cleary, 30, 903 Hamlin street northeast, received a possible fractured right arm and shoulder. Both men were taken to Casualty Hospital.

SENATORS APPROVE PLUMBING REFORM

District Committee Also Favors Widening of Michigan Avenue.

The Senate District committee yesterday voted to tighten plumbing regulations in the District, approving an amended bill for raising plumbing and gas-fitting license fees and imposing more rigid requirements.

Two other bills, for widening Michigan avenue between First street and Park place, and making two years residence in Washington requisite for dependent children receiving home care aid, were approved by the committee.

The plumbing bill provides that District plumbers and gas-fitters must have four years experience in their trade before getting a license to operate in the District; must be 21 years old, and submit a certificate of good character signed by three reputable residents.

License fees would not be less than $25 nor more than $50, at the discretion of the Commissioners, who would have authority to suspend or revoke licenses for cause after a hearing.

A bill to increase payments to dependents of jail prisoners for non-support from 50 cents to $1 a day, was passed over after Senator Hamilton F. Kean (Republican), New Jersey, objected it was "too much."

Georgetown Tour Made to Old Homes

Historic Residences Are Shown for Benefit of Old St. John's.

Many residents and tourists yesterday viewed the interiors and exteriors of historic old Georgetown homes and were conducted through the side streets and bypaths of the picturesque section that has harbored great figures of the Nation through the years.

The tour was conducted under the auspices of a number of prominent and old Georgetown families and proceeds went to the benefit of old St. John's Episcopal Church, O street and Potomac avenue.

The trip will be repeated again today. Motor buses will leave Peck Memorial Chapel, Twenty-eighth and M streets northwest, every half hour in a round of the ancient section.

Houses that are being visited are the Decatur House, the Dumbarton House, built by Charles Carroll and now owned by the Colonial Dames of America; the old Russian Embassy and the Foxall House. Lectures are given at each place of interest.

CANNON DENIES CITY BOUND TO BUILD CAR LOADING PLATFORMS

Chairman Says Committee Will Not Lift Ban on Public Construction.

LAYS PERIL TO PUBLIC AT DOOR OF COMPANIES

Brands Them "Outlaws" for Disobeying Order of Utilities Board.

The House District appropriations subcommittee has no intention of striking from the local supply bill prohibitions on public construction of street car loading platforms that have been in every District bill since 1928, Chairman Clarence Cannon said last night.

His statement followed a conference with Representative Frank L. Bowman (Republican), West Virginia, who reiterated charges that so-called District "safety zones" demarked only by white lines are in reality "death traps" where pedestrians are at the mercy of motorists.

Held Not District Duty.

Representative Bowman first complained to Traffic Director William S. Van Duzer, who informed him local traffic officials are "blocked" from relieving the situation by restrictions in the House bill. Yesterday Mr. Bowman called on Mr. Cannon.

"It clearly is no more the District's duty to construct loading platforms than it is its duty to construct street car tracks or overpasses," Representative Cannon said.

Companies Called Outlaws.

"If people have been killed, then it is the street car companies who are responsible for it, and it is up to the Public Utilities Commission to order them to build the platforms needed."

Informed that the commission had ordered the street railways to construct the platforms, but they had declined to comply, Representative Cannon said:

"Then they are outlaws."

Man Is Held for Jury On Stabbing Charge

On a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, Jack Mahoney, 40 years old, yesterday was held for action of the grand jury when he was arraigned in Police Court.

Peter Rockelli, who was allegedly slashed by Mahoney, said that the five knife wounds inflicted by his adversary required 48 stitches in the Emergency Hospital.

Mental Health Subject Of Red Cross Lecture

Dr. Loren Johnson will deliver a lecture to the students taking the course in home hygiene and care of the sick, at the District of Columbia Chapter, American Red Cross, 1730 E street northwest, Monday at 8 p. m. His subject will be "The Development and Growth of Mental Health as Shown in Infants and Children."

Others interested in this subject are invited to attend.
